FIXED RAILROAD POLICY IS ASKED BY KRUTTSCHNITT

Urges Senators to Establish "One That Does Not Change Every Four Years."

TELLS EXECUTIVES' IDEAS

Their Suggestion Calls for a Cabinet Post and Avoiding Conflicts on Rates.

DENIES LINES BROKE DOWN

Southern Pacific Official Questions Superior Efficiency Claimed for Federal Control.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—A national railroad policy "that cannot change every four years" was urged by Julius Kruttschnitt, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Southern Pacific, when he appeared today before the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee, which is considering legislation affecting the future of the railroads.

"We are asking you," said Mr. Kruttschnitt, "to do what has never been done before, that is, to adopt a national railroad policy. If you do that the policy cannot change every four years. Recent occurrences have shown that the Interstate Commerce Commission has no hesitation in overruling the acts of an official who has much greater power than the proposed Secretary of Transportation. We are chiefly concerned with the establishment of a definite policy by Congress. Whether it is given effect through a Cabinet officer or through an enlarged and fortified commission is still a matter of discussion. Add to that a board for the adjustment of wages, which should be closely tied to the body which controls rates and revenues. We are not, however, held to a hard and fast plan."

Mr. Kruttschnitt declared that the economies which the Railroad Administration has said it has put into effect amounted to all to less than 1 per cent., the car-mile saving by direct freight routing being but 2-10 of 1 per cent. He said that at the time the roads were taken over the actual volume of freight traffic was larger, although the average tonnage per car in 1918 showed a 6.2 per cent. increase over 1917.

Objection to Standardization.

Senator Kellogg of Minnesota asked Mr. Kruttschnitt what he thought about standardization of cars. Alluding to a desire of the Railroad Administration to have the Southern Pacific use box cars of smaller capacity, yet 4,000 pounds more weight than the system used, the witness replied:

"Acceptance of those cars would have meant hauling about 4,800 pounds of useless weight for the entire life of the cars. That would have been the same as loading each car with 4,500 pounds of sand before the rest of the load was put in.

"At one time the late Mr. Harriman became obsessed with the idea of standardizing all locomotives on his system and he charged me with the duty of devising a plan whereby this could be done. I opposed it for the same reason that I am opposing it now, namely, that in order to get the most efficient service you must have different types of locomotives to meet the varying conditions of grade, trackage, fuel, water and character of traffic.

"In this connection, I might say that last year when I was using every effort to get the Railroad Administration to release ten of our locomotives which they wanted to use in the East, I was not able to make any headway until I brought it to their attention that these locomotives were all oil burners, for the fueling of which the eastern roads have no facilities."

Mr. Kruttschnitt told the committee that reductions by the Railroad Administration in train mileage in making economies of $79,565,000 in operating expenses and $6,000,000 in salaries had been effected by reducing service to the public.

The witness asserted that the owners of the rail properties would be able to serve far more efficiently than they have ever been able in the past, if they got the reasonable assistance "that Congress alone can give us."

"Profiting by experience acquired under both private and Government operation," he said, "the carriers earnestly desire to provide a better system of operation by combining the initiative and beneficial features of competition inherent in private ownership with the benefits developed during operation by the Government unhampered by legal restrictions."

Denies Service Failed.

In denying that private operation had failed or broken down, Mr. Kruttschnitt declared that the plant provided by private owners "gave service that has never been equaled in the history of transportation, and with legislation permitting practices heretofore prohibited it can and will, by combining the good and eliminating the bad features of both Federal and private operation, give a service better than any that has ever been given in the past.

"A press dispatch in THE NEW YORK TIMES of Jan. 2, 1919, credits to the railroad administration an estimate of the operating expenses of 1918 of $5,800,000,- VIENNA, Jan. 20. (via Geneva, Jan. 21.)—Depredations are reported on aristocratic country seats in Hungary. Count Julius Andrassy's castle, Tissea Club, has been pillaged by infuriated Bolshevist peasants, who caused enormous loss, spoiling valuable Gobelin tapestries, a Van Dyke picture, and other inestimable art works. Count Andrassy declared that he would never inhabit the castle again.

Yesterday strong monarchist manifestations occurred in Budapest, arranged by Clericals, officers of the former army, and students. Thousands paraded the streets, shouting for the monarchy, cheering for King Charles, and demonstrating against Karolyi. They invaded numerous coffee houses on the boulevards and attacked the Jewish guests, beating and robbing them, and disturbed the audiences in theatres. The crowds finally dispersed.

LARGELY AN ISSUE OF HOURS

LONDON, Jan. 22.—Three great British industries, coal mining, engineering, and shipbuilding, are now concerned in the dispute over the interpretation of the new forty-seven-hour week.

Over minor adjustments of working hours London is threatened with a strike in the engineering trades which would paralyze the tramways, electric railways and the electric light supply, causing chaos in many other directions; 200,000 members of twenty-five trade unions, including the Amalgamated Society of Engineers, are directly affected. A union official says the provincial workers would join in.

The issues in themselves are so comparatively small that it is hoped that an amicable settlement will be reached.

The Yorkshire coal fields, where 150,000 men propose to strike tomorrow, seek to enforce a demand for twenty minutes' interval for food during worktime.

Altogether 600,000 work people would be indirectly affected by the strike and be out of work by the end of the week. The situation is causing great alarm in commercial circles in West Riding where there are no reserve stocks of coal and many works would soon be forced to close if no supplies were forthcoming.

There are hopes of an adjustment of the dispute on the northeast coast shipbuilding yards over the interpretation of a forty-seven hour week but the situation is critical. A large number of ships are held up in the repair yards.

The Clyde workers threaten to strike next Monday to enforce a forty-hour week.

LONDON, Jan. 22.—Industrial unrest throughout the United Kingdom is on the increase. In addition to the threat of a railway strike, the whole Yorkshire coalfield probably will be idle tomorrow, throwing 150,000 men out of employment, while preparations are being made in Scotland for a general strike for a forty-hour week.

Severe criticism of the "apathy" shown by Premier Lloyd George and the Government toward railway employes was heard at a conference of delegates of the National Union of Railwaymen last night. These delegates represent nearly 200,000 workers and are here for a discussion of the question of working hours, as well as other grievances. It was declared by union officials that unless the Government faced the issues before it with promptness drastic action would be taken by the organization.

BRIBE CHARGE BY BENNET.

Ex-Congressman Accuses Milton J. Trainor of War Department.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—Ex-Congressman William S. Bennet of New York charged, before the Senate Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds, today, that Milton J. Trainor of Chicago, official of the Real Estate Division of the War Department, attempted to extort $100,000 from George H. Shank of Chicago, who had the contract for building a military hospital on the Speedway in Chicago. Mr. Bennet appeared at attorney for Edward S. Hines, a Chicagoan interested in the contract.

Mr. Bennet said that Trainor approached Shank, stating that he "wanted a commission of $100,000 on the project and that if it was not forthcoming the contract would not be awarded the Shank firm.

Later Mr. Bennet said, Mr. Hines called upon Secretary Baker, laying before him the alleged attempt to extort the $100,000, but no action, so far as Mr. Bennet knew, was taken against Trainor. The contract for the project was never signed, Mr. Bennet said, the construction firm going ahead with the work under an informal agreement.

BERLIN DEPLORES CHOICE OF WEIMAR FOR CONVENTION

Danger of Outbreaks Asserted if Cabinet Is Absent Long at Assembly.

FEAR SHIFT OF CAPITAL

Intention to Change Denied—Aim to Escape the Prussian Spirit.

EBERT WINS 132 SEATS

Coalition with Democrats Would Control—Provisional Government to be Elected.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Jan. 21. (via Copenhagen.)—The Government's decision that the National Convention shall be convoked at Weimar, where it will open on Feb. 6 at the former Court Theatre, will meet with the fiercest opposition from the whole Berlin press, except the Socialist wing, while probably all the provincial newspapers, except the Pan German and other reactionary organs, will support it.

In deciding on Weimar, the Government has given way to the pressure of the South German States and Western Prussian provinces, which wish the convention to be removed as far as possible from the influence of the old Prussian spirit. Much the same motive actuated the revolutionaries of 1848 in calling their National Convention at Frankfort-on-the-Main.

The Government has made a public statement, emphasizing that it has no intention of displacing Berlin as the seat of the Central Government, and explaining that the National Convention is not a permanent parliamentary institution, but is merely required to outline the fundamental basis on which the new Germany is to be erected, and to adopt a Constitution, the condensed text of a draft of which was made public today.

Fears New Anarchy in Berlin.

The Tageblatt expresses the fear that if the National Convention is convoked at any other place members of the Government will be absent from Berlin during the whole session, and anarchy may once more lift its head in the capital. The paper ascribes the decision to fear of the Government not being able to protect the convention if held in Berlin.

The first part of this argument is met by the Government's statement that only the first few days of the convention will require the presence of a majority of the People's Commissioners. After that the convention's business, it is set forth, will be largely transacted by committee, which only one People's Commissioner will attend.

As to the Government's fear of Spartacide interference the official statement remains silent. Doubtless there is still much apprehension lest the Spartacides break out again.

Last night they made another attack on the Anhalt Railway station in Königgrazerstrasse, and when chased by troops fled across roofs and disappeared. There was a great deal of shooting again in various districts.

In view of this situation it is difficult to understand Governor Noske's order withdrawing most of the troops from Berlin, leaving only the Reinhardt Regiment and a somewhat doubtful group of marines for the protection of the city.

The National Convention will certainly be much more secure at Weimar, and the smallness of that city will be no impediment, as there are large hotels and other buildings easily made habitable for about 8,000 persons. The Government has appointed a commission, which left for Weimar this morning to provide for all necessary accommodations, including press facilities, telegraph, and railway service.

Measures to Guard East Front.

At a Cabinet meeting this afternoon with General Groener and Foreign Secretary Rantzau participating the removal of Grand Headquarters from Kassel to Kolberg or Konigsberg was considered.

Hindenburg and Groener will direct any military operations found necessary for the protection of the eastern front. Replying to a letter addressed to him by the Magistrate of Danzig praying his aid for the preservation of that old German city and West Prussia as integral parts of Germany, Hindenburg replied:

"Danzig's fate concerns me deeply. Be assured that I will do everything possible to prevent her separation from Germany. I have no knowledge that our enemies have decided against Germany so far as Danzig is con-

Krupp Plant Put at Work on Parts of Guns for Us

COBLENZ, Jan. 22. (Associated Press.)—The Krupp plant at Essen began working for the United States Government Tuesday. The task undertaken by the Krupps consists of making parts for seventy-two incomplete cannon rejected by the American authorities as part of the war material offered by the Germans under the terms of the armistice.

The German commission which has been in Berlin considering the question of the heavy guns rejected by the American authorities has arrived at Coblenz and reported that eighty cannon have been shipped to the headquarters of the American Army of occupation to replace big guns which failed to meet requirements. With the delivery of the parts for the seventy-two cannon and the arrival of these eighty cannon, the delivery of heavy artillery to the Americans will have been completed, the American allotment calling for 152 heavy guns.

BAKER RELEASES SOME OBJECTORS

Directs That Two Groups, Totaling 113, Be Freed from Fort Leavenworth.

THESE ARE CALLED SINCERE

All in Prison Known as Insincere Objectors to Army Service Must Serve Terms.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—Secretary Baker today announced that he had ordered the release of 113 conscientious objectors held at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., the remission of the unexecuted portions of the sentences of the offenders, their "honorable restoration to duty" and their immediate discharge from the army.

In announcing this action Secretary Baker gave out the text of a memorandum, which he sent to General March, Chief of Staff, under date of Jan. 16, in part as follows:

"Pursuant to the request made in my memorandum to you of Dec. 3, Judge Mack and Dean Stone have personally examined and reported to me regarding certain of the conscientious objectors now serving court-martial sentences. Group 1 of these men have heretofore been recommended by the Board of Inquiry for furlough, but because of the pressure of other work and the resulting delay in making the plan for farm furlough, thoroughly effective throughout the country, the men in this group missed the opportunity to apply for and to receive the furlough. Group 2 are men whom the Board of Inquiry now find to be sincere and who in their judgment would have been recommended for furloughs if they had had the opportunity of being examined by the Board of Inquiry before the court-martial proceedings.

"It will be recalled that this device of granting farm or other furloughs to such men as might be adjudged sincere was adopted in order that the country might have the benefit of such labor as they could conscientiously perform, instead of having to pay for their care and subsistence with no corresponding benefit; or the whole its adoption has been justified by experience, and if we were still actively engaged in warfare I should give my attention to the problem of ascertaining whether some plan could not be adopted for insuring the same treatment to these prisoners.

"The signing of the armistice, however, which took place while these cases were under consideration by my military associates, has changed the entire situation, and the War Department has since adopted and announced the policy of returning to civil life at the earliest practicable moment such conscientious objectors as are not serving court-martial sentences. (War Department Circular No. 97.)

"In view of this fact, and believing that essential justice will be rendered by so doing, for reasons stated in the above mentioned memorandum to you, I have decided to exercise the power of clemency intrusted to me by the President.

"I desire that the conscientious objectors, general prisoners, U. S. D. F., Fort Leavenworth, Kan., below enumerated be extended clemency in the form of remission of the unexecuted portions of the sentences of the offenders, honorable restoration to duty, and their immediate discharge from the United States Army.

COPENHAGEN, Jan. 22.—The Svenska Dagbladet of Stockholm affirms that Leon Trotzky has telegraphed to Sinovien [this should probably read "has received a telegram from Sinovien"] that the Bolsheviki have been heavily defeated in the north, where the General and his whole army have gone over to the enemy, and that Petrograd probably will have to be evacuated.

A special edition of the Berlingske Tidende says Trotzky has sent the following dispatch to the War Minister at Petrograd:

"Deliver city without fighting." [This probably refers to Sinovien.]

Other advices to these papers say that the peasantry in the region around Petrograd have revolted against the Bolsheviki and blown up the railroad bridges. In the capital itself 60,000 workmen are reported to have gone on strike.

LONDON, Jan. 22.—The Bolshevist forces in Northern Russia have suffered a severe defeat, according to advices received by the Exchange Telegraph from Copenhagen. The dispatch adds that great peasant revolts have been reported from many parts of the country, and that the Bolshevist Commander ordered his troops to surrender the town of Sinovieff without a fight.

REDS SHELLING OUR LINES.

Mobilize Peasants and May Start Big Drive on American Front.

ARCHANGEL, Jan. 21. (Associated Press.)—Bolshevist troops are heavily shelling the farthest south positions of the American and Russian armies at Ust Padenga, on the Waga River, thirty miles south of Shenkursk. They also are showing considerable activity west of Shenkursk on the Tania River. It has been impossible to determine whether the attack will develop on a greater scale. The enemy has mobilized the peasants in the vicinity of Vilsk and apparently is prepared for a general offensive in the Shenkursk sector.

Sunday the enemy, under cover of heavy bombardment, attacked with infantry the American and Russian positions on Ust Padenga. The allied outposts withdrew, but the Bolshevist attack on the main positions was repulsed with heavy losses.

There has been no infantry action since, though there has been a constant rain of shells on the village. The American artillery is vigorously replying. Flying in a temperature of 16 degrees below zero, one American airplane bombed the enemy and secured direct hits on important Bolshevist positions.

The fighting is going on in cold, clear weather, but the temperature is so low that it is difficult for the infantrymen to remain in the open for any length of time.

The Bolsheviki also are shelling the American positions on the Vologda Railway. With the exception of a few days early in January, when the allied forces attempted to improve their positions southward on the Kadish Railroad and on the Onega sector, the offensive on the Archangel front for several months has been in the hands of the Bolsheviki. They are boasting that in the vicinity of Kadish they will "drive the Allies into the White Sea in March."

Along the Murmansk Railway front the Russian and allied troops yesterday raided the village of Rugozerka, fifty miles southeast of Soroka, where they either killed or captured all the Bolshevist garrison. They took 110 rifles and other equipment and numerous documents. The allied forces did not suffer a single casualty.

Text of the Supreme Council's Announcement Of Decision As to Allies' Attitude Toward Russia

PARIS, Jan. 22, (Associated Press.)—This official communication was issued by the Supreme Council this afternoon:

The President of the United States, the Prime Ministers, and the Foreign Ministers of the allied and associated Powers and the Japanese representatives met at the Quai D'Orsay between 3 and 5:30 this afternoon and approved the proposal of President Wilson, which reads as follows:

The single object the representatives of the associated powers have had in mind in their discussions of the course they should pursue with regard to Russia has been to help the Russian people, not to hinder them or to interfere in any manner with their right to settle their own affairs in their own way.

They regard the Russian people as their friends, not their enemies, and are willing to help them in any way they are willing to be helped. It is clear to them that the troubles and distrust of the Russian people will steadily increase, hunger and privation of every kind become more and more acute, more and more widespread, and more and more impossible to relieve unless order is restored and normal conditions of labor, trade, and transportation once more created, and they are seeking some way in which to assist the Russian people to establish order.

They recognize the absolute right of the Russian people to direct their own affairs without dictation or direction of any kind from outside. They do not wish to exploit or make use of Russia in any way.

They recognize the revolution without reservation and will in no way and in no circumstances aid or give countenance to any attempt at a counter-revolution.

It is not their wish or purpose to favor or assist any one of the organized groups now contending for the leadership and guidance of Russia as against the others. Their sole and sincere purpose is to do what they can to bring Russia peace and an opportunity to find her way out of her present troubles.

The associated powers are now engaged in the solemn and responsible work of establishing the peace of Europe and of the world, and they are keenly alive to the fact that Europe and the world cannot be at peace if Russia is not. They recognize and accept it as a duty to serve Russia as generously, as unselfishly, as thoughtfully, as ungrudgingly as they would serve any other friend and ally, and they are ready to render this service in the way that is most acceptable to the Russian people.

In this spirit and with this purpose they have taken the following action: They invite every organized group that is now exercising or attempting to exercise political authority or military control anywhere in Siberia, or within the boundaries of European Russia as they stood before the war just concluded, except in Finland, to send representatives, not exceeding three representatives for each group, to Princes' Islands, Sea of Marmora, where they will be met by representatives of the associated powers, provided in the meantime there is a truce of arms amongst the parties invited and that all armed forces anywhere sent or directed against any people or territory inside the boundaries of European Russia as they stood before the war, or against Finland, or against any people or territory whose autonomous action is in contemplation in the fourteen articles upon which the present negotiations are based, shall be meanwhile withdrawn and aggressive military actions cease.

These representatives are invited to confer with the representatives of the associated powers in the freest and frankest way, with a view to ascertaining the wishes of all sections of the Russian people and bringing about, if possible, some understanding and agreement by which Russia may work out her own purposes, and happy, co-operative relations be established between her people and the other peoples of the world.

A prompt reply to this invitation is requested. Every facility for the journey of the representatives, including transportation across the Black Sea, will be given by the Allies, and all the parties concerned are expected to give the same facilities. The representatives will be expected at the place appointed by Feb. 15, 1919.

The proposal will be sent tonight by wireless to the interested parties.

The meeting then decided to call a plenary session of the Conference for 3 o'clock on Saturday, Jan. 25, to discuss the subject of the League of Nations on the basis of the proposals made by Mr. Lloyd George, as well as other subjects which were examined this afternoon.

Washington Opinion Divided Over Allied Council's Decision

Senator Hitchcock Calls It a "Most Fortunate Agreement"—Senator Borah Applauds Letting Russia Settle Her Own Affairs—Senator King Deplores Any Dealings with the Bolsheviki.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—Senator Hitchcock, Chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, said tonight on being informed of the decision of the Supreme Peace Council at Versailles:

"It looks like a most fortunate agreement between the powers. It indicates a final agreement over the Russian policy which gives an appreciable hope of a start to solving the Russian problem. Certainly it shows that the powers are faithful to the policy of self-determination for Russia, and it will encourage the better elements in that country in reaching some form of agreement.

"I may say that this agreement upon the Russian policy has been expected for some days. The President was known here to have been working upon it. The result of today's conference comes as an agreeable outcome of his efforts.

"The powers, in taking the attitude they have today, make it clear that they will expect, as representatives at the proposed conference at Princes' Island, those of all political parties in Russia. They will expect representatives of the Soviet as well as the other elements that are striving for the upper hand in Russian affairs.

"The whole thing, as I view it, is an encouraging augury for the ultimate determination of the Russian problem by the Russian people themselves."

Senator Borah of Idaho, a member of the Foreign Relations Committee, said:

"I am thoroughly in favor of the fundamental principles involved in this action today by the Peace Conference, that is to let Russia settle her own affairs. The powers have put themselves on record as against any counter-revolution in Russia, and in doing it have recognized the existing Government. They go further than this, though, in saying they will expect representatives of all organized groups to send representatives to the conference.

"It is a very hopeful, a very encouraging thing. No one can, of course, foretell with any accuracy what the outcome of such a conference will be, but it is the right step. I have maintained in the Senate that Russia ought to have the right of self-determination of her own affairs, and this action of the pacifist of today leads in that direction. For myself, I must say I am pleased over the news."

Senator Hiram Johnson, Democrat, of Utah, said:

"I heartily oppose the decision of the Paris Conference. I approved the attitude taken a few days ago by Foreign Minister Pichon of France. Upon it being reported that England had suggested a similar plan to that adopted by the Paris Conference today—that is, that all factions in Russia, including the Bolsheviki, send to Paris to submit their claims of recognition—he opposed any such move.

"With the record we have of the perfidy of Lenine and Trotsky, the conclusive proof that they acted as the agents of Germany, and in view of the bloody class warfare that they have carried out, and further in view of their denunciation of our own nation and of the democratic principles upon which it is founded, and their avowed purposes to destroy it as well as all other nations, I don't see how the Peace Conference, with honor to itself, or a proper regard to the nations it represents, could have any dealings with the Bolsheviki.

"If President Wilson and others of the American delegates have consented so treat with the Bolshevist or receive them or accord them recognition, as this Paris dispatch indicated, either as a revolutionary party or as de facto Government, it does not meet with my approval. If the dispatch means that any opposition in Russia to Bolshevism is counter-revolution, then I cannot approve of the statement.

"If the idea to be conveyed by the cabled announcement is that Lenine and Trotsky represent a revolution and a revolutionary government with which we can treat, that it meets with my approval. Lenine and Trotsky don't represent any revolution or any Government. They are outlaws. In my opinion the Peace Conference should recognize the Omsk Government as de facto, and should have no commerce with the Bolsheviki either directly or indirectly."

PLAN MISSION TO POLAND

Will Send to Warsaw Eight Delegates—League Plan Up on Saturday.

By RICHARD V. OULAHAN.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 22.—The Supreme Council of the Peace Conference this afternoon adopted a proposal submitted by President Wilson for bringing order out of the Russian chaos. The essentials of the plan are that representatives of all the Russian and Siberian factions shall meet representatives of the Allies at Princes' Islands in the Sea of Marmora on Feb. 15 and discuss the situation, in the hope of reaching a settlement of Russia's difficulties. As evidence of good faith the Russian factions must cease hostilities prior to the date of the meeting.

This proposal is the outcome of a week's discussion among the chief delegates of the five great powers. It is a reflection of the plan of Premier Lloyd George that an interallied commission be sent to investigate the Russian situation, but the plan itself appears to be President Wilson's, for to him was given authority to prepare the formula adopted today.

The President's proposal, which was furnished to the press and wirelessed to all the Russian factional governments, gives the most careful assurances that the Allies have no selfish purpose in seeking an ending of the disturbances in Russian territory. The Russian Governments are told that the Allies recognize the absolute right of the Russian people to direct their own affairs "without dictation or direction of any kind from the outside."

It is evident that, while some doubters are not convinced, a considerable opinion exists in the Peace Conference that this is the best solution offered with any hope of success. It is pointed out that the Allies' proposal applies to the Bolsheviki as well as to the factions that oppose them. The assurances contained in the proposal paraphrase sentiments uttered by President Wilson from time to time.

Little Opposition to Plan.

PARIS, Jan. 22. (Associated Press.)—Led by President Wilson, the Supreme Council of the great powers today moved to unite the factions of distracted Russia and bring them into the Peace Congress. The council unanimously adopted a proposition brought forward by President Wilson, asking all the Russian factions, including the Bolsheviki, to meet the allied and associated Governments at Princes' Islands, in the Sea of Marmora, on Feb. 15, the contending factions meanwhile declaring a truce and suspending all military operations.

The Joint Commission of the associated Governments will be announced as soon as the Russian factions accept the proposal which was communicated to them by wireless tonight. The Russian commission will proceed to the meeting place, probably on a warship, by way of the Black Sea and the Bosporus.

General John J. Pershing, the American Commander in Chief, has been called to Paris, and it is expected that he will be the military member of the American representation of the joint commission.

Aside from the importance of the conclusions reached, it was especially notable as being the first time that the voice of the United States has taken the direction in the concert of European powers on the most serious European question now presented. There was added significance in the fact that an American President in person had taken leadership in the council, made up chiefly of European statesmen, and had pointed a way they has unanimously adopted.

The final result came after three days of continuous discussion of Russia, which did not crystallize until the final hours, when President Wilson presented it, writing the plan as has elaborated. There was little opposition, and this was based mainly on doubts as to whether the proposition would be accepted. In reply it was pointed out that the contending factions were well-nigh at the end of their resources and that their needs likely would lead them at last to a combined appeal to the associated powers.

Besides the definite proposal as given in the official communique, the joint commission of the associated powers will lay down four conditions, indispensable in bringing about an adjustment; first, peace at all points; second, removal of all economic barriers, which restrain the free circulation or exchange of food and other commodities between the factional zones and the outside world; third, general elections on a representative basis, and, fourth, some adequate arrangement for the payment of debts.

Even if eventually the proposal is not accepted, members of the Council expressed the view that their proposition was before the world and that it would pave the way for such other measures as their own action had brought about.

The Princes' Islands were chosen for the eventful meeting because they are outside the zone of any of the contending factions. They are also allied headquarters, and are not obnoxious to any of the factions, as would be other points, having better material facilities for the meeting.

Feb. 15 was designated as the time of the meeting, so as to give time for representations to come from the remotest sections of Siberia and other distant localities.

To Send a Mission to Poland.

The Supreme Council took up the Polish question when it assembled. Marshal Foch, the allied Commander in Chief, was present, and was consulted on this subject. The discussion resulted in a decision by the Council to send at once to Poland a mission comprising eight delegates from the United States, Great Britain, France, and Italy, one military and one civil delegate from each of those countries.

The Council then took up again the Russian situation, President Wilson reading his proposal on the subject to the Council.

The official statement on the morning proceedings of the Council read:

"The Supreme Inter-allied War Council met this morning at 11 o'clock at the Ministry for Foreign Affairs. The President of the United States of America and the Prime Ministers and Ministers for Foreign Affairs of the allied and associated powers, as well as Baron Makino and Baron Matsui, the Japanese delegates, considered the Polish question, on which they consulted Marshal Foch. They decided to send at once to Poland a mission composed of two delegates, one civil and the other military, of the United States, the British Empire, France, and Italy.

"The Ministers then resumed the examination of the Russian question, and President Wilson read a proposal which will be discussed this afternoon. The meeting will take place at 3 o'clock."

After the morning session President Wilson went to the headquarters of the American Peace Mission for a conference with the delegates.

When the Supreme Council met for the morning session there were present, in addition to all the members of the council and Marshal Foch, General Weygand, the Marshal's Chief of Staff, and Rear Admiral Hope, Deputy First Sea Lord of the British Admiralty Board. It was assumed from the presence of these military and naval officers that the Russian situation on both the Baltic and the land front was discussed. W. F. Massey, the Premier of New Zealand, was present with the council for a short time.

France favors immediate armed intervention by the Allies in Poland, according to authoritative unofficial information. The French view is said to be that only military assistance can save Poland from being crushed by the Bolsheviki, and that such assistance must be given within the next few weeks. It is contended that the sending of food or munitions to Poland would only strengthen the Bolsheviki, since they would ultimately capture the supplies.

It will be difficult, Le Temps thinks, for the Entente mission to Poland to make its investigation and report to the conference before three weeks.

Russian Suggestions Discarded.

Le Temps says that, with regard to Russia, it is understood that two suggestions were discarded by the conference, the first proposing to hear in Paris representatives of all the Governments in Russia, including that of the Bolsheviki, and the second the sending to Russia of a mission analogous to that to Poland.

According to Le Temps, the Peace Conference has under contemplation the creation of two interallied commissions, one on a league of nations and the other on the compensation Germany must pay for damages done. The newspaper adds that the American plan contemplates the forming of three other commissions, one on territorial questions, the second on overseas territories, and the third on responsibilities.

The Supreme War Council will hold two sessions tomorrow. The full Peace Conference will probably meet Saturday.

Princes' Islands, where the conference with the Russian representatives is to be held, consist of a group of nine small islands in the Sea of Marmora, from ten to fifteen miles southeast of Constantinople. The largest are Prinkipo and Khalki. On the latter are a naval academy and a Greek school of theology. The population of the islands numbers about 10,000, for the most part Greeks, Turks, and Armenians.

PIQUED OVER POWER OF FIVE NATIONS

Smaller Countries Feel They Should Have More Voice in Peace Preliminaries.

LOCAL PROBLEMS INVOKED

Russia, the Scheldt, and Adriatic Among Them—Present System Aims at Expediency.

By CHARLES A. SELDEN.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 21.—There is already considerable rumbling of discontent among the representatives of the small nations at the Peace Conference because of what they consider the too great predominance of the five big powers in the plan to arrange all questions before they are submitted to the full conference for final decision. It is assumed that this final decision will be necessarily a mere perfunctory approval by the other nations of what America, England, France, Italy, and Japan have already determined upon and that any attempt to do anything but approve will be futile. Incidentally there is some curiosity as to who is dominating what suddenly became the "Big Five" instead of the "Big Four."

At the outset of the preliminaries it was only America, France, England, and Italy that counted; and then, without explanation, Japan gets added to the list of the big powers. This fact has added much to the resentment of some of the small nations who suffered most from the war and who took a far more active part in the war. The objection on the part of the small nations, "oppressed" and otherwise, is to the principle of the thing. None of them contends that every question could or should be threshed out in a full meeting of the more than sixty delegates of all the nations; but those who are dissatisfied with the present plan believe there should be some middle ground, and incidentally there is some revival of talk concerning the rights and equality of small nations.

Questions of Representation.

Some feeling of this sort was shown just before the opening of the conference, when Belgium and Serbia were credited with only two delegates each and, in spite of their war sufferings, put in the same category with Siam. That was remedied by their getting three each, but not until after three had been allotted to Brazil, upon the insistence of the United States, because Brazil is the largest South American nation participating in the conference.

But that is another detail. The real complaint of the small nations does not touch so much upon the numerical strength of their delegations as upon the plan of the five big powers to keep them out of the most vital discussion at which the real decisions will be reached.

As already intimated, they think there should be a middle ground considered, an elastic committee system by which any small nation or group of small nations would have full equality with the big ones in deciding each question which directly concerned it or them. For example, the investigation of the Russian question which is now being made by the big five preliminary to arriving at a most vital conclusion is being cited today as an illustration of the exclusiveness that ought not to be.

Rumania borders on Russia, and therefore is vitally interested in what happens to and in the latter country, but she has no part in the discussion. There is not much love for Rumania, as a matter of fact, by the other small countries, but as a matter of principle they declare she should be considered in all matters pertaining to the State across her own borders.

Another illustration which is given by those who object to placing the entire work of remaking the world in the hands of the men who are the Premiers or Foreign Ministers of the five countries is the Adriatic Sea question. That involves a dispute full of war possibilities between Italy and Serbia. Each of these two countries is fully as much concerned as the other, but under the present arrangement Italy will have a place at the table when the matter is decided, while Serbia will be outside, or, at best, in as a witness.

Another question for the conference to decide is that of the rights of Holland and Belgium in the use of the River Scheldt. Although they are rated as small nations, Holland and Belgium feel they should have as much to say in this matter as Japan and Italy, for example.

On Plea of Expediency.

The chief argument put forth in favor of the plan to let the five big powers dominate is that of expediency. A French advocate of this system put the matter to me this way:

"If all the nations delegated were given an opportunity to discuss we would never get through. There would be no peace signed at all. Furthermore, there would be too much opportunity for intrigue, trading, and corruption. To put it brutally, if every small State had a voice there would be too much temptation in some quarters to sell out or dicker.

"As it is, the world is much safer with all responsibility fixed in the five chief powers. The views of the representatives of those five powers are sufficiently divergent on the great fundamental questions to assure us that there can be no collusion, no sacrificing or exploiting of small countries. There is no sense in all this talk about a repetition of the crimes of the Vienna Congress. No such repetition is contemplated, nor would it be possible.

"There is no small nation in the world that will not have one or more sponsors at the meetings of the Big Five to guard her interests. For example, President Wilson is there. Although Mr. Wilson himself has said so much in favor of publicity, thereby causing the present discontent, he has since admitted privately that there must be limitations if any practical results are to be reached in the life of the present generation. We are not making this peace in heaven, but on earth, where everybody is human."

REPORT EX-KING MANUEL ON SHIP OFF LISBON

If He Won't Take the Throne, It May Be Offered to Anita Stewart's Husband.

PARIS, Jan. 22, (Havas.)—Former King Manuel of Portugal is at present on board a steamship off Lisbon, a dispatch from Madrid says. Le Matin says that Manuel has left London for an unknown destination.

The monarchist movement in Portugal, according to advices received here, appears to be making progress. A monarchist proclamation was read at Valenca-do-Minho in the presence of the garrison. The republican flag was then torn down and burned and the monarchist flag hoisted in its place.

Portuguese circles here have learned that if former king Manuel is not ready to head the monarchical movement in Portugal, his followers will offer the throne to Dom Miguel of Braganza, husband of Anita Stewart, an American.

LONDON, Jan. 22.—A semi-official statement received today from Lisbon says:

"Tamagnini Barbosa, the Premier and Minister of War, who is ill, has been replaced by General Hipolite, commander of the Coimbra force."

Dispatches from Madrid yesterday giving the make-up of the monarchical Government proclaimed by the Portuguese revolutionists in Oporto, listed Barbosa as Minister of War in the monarchical Cabinet. Senhor Barbosa had been for several weeks the Premier of the Government established at Lisbon after the assassination of President Paes in December, and he was mentioned in Lisbon advices, dated Monday, as continuing his duties as Premier in the Government.

ARMS AND 1,000 REDS SEIZED IN WARSAW

Germans in East Prussia Organizing an Army to Resist the Bolsheviki.

WARSAW, Jan. 21, (Associated Press.)—Several thousand rifles, many machine guns, and thousands of hand grenades, intended for use in an attempt to overturn the Pilsudski Government which has now been succeeded by the Paderewski Government, were discovered in Warsaw today. The Government authorities also arrested 1,000 Bolsheviki. The arrests were made in an effort to secure orderly elections to the National Assembly.

Prince Sapieha, who led the brief and futile attempt against the Pilsudski Government a fortnight ago, is still in prison. He will be released when the political situation becomes settled. However, there is no law under which he can be prosecuted.

That the German population of the East Russian Provinces not only are anti-Bolshevist, but are organizing an army to protect the frontiers is the main fact found during a journey from Warsaw over the Polish frontier to Danzig and Hemel. It was also found that the army of General von Hoffman, both men and officers, while unpontaminated by Bolshevism were demoralized and indifferent to the fact that the arms and munitions they were selling to Lithuania will later be used against the Germans.

From conversations picked up aboard trains, which were crowded with civilians and soldiers, it seemed apparent that the new army has been organized locally, but is under vague direction from Berlin. The single district of Ostrowo furnished 20,000 soldiers. It is affirmed that two divisions of the new army are gradually working to the frontier of East Prussia, there to halt the Bolshevist troops, against which feeling is bitter. These troops have experienced officers. Though young men they are paid six marks a day.

Although the Bolsheviki are now near Libau and also have occupied Riga, they will be resisted at Memel. Eylau Tilsit, and other towns, and also the country, are orderly. There have been no peasant uprisings.

CRIME WAVE IN PARIS.

The Matin Lays Robberies to Deserters, Including Americans.

PARIS, Jan. 22.—Thefts, acts of violence, and armed attacks are increasing daily in Paris, according to the Matin, which declares that the demobilization of allied troops is bound to have the effect of further increasing acts of lawlessness. The Matin continues:

"Many former prisoners now freed from the army are hurrying to make up for lost time. This band of lawbreakers is now increased by contingents from the armies of our allies. Such a statement need not offend the susceptibilities of our friends beyond the Channel and across the Atlantic. A national army means the recruiting of all classes, good as well as bad.

"During the last week 130 night assaults in the Paris district were reported as having been committed by deserters from the American Army. The task of handling this scum of an energetic and hard-working population has been entrusted to Deputy Police Commissioner Evans, one of the best New York police experts, who will act in conjunction with the Provost Marshal's Office, which employs nine companies of 150 to 200 men each, as well as three companies of patrolmen. In addition to these police there will be a company of detectives in uniform, but not wearing special marks, neither the armlet marked 'M. P.' which the military police wear nor a revolver visible. Six detectives in private clothes will work with the French detective service."

At Police Headquarters it was said that the department had no official representative in Paris and that no authority had been delegated to any one of its members in war service in France to assist the French authorities in the work mentioned in the cablegram. There is no "Deputy Police Commissioner Evans" connected with the New York Police Department. It was the opinion of police officials here that General Pershing or some member of the American General Staff may have assigned some one of the former New York policemen, who are now in overseas service, to assist in this special work.

BIG LOSS IN WAR MATERIAL.

Thorne Foresees Years of Work in Selling Government Property.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—Explaining to the House Military Committee today plans for disposing gradually of the enormous stocks of supplies on hand when the armistice was signed, R. J. Thorne, the War Department's Assistant Director of Purchase and Storage, said there necessarily would be great loss to the Government, and that it probably would take several years to sell all of the surplus. He said from now on the 1918 wool clip probably would be sold at the British issue price, or far below its cost to the Government.

Among the things Mr. Thorne said the Government had on hand were 45,000 tons of heavy barbed wire, 150,000 horses, 2,000,000 pairs of rubber hip boots, and great supplies of food and clothing of every description. He said the department could not avoid having large surplus supplies, as the armistice was signed at a time when preparations were being made for feeding and clothing 250,000 additional drafted men monthly.

IRISH PARLIAMENT ELECTS A CABINET

Premier and Secretaries of Finance, Home Affairs, Foreign Affairs, and Defense.

MARTIAL LAW IN TIPPERARY

Follows Murder of Two Policemen and Seizure of Explosives by Band of Masked Men.

DUBLIN, Jan. 22, (Associated Press.)—The Sinn Fein Parliament provided only a one-day sensation. Its members held a brief meeting at the Mansion House this afternoon, but behind closed doors. Afterward Count Plunkett told the reporters that a statement of the business transacted would be furnished to the press later, thus following the precedent of the Paris Conference.

The official report of the meeting says that twenty-four Deputies were present. A temporary Prime Minister was elected unanimously, and four other Ministers, nominated by the Speaker, were approved by the Parliament.

According to the provisional constitution the Ministry is to consist of a President and four executive officers, Secretaries of Finance, Home Affairs, Foreign Affairs, and National Defense. All revenues will be raised on the vote of the "Dail Eireann." The Constitution may be altered upon seven days' notice.

Count Plunkett, Professor Edward de Valera, and Arthur Griffith will probably be appointed Irish delegates to the Peace Congress.

A group of a hundred young men gathered outside the Mansion House during the secret session, but no excitement of any kind was shown. The public was far more interested today in the murder of two policemen in Tipperary yesterday at the time the Parliament was meeting. This is taken to signify the beginning of a new period of terrorism, which veteran Irish politicians expect will include other assassinations and attempts to destroy Government buildings and public works. The extremists are exceedingly anxious to get explosives.

Two policemen were guarding a cartload of gelignite which was being taken to a mine when they were surrounded by masked men. The policemen were shot dead and the explosives carried off. The immediate sequel was a proclamation placing Tipperary under the Crimes act, which means a régime much like the occupied German cities are undergoing.

All meetings are prohibited and nobody can pass in or out of the district without permits. None of the residents may be outdoors after 7 o'clock in the evening without a permit. No letters may pass in or out without censorship. Enough troops were quickly sent to the district to enforce these regulations.

The Clare district was recently proclaimed under the Crimes act, and the measure was enforced with apparent success.

Comments of the Irish papers on the "Parliament" are to the effect that it was an empty beating of the air and that its special purpose was to attract the attention of the world, particularly of the Peace Conference, to the Sinn Feiners' case. In the opinion of the papers most of the Dublin people believe that the Sinn Feiners expected and desired the conference to be suppressed by the police or the military.

The gist of the newspaper comment is that if Count Plunkett presents the Sinn Fein's declaration of Irish Independence the Peace Conference will merely put it in the archives without discussion, under the rules adopted permitting any one to present petitions.

The Irish censorship prevented the appearance of the Sinn Fein's declaration of independence in the Dublin papers.

Without interference, the Lord Mayor of Dublin, Laurence O'Neill, having obtained passports from the government, will proceed to Paris to tender to President Wilson the freedom of the city of Dublin, recently voted by the corporation.

PARIS, Jan. 22.—Although no official notice has been received that the committee named by the Irish Parliament in Dublin yesterday, comprising Count Plunkett, Professor Edward de Valera, and Arthur Griffith, was coming to Paris to present the claims of Ireland to self-determination to the Peace Conference, it has already been determined that if the delegation secures passports its application for admission to the conference to represent Ireland as an independent nationality will be passed upon by the Committee on Credentials, under the rules.

This committee is the sole judge initially on all applications for admission to the conference, although possibly an appeal might lie to the full conference in certain circumstances.

Thus far the Credentials Committee has held no meetings, but as it is anticipated that there will be a flood of applications from minor nationalities or races, it is the intention of the committee to hold a meeting shortly for the purpose of adopting a code of rules to be followed.

Calls Ireland Peace Congress Test.

Supreme Court Justice Daniel F. Cohalan said yesterday that the meeting of the Irish Constitutional Assembly was the logical sequence of events in Ireland, the results of the intensive Sinn Fein campaign and the recent elections in that country.

"No greater test can be made of the capacity and sincerity of those who control the Peace Conference," he said, "than their disposition of the case of Ireland. If they reject her claims they will alienate a large section of liberty-loving people throughout the world and arouse fears that their conference will be more effect a permanent and just peace than did the conference of Vienna."

GERMANY ORDERED TO LET POLES ALONE

British Note Says Future of Eastern Frontiers Depends on the Peace Conference.

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 22.—In reply to a British note requesting the German Government to refrain from further provocation of the Polish population in East and West Prussia, Posen, and Silesia, the German Government, according to a dispatch from Berlin, expresses agreement with Great Britain that the future of the German eastern frontiers depends upon the Peace Conference. The German note expresses surprise at the request to refrain from provocation and says that the request "can only be attributed to the fact that the British Government is inadequately informed of events in the East."

The German note declares that Germany has done everything to redress Polish grievances and accuses the Poles of continually provoking the Germans. It says that Posen is in a state of upheaval and that the German population has appealed for help to the German Government, which has been forced to take military measures to restore law and order. The note asserts that while the German Government has refrained from action against Polish Nationals who "planned and committed treason and revolt," it cannot "suffer ambitious imperialism to reign supreme."

Events in Upper Silesia, the German note contends, have nothing in common with national questions, and regarding East Prussia there can be no talk of a national Polish movement there. The note concludes:

"All measures of the German Government since the conclusion of the armistice have only served in carry out the prescriptions of the treaty toward unjustifiable Polish attempts to bring the Polish question to a head before the Peace Conference."

FORESEES AIRSHIPS IN OVERSEAS TRADE

British Ministry Predicts Their Use as Freight Carriers Throughout the World.

CROSS OCEAN IN THREE DAYS

Hopes to Develop Craft That Will Carry 200 Tons and Cruise 20,000 Miles.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 22.—Visions of mighty aircraft soaring over continents and oceans at a speed greater than that of an express train and carrying freight equal to the contents of twenty trucks are conjured up by the "Notes on Airships for Commercial Purposes" issued by the Air Ministry.

Among the striking points contained in this document are future airships which, it is predicted, will be of 10,000,000 cubic feet capacity, or about five times the capacity of the German Zeppelin, and 6,000 horsepower, carrying freight of 200 tons at a maximum speed of more than eighty-five miles an hour. These leviathans, 1,100 feet long and 150 feet high, could stay in the air for three weeks, and possess a range of 20,000 miles, or nearly once around the world. With a crew of six officers and twenty-six men they could go over or around storms, link up continents and oceans by means of stations 2,000 to 3,000 miles apart, and bring New York within a leisurely three days' journey of London. The larger the airship, the greater its efficiency.

Nine airship stations and a number of airships now used by the Admiralty may soon be available for commercial purposes. It is made clear in these notes that there will be no commercial competition between the airship and the airplane. The airship, says the report, is essentially a long-distance, weight-carrying craft, as compared with the short-distance, high-speed airplane. The airship, it is held, is worthy of consideration for commercial flight involving nonstop journeys of 1,000 miles and upward. It appears that for commercial purposes large rigid airship stations should be established at distances of 2,000 or 3,000 miles apart, mainly for transoceanic traffic, while the airplane would be used for bringing passengers and merchandise to these from neighboring countries.

For example, the Continent service could run from Lisbon to New York, passengers being taken to Lisbon from Paris, Rome, &c., by airplane. In this the war airplane would compete with the train and the airship with the steamer, over which she would have the advantage of reducing the average time of transit by at least 50 per cent. In addition to this, airships would be used for linking up railways in such places as Central Africa, where the country is difficult, both for airplanes and land transport.

Although airships are generally considered to be fair weather craft, up to the end of November there were only nine days in 1918 when no airship flight took place in the British Isles, which are notorious for possessing almost the worst weather conditions in the world. Successful experiments have been made in mooring airships in the open. For instance, an airship has been moored out for six weeks in a perfectly open expanse to a specially designed mast. Only two or three men were required to look after the ship and she could be up to fifty-two miles an hour have been ridden out without any damage whatever resulting.

The possibilities of using floating sheds on the water are also being inquired into, and appear to be promising. The use of the mooring mast will very greatly increase the regularity of any airship service, as the chief difficulty at present consists in taking airships in and out of sheds.

In 1914 the average endurance of the German rigid airship at a cruising speed was under one day, and the maximum full speed about fifty miles an hour.

In 1918, with the German L-70 class of 2,195,000 cubic feet capacity, the endurance at forty-five miles per hour has risen to 177.5 hours, and the maximum full speed to seventy-seven miles per hour. The British R-38 class, of 2,720,000 cubic feet capacity, has an estimated cruising endurance at forty-five miles an hour of 211 hours, thirty-four hours greater than the German L-70 class.

The cost of a 10,000,000 cubic feet airship is estimated between $1,000,000 and $1,500,000. Official statistics show that only one airship has been lost in this country owing to catching fire in the air, although 83,360 hours have been flown, and over 2,500,000 miles were covered during the war. In the case referred to the flight was an experimental one, with a new type of shed, and the cause has since been ascertained and eliminated.

DEMOCRATS PLAN FIGHT AGAINST PROHIBITION

Assembly Committee Reports a Referendum Bill Together with the Ratification Measure.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 22.—Anti-Prohibitionists have not yet given up hope of staving off ratification by the New York Legislature of the Federal Prohibition Amendment. The Judiciary Committee of the Assembly today reported out for discussion on the floor the ratification resolution and a referendum bill, an unlooked for action by the "drys." Democrats in the House revived the referendum bill. The Senate Taxation and Retrenchment Committee, which is Republican, brought out the ratification resolution by a party vote.

The last stand of the "wets" probably will be made in the Assembly tomorrow morning when the Republican majority will attempt suspension of the rules in order to bring the two liquor propositions to a vote. The action of the Judiciary Committee upset the Republicans to the point where Majority Leader Adler moved for a call of the House with the intention, if sufficient number of Republicans were present, to caucus on the proposals and make the ratification resolution a party measure, as was done in the Upper House. The caucus, however, was not held and instead the suspension of the rules will be attempted tomorrow.

The Assembly Committee voted seven to five to put the ratification proposal before the House. Those in favor of reporting the measure out were Assemblymen Martin, McNab, Pierce, Lown, Jenks, Everett, and Wilson. The five members who opposed its being reported were Pellett, Goldberg, Bloch, O'Hare, and Fertig. In favor of reporting the referendum measure were Pierce, Everett, Pellett, Wilson, Goldberg, Bloch, O'Hare, and Fertig; against this proposal were Martin, McNab, Pierce, Lown, and Jenks.

Assemblyman Goldberg of New York moved for the reporting of the referendum bill in order, he said, that "the entire liquor question may be freely discussed on the floor of the House."

The vote in the Assembly Committee was taken just after Lemuel E. Quigg, counsel for the New York City hotel interests, had argued for an hour against the Constitutionality of the amendment. Even if the Constitutionality of the proposal was sustained by the United States Supreme Court, the country would never be dry, he declared, until patent medicines were brought under the ban.

The Senate unanimously passed today Senator Foley's bill to prohibit the sale of intoxicating liquors to men in military or naval uniforms. The measure was requested by the War and Navy Departments.

BERLIN DEPLORES CHOICE OF WEIMAR

cerned. Danzig's citizens may rest assured that the highest war councils long since prepared measures for protection of the threatened province."

The division of the old Kingdom of Prussia into seven or eight new States, which is part of the program of the Socialist Government, has aroused a storm of indignation among the reactionary elements, which immediately made it the main issue in the elections for the Prussian State convention, coming Sunday. Even the Socialist Provisional Cabinet governing Russia now has grave apprehensions concerning that division and will meet tomorrow to consider the question. The Cabinet's principal objection is to the clause providing that any section counting over 2,000,000 in population may obtain Statehood. This, some Cabinet members fear, might lead to the splitting of Germany into more States and Stateleits than even the most liberal interpretation of self-determination warranted.

The reactionary argument is that it is doubtful if the German Federation can be preserved, and Prussia, if split up according to the Government plan, could never be reunited. Prussia's preservation, however, must be the highest duty of the patriotic parties.

While I am writing this the electric lights all over the city have been suddenly extinguished, the men in the electric works having struck punctually at 5 P. M. They threatened to strike Saturday demanding higher wages, but were persuaded to give the Government's mediator one more chance to settle the differences between the workmen and administrators of various electric works. The mediator, however, failed and the city was thrown into dense darkness with here and there an island of illumination in houses that have private electrical installations. Many families will have to spend all the evening and night in darkness, for candles and lamp fuel of any kind are absolutely unobtainable.

All street cars were stopped in the streets where they happened to be. There soon were immense numbers of pedestrians in the streets, the stores and business houses pouring forth their multitudes of employes two hours earlier than usual.

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 22.—The first work of the National Assembly at Weimar on Feb. 6, according to advices received from Berlin, will be to elect a provisional Government.

The assembly will then consider the draft of a Constitution, which is expected to occupy the remainder of February.

SOCIALISTS STILL LEAD IN GERMAN RETURNS

Majority Party Has 132 Seats So Far, Not Enough to Control Without Coalition.

COPENHAGEN, Jan. 22.—It is reported unofficially from Berlin that 319 delegates were known to have been elected to the German National Assembly from twenty-eight districts up to 5 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. They were distributed as follows:

Majority Socialists, 132; Democrats, 58; Centrists, 57; National Party, 23; Independent Socialists, 22; People's Party, 14; scattering, 8.

Potsdam returned to the National Assembly five Majority Socialists, one Independent Socialist, two Democrats, one National Party delegate, and one from the People's Party.

Partial reports from the elections in lower Bavaria and upper Phals show that the Bavarian People's party won five seats, the Majority Socialists two and the Peasants' Alliance two.

In Schleswig-Holstein and Lubeck, the Majority Socialists won five seats and the Democrats three. The Independent Socialists and the Christian People's party failed to win a single seat there.

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 22.—The final results of the German elections in the Cologne-Aix La Chapelle District show the success of eight Centrists, three Majority Socialists, one Democrat, and one member of the People's Party.

Although the Majority Socialists obtained an absolute majority in Berlin and the suburbs, according to a Berlin dispatch to the Handelsblad, they cannot consider the results satisfactory, as the bourgeois parties found more support than had been expected. The Lokal-Anzeiger estimates that the bourgeois parties up to Tuesday afternoon were assured of as many seats as the two Socialist parties combined.

One of the great surprises of the election was the success of the Socialists in East Prussia, where they were formerly detested by the voters. The Conservatives polled a heavy vote throughout the country.

WORKMEN CONTROL BREMEN.

Occupy Public Buildings and Disarm Soldiers in Barracks.

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 22.—The City of Bremen is virtually in the hands of the workingmen, according to a dispatch to the Berlin Lokal-Anzeiger from that seaport.

The workingmen have occupied the barracks, the Town Hall, the telephone office, and the banks, and have posted machine guns in the market place and in public buildings. The soldiers in the barracks were disarmed by the workers.

A general strike has been proclaimed at Remscheid (Rhenish Prussia) as a protest against the killing of Dr. Karl Liebknecht and Rosa Luxemburg, a Bremen dispatch states. The factories have been closed and traffic has been stopped.

The officials and workmen on the railways in the district of Halle have also gone on strike. They demand higher wages and a shorter work day.

KAISERIN WANTS TO RETURN

As a residence the Kaiserin wants to make use of the handsome villa of Alexander, which is the Hohenzollerns' private property. It is isolated from the outside world by a spacious park, with magnificent, old trees, permitting, however, a splendid view of the whole chain of lakes.

BERLIN, Jan. 21, (via Copenhagen.)—Darkness reigned this evening in most parts of the city which are supplied by the municipal electric works, whose employes went on strike, and in other parts, where the strikers cut the electric cables.

Most of the cinema theatres, not having their own electric installations, had to turn away their audiences. The telephone service was partly affected.

Most of the restaurants and hotels were completely dark and closed. The Mayor of Berlin is now negotiating with the strikers, who may return to work soon.

BERLIN, Jan. 22, via Amsterdam, (Associated Press.)—The tramway men of Berlin are also on strike and that service has been partially suspended.

$16,859,356 ASKED BY B. R. T. RECEIVER

Garrison Applies to Court for Permission to Issue Notes for Company's Needs.

$1,100,000 IN WRECK CLAIMS

Appropriation for New Surface Cars Ordered by Court Is Included in the Budget.

Lindley M. Garrison, Receiver of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, the New York Municipal Railway Corporation and the New York Consolidated Railroad Company, made application yesterday to the United States District Court for permission to issue receiver's certificates in the amount of $16,859,356.96. On the filing of the application, Judge Julius M. Mayer gave notice that he would hear all parties interested in the application on next Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Copies of the application were served upon the following lawyers, representing the clients named:

Cravath & Henderson, for the note holder's committee; Rushmore, Bisbee & Stern, for one stockholder's committee and Cullin & Dykeman, for the other; William L. Ransom, for the Public Service Commission; William P. Burr, Corporation Counsel, for the City; George S. Franklin, for the War Finance Club Corporation; Walter F. Taylor, for the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company and The Central Union Trust Company, trustee under certain underlying mortgages. Copies of the application were served also on fifteen banks and trust companies, holding bills payable of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company to the amount of $3,850,000.

The sum asked for would provide, not only for all current obligations of the three companies, but for extensions of power station facilities, the purchase of additional subway and surface cars, construction now going on, and additional contracts for construction and equipment to be entered into within sixty or ninety days. After giving all the lien obligations of the companies in receivership, except real estate mortgages, Mr. Garrison, in his application, says:

"Your petitioner has made an investigation of the possibility of obtaining the funds required, and is of the opinion, and so represents to this court, that it will be impossible for the necessary funds to be obtained unless receiver's certificates are issued therefor which shall have a lien upon part or all of the property of the companies whose property is in possession of your receiver, superior to the liens of some or all of the said mortgages of the said companies hereinabove set forth. * * * wherefore, your petitioner prays that he may be authorized * * * to issue receiver's certificates in such an amount, in such denominations and series, maturing at such times, bearing such rate of interest and secured by such lien or liens as to the court may seem best."

For the Tunnel Accident.

Of the total amount asked for, $1,100,000 will be needed to pay the claimants in connection with the Malbone Street tunnel accident last November. In commenting on these claims, the application reads:

"I beg leave to repeat the statement contained in my report as temporary receiver, submitted to this court on Jan. 15, 1919, which was as follows: 'On Nov. 1, 1918, a deplorable accident occurred on the Brighton Beach line at Malbone Street, resulting in 94 deaths and 208 persons injured. Prior to my appointment settlements had been made in 12 death cases and 102 personal injury cases at an aggregate cost of about $132,000. While only an approximation can be given of the amount of damages still accruing, the sum will probably not be less than $1,100,000.'

"It will clearly be impossible for the amount of these claims to be settled and paid for out of the current receipts of the properties in the receivership. In the judgment of petitioner it is desirable that these claims should be settled as far as settlements can be entered into, and that the amounts agreed upon in the settlements should be paid all at the earliest possible date."

The application specifies the immediate need of about $2,300,000 for obligations maturing up to and including Feb. 20, 1919. These payments are: For the account of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, $948,024.02; for the account of the New York Consolidated Railroad Company, $847,992.32; for the account of the New York Municipal Railway Corporation, $537,818.04. The items for the account of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company are as follows: Power station contracts, $235,512; taxes due Nov. 1, 1918, with interest at 7 per cent. from Nov. 1, 1918, $97,512.02; vouchers prior to Jan. 17, 1919, excluding interest on notes and loans, $625,000. The amount needed for the New York Consolidated Railroad Company is to cover the following items: Taxes due Nov. 1, 1918, with interest at 7 per cent. from Nov. 1, 1918, $306,817.32; interest due Feb. 1, 1919, on Kings County Elevated bonds, $140,000; interest due Feb. 1, 1919, on Brooklyn Union Elevated bonds, $399,175.

The immediate needs of the New York Municipal Railway Corporation are: Vouchers for construction and equipment, rendered Jan. 17, 1919, $140,426; purchasing agent's orders for January and February, estimated, $50,000; payrolls, January and February estimated, $38,000; contractor's estimates due Jan. 20, 1919, $125,844; contractor's estimates, due Feb. 20, 1919, $150,000; taxes due Nov. 1, 1918, with interest at 7 per cent. from Nov. 1, 1918, $33,546.04.

Needs of the B. R. T.

Of the total amount asked for, $16,859,356.96, the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company requires $6,438,833.02; the New York Consolidated Railroad Company needs $1,947,992.32, and the New York Municipal Railway Corporation requires $8,462,531.62. The $6,458,833.02 for the account of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company is needed for the following purposes: To provide for enlargement of power stations, $2,696,321; to provide for fifty additional surface cars already contracted for, and improvements to existing equipment, approximately $710,000; to purchase and equip 200 additional surface cars to comply with court orders affecting an additional car equipment, $2,000,000; taxes now due and payable, with interest from Nov. 1, 1918, at 7 per cent., $97,512.02; for work done and in progress in replacement of storage and dock facilities, approximately $50,000; to pay audited vouchers for operation and unpaid payrolls and supply accounts incurred in operation within four months prior to the receivership, approximately $625,000.

The $1,947,992.32 for the account of the New York Consolidated Railroad Company is required for taxes not in litigation, with interest from Nov. 1, 1918, at 7 per cent., $306,817.32; payments to claimants in connection with the Malbone Street accident, approximately $1,100,000; interest due Feb. 1, 1919, on first mortgage bonds of the Kings County Elevated Railroad Company, $140,000; interest due Feb. 1, 1919, on Brooklyn Elevated Railroad Company, first mortgage bonds, $399,175.

The total amount to be expended for the account of the New York Municipal Railway Corporation, $8,462,531.62, will be expended for payment of purchasing agent's orders, $971,220.01; payments for purchasing agent's orders in connection with the Brighton Beach line, $174,-399.84; amount of outstanding obligations covered by existing formal contracts, $3,782,813.73; additional contracts to be entered into within the next sixty or ninety days for construction and equipment and miscellaneous expenditures, $1,000,000; taxes not in litigation, with interest from Nov. 1, 1918, at 7 per cent., $33,549.04; purchase of 100 additional subway cars, $2,500,000.

The item of $2,000,000 for 200 additional surface cars attracted attention, because Mr. Garrison is not receiver of any of the surface lines. But the application gives the following explanation for inserting this item in the B. R. T. account:

"The Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company owns all, or substantially all, of the stock of the street surface railroad companies for which the cars are to be acquired, and in accordance with its previous operations it has already made arrangements as such holding company to take care of the financing of the acquisition of fifty of the cars, and would, in ordinary course, handle the financing of the remaining 200 cars."

Mayor Hylan sent a letter to Mr. Garrison yesterday calling his attention to the wooden cars used in the Chambers Street subway. In his letter the Mayor said:

"The operation of wooden cars in the subway, in which thousands of people are compelled to ride, is a grave public menace. Further, the headway of trains in the early part of the rush in the morning and at night should be shortened, so that there will be less overcrowding. If the heavy traffic schedule morning and evening were placed in operation a little in advance of the rush hour and continued during heavy traffic and steel side-door cars substituted for the old wooden cars now in use, a great deal of the scandalous overcrowding and delays would be eliminated."

TRACTION EARNINGS FALL.

Shonts, at Stockholders' Meeting, Discusses the Fare Question.

Theodore P. Shonts, President of the Interborough Consolidated Corporation, said at the annual meeting of stockholders yesterday that as long as the Interborough Rapid Transit Company's dividends could be continued, receivership for the former company would be avoided, but that in time the question of a receivership must be faced unless the existing situation was remedied. He told the shareholders that the municipal authorities, in holding to the five-cent fare, were losing sight of the most important point involved in the local traction dispute.

"The question of fare had nothing to do with the negotiations regarding the dual subway system," said Mr. Shonts. "The five-cent fare was established as the standard, simply because it was the prevailing rate. Whether the rate was 4, or 5, or 10 cents was not taken into consideration by us. We entered into the contract with the city because of the fixed return which was promised us on our money through a preferred lien on subway earnings.

"If the public authorities continue to maintain their present position of refusal to increase the rate of fare and the Interborough Rapid Transit Company shall find itself unable to realize an amount sufficient to enable it to carry it through the lean period, as extended by the conditions due to the war, they will have violated the spirit of the city's contract with the Interborough Company; and will have destroyed its credit and by that act shut off all future investment of private capital necessary for the development of the city's transportation, and they will not have advanced by a day the city's right to operate the property itself."

The annual report of the Interborough Consolidated Corporation, which is the holding company and controls the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, the Manhattan Railway Company, and the New York Railways, was made public at the meeting. It showed decreases in almost all departments for the year ended Dec. 31. Total income for 1918 was $4,402,175, compared with $6,065,886 in 1917, a decrease of $2,583,691. Expenses, taxes and interest deducted in the course of the year $14,795 to $3,677,261, and net income amounted to $724,914, which was equivalent to $1.58 a share earned on the $45,740,300 preferred stock.

In 1917 net income was $3,262,910, which, after the deduction of 6 per cent. preferred dividends, left a balance equal to 55 cents a share on the 932,626 shares of common stock of no par value. After the payment of the preferred dividends in 1918 the company's surplus was $28,-867, compared with $515,460 in the preceding year, a decrease of $480,672. Total surplus for the year amounted to $1,134,185, a decrease of $511,194 from the 1917 figures.

Refers B. R. T. Application to Deputy.

State Attorney General Newton, it was learned yesterday, has referred the application of Leslie J. Tompkins and Edwin M. Otterbourg to ask permission of the Supreme Court to begin an action to declare forfeit all the charters of the subsidiary companies of the B. R. T. system to Deputy Attorney General Cheney, until recently a Public Service Commissioner for the Second District. Attorney General Newton, it was said, will take no action until he has received Judge Cheney's report.

SENATE REPUBLICANS ADOPT HARMONY PLAN

Lodge, on Vote of Caucus, Selects Committee to Frame a Reorganization.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—Senate Republicans in caucus today voted for a committee of seven to be appointed by Senator Lodge to frame rules for reorganizing committees when the Republicans assume control of that body. The caucus was called to settle differences between the Old Guard and Progressives.

Senator Lodge appointed on the committee Senators Lenroot, Cummins, Smoot, Norris, Harding, Knox, and Hale, four "regulars" and three Progressives.

Senator Penrose, who insists that he must have the Chairmanship of the Finance Committee, did not attend the caucus. He announced, however, that he would demand the seniority rule in the naming of the Chairman of the committee, and that he would fight for the place. Beyond that he made it known he had no particular interest in the caucus. Senator La Follette also remained away, as did Senator Borah of Idaho, who has announced himself as opposed to Senator Penrose as Chairman of the Finance Committee.

The Senators discussed the resolution offered to the caucus some time ago to provide that no Senator holding a Chairmanship on any of the ten more important committees be allowed to serve on any other committee.

A substitute was offered by Senator Cummins to provide that no Senator should be assigned to more than two of the ten leading committees and that no Senator who is Chairman of any such committee be appointed to a conference committee unless the bill to be considered is reported by the committee of which he is the Chairman. This resolution, it is expected, will be accepted by Senator Norris.

The Republicans profess not to be worried over the opposition of Senator Borah to the appointment of Senator Penrose to the Finance Committee. An important Chairmanship will be offered to the Idaho Senator. The Republicans will need his vote, having a bare majority in the Senate.

MRS. LEBAUDY LEAVES HOME

Attorneys Endeavor to Untangle Her Husband's Business Affairs.

Special to The New York Times.

MINEOLA, L. I., Jan. 22.—Mrs. Jacques Lebaudy, who was released from the Mineola County Jail yesterday after the Grand Jury had failed to indict her, following its investigation of her killing of her husband, left her home at Westbury today and went to Glenwood with her thirteen-year-old daughter Jacqueline, to spend a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Weder, parents of the nurse of Mrs. Lebaudy.

According to attorneys for Mrs. Lebaudy, little progress has been made in tracing the scattered affairs of Lebaudy, whose fortune of several millions is said to be represented by papers in safety deposit vaults and other places of security in various cities.

ATTACK 8-HOUR DAY AT HARBOR HEARING

Boat Owners Also Tell War Board That Their Workers Are Being Well Paid.

CAPTAINS GET PILOT FEES

Testify Men Get Full Wages While Vessels Are Repairing or Awaiting Cargo.

Officers of companies operating tug boats and other harbor craft yesterday gave testimony to the sub-committee of the National War Labor Board in City Hall to show that the operation of the eight-hour day on most of their craft would be impracticable and to refute the assertions of the 10,000 men that they were receiving insufficient wages for their work. A great part of the testimony yesterday was upon the operation of the scows, coal and grain boats, and other non-propelled boats manned by the members of the Harbor Boatmen's union who have abandoned their demand for an eight-hour day but seek higher wages and better working conditions.

All the witnesses summoned by the boat owners told the members of the subcommittee that hundreds of the union men were receiving large pay in overtime charges. They said also that all classes of boats, but particularly grain and coal boats, would not be in continuous service, and that the men were not required to exert their full efforts all the time, although they received full pay. Boats often are laid up for repairs or repainting, they said, while many scows and smaller craft wait several days at coal ports for their loads, and frequently are tied up at docks for several weeks. They said that the pay of the men continued in such instances, although there was little work to do aboard the craft. They told the board, under cross-examination, that the fees of the boat owners also continued when a boat was tied up with cargo.

Instances of tug boat captains receiving large sums in pilotage fees in addition to their regular pay from the companies, also were read into the evidence for the War Labor Board. Robert C. Anderson, city dispatcher for the Lee Towing Line, testified that for the last eighteen months the captains of their three tugs had earned an average of $161 a month in this service. In the last month two of the captains received $250 a month each. They drew also from the company their regular wages.

Mayor Hylan yesterday wrote a letter to James McGuire, President of the Lighter Captain's Union, who had written him demanding an explanation for his action in ordering policemen to run the municipal ferries during the three days when practically all harbor traffic was tied up by the strike of the 16,000 marine workers in the six unions of the Marine Affiliation. In his letter the Mayor said:

Answering your peremptory demand to know "why I took the stand I did" in the recent sympathetic strike of certain city employé, who had no grievance of their own as to wages or hours, I can only offer in explanation, but without apology, a certified copy of my oath of office as Mayor of this city.

Representatives of the municipal ferries yesterday gave out a statement denying that they had no grievance against the city and that they went out only in sympathy with the demands of the other workers. They said that the wage award of the Harbor Wage Adjustment Board, signed last July, called for time and one-half for overtime but that the city had not paid the overtime claims. Back claims from November, 1917, to the date of the July award also remained unpaid, the statement said. The statement denied that the city was paying the prevailing wage scale.

REPORT STRIKE SETTLED.

Clothing Workers, It Is Said, Will Return to Work on Monday.

It was reported last night at the dinner of the National Association of Clothiers at the Hotel Astor, that the strike of workers in the men's and boys' clothing industry of this city had been settled, and that the workers in all probability would be back at their benches on Monday.

It was said that the grievances between the employers and employes have been adjusted. These workers have been on strike for the last three months.

Max Freedman, who was a member of the Board of Arbitration appointed to settle the differences, refused to deny or affirm last night that the strike had been settled, and that the employes would return to work on Monday. He said that Louis Marshall, the attorney, would probably issue a statement today.

SAYS STATE AND CITY FACE FINANCIAL CRISIS

E. R. Seligman Tells Tax Experts Expenditures Are Increasing While Revenues Are Smaller.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 22.—Tax problems affecting the State and its municipalities are being discussed at a three-day conference of tax experts gathered here for their eighth annual meeting, which opened tonight. The conference is being held under the auspices of the New York State Tax Department and the State Tax Association.

Many New Yorkers appear on the program, including Controller Craig, who will address the conference tomorrow morning; L. A. Tanner, New York lawyer; Robert E. Dowling, Chairman of the Tax Committee of the Real Estate Board of New York, and Edward N. Goodwin and Henry N. Powell, both lawyers. Speaker Sweet of the Assembly, Senator Sage, Chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, and various State tax officials will address the meetings.

The opening session tonight was featured by an address by Edwin R. Seligman, Vice President of the State Tax Association, who said that both the State and New York City were confronted with a financial crisis.

"We are met everywhere," he said, "by the fact of increasing expenditures. And side by side with the increasing expenditures we find a narrowing of the base of revenues. In our State finance the adoption of prohibiton will remove a fruitful source of revenue. What is still more important, the not improbable assumption by the Federal Government of the telegraph, the telephone, and perhaps even of the railways, will destroy another most important category of revenue not alone in the State at large but in all localities.

"In New York City the base of taxation is being narrowed almost every year until real estate has come to bear the overwhelming share of local taxation. This has brought with it such a continually increasing tax rate as finally to constitute an intolerable and crushing burden. So far as the tax is imposed on buildings it leads to an increase of rents, which is becoming a grave factor in social unrest.

"For the State simply to increase the direct tax would be of little avail, because the direct tax as actually administered is overwhelmingly a tax on real estate, and the result would be simply to intensify still further the burdens, not only on the farmer, but on the property owners and tenants in our cities.

"Since real estate is already bearing more than its share, it follows that we must resort to business and to income taxes. New York State has taken the first step in the business tax by the Emerson law, which, however, instead of being confined simply to corporate business, must be extended to firms and partnerships. There still remains, as a necessity, the adoption of the income tax."

FIXED RAILROAD POLICY IS ASKED

800, or $1,000,000,000 more than 1917. This expenditure was made to increase efficiency. Nevertheless roads that are alleged to have been run down at the end of nine months of unified private control show:

"1. A larger volume of freight traffic handled in nine months under private than in the same period under Government control.

"2. The largest volume of freight traffic ever handled in any one month.

"3. Loaded-car mileage 7.5 per cent. larger than under Government control.

"4. Greater number of loaded cars per train than under Government control.

"5. Miles run per locomotive per day 7.3 per cent. higher than under Government control.

"6. Miles run per freight car per day 6.1 per cent. higher than under Government control.

"7. The physical condition of freight locomotives better than under Government control.

"8. The condition of freight cars equally as good as under Government control.

"9. As weather conditions both at the end of 1917 and the beginning of 1918 were unusually severe, the comparison of the two nine-month periods is not unfair. Whence it follows that increased efficiency under Government control is, to say the least, not proven."

Outlines a National Policy.

Mr. Kruttschnitt said that the plan for a national railroad policy had been evolved after a period of six years' study, and that the plan, as submitted by Chairman Cuyler, has been adopted by the Association of Railway Executives, representing about 92 per cent. of the earnings of the country.

"In it," said Mr. Kruttschnitt, "we ask Congress to make it possible for the carriers to give the public the advantages of conservation of capital by requiring unification of lines and by terminals, when required in the public interest, by promoting useful consolidations and permitting agreements as to rates and practices, the benefits of which have been proved during Federal operation, but which the carriers by law have been prevented from supplying.

"Its fundamental features, to which details of organization and operating machinery are subordinate, are:

First—The creation of a Department of Transportation headed by a Secretary, who would sit at the President's council table, who would relieve the Interstate Commerce Commission of its executive duties, and in whose jurisdiction would be centred rate regulation subject to revision by the Interstate Commerce Commission, and the fixing of rates, and who would use the power of the administration to maintain proper service, to create the necessary credit for the carriers, and to maintain harmonious relations between employers and employes.

Second—The adoption of a fixed policy as to the revenues of the carriers by requiring that the influence of the President, through his Secretary of Transportation, shall be put behind movements for increased rates which he finds proper, and the establishment of a definite rule for rate making, which shall require that rates be not only reasonable but adequate and sufficient to protect existing investment and to attract capital necessary to maintain existing properties up to the standard of the public need, and for the construction of extensions and branches.

Third—To provide for compulsory Federal incorporation and for the elimination of the conflict of regulating power between the States and the Federal Government as to all essential matters, including rates, State and interstate, with as little interference as possible with the State commissions in carrying out the intended purposes.

Offered as a Suggestion.

"Our plan is not presented in the shape of a hard and fast bill, but is offered as a suggestion, by no means inflexible, of a way to attain desired ends.

"The question of a guarantee was freely discussed in our deliberations, but we do not ask for a guarantee. We recognize that the establishment of a definite guarantee would stifle all incentive to efficient management and would destroy competition as to service and facilities, for if necessary revenue could be obtained without effort what inducement would exist to make an effort?

"Under our plan, if a rate system be put in effect in a given region that will produce revenue adequate to yield a fair return on roads operated under average conditions and with reasonable efficiency, and to enable them to maintain their credit and pay satisfactory returns to their security holders, some roads below the average which should never have been built, or which were poorly located and are indifferently managed, may be forced to reorganize or sell their properties, while those above the average will prosper. But all without exception will be stimulated by self-interest to create new and increase existing traffic by competition in service and facilities, because by so doing the returns to the owners are increased and at the same time the public is better served."

One of the representatives of the four railroad brotherhoods, probably Warren S. Stone, head of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, will present views to the Senate Committee tomorrow at the morning session.

I. W. W. GAINING HERE, SENATORS ARE TOLD

Federal Agent Also Testifies Over 250 Papers Support Radical Socialism.

PACIFISTS UNDER SCRUTINY

Many University Professors Among Them — Government's Census of the Red Agitators.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—The Senate Committee on Propaganda, after an executive session, decided late today to hear evidence bearing on present radical activities, particularly those of the radical Socialists, the I. W. W., and kindred movements which are agitating for a condition in this country similar to that which now exists in Russia.

For several months the Military Intelligence Service has been taking a census, so to speak, of persons of Bolshevist activities and listing organizations and newspapers which are advocating attempts to overthrow the Government.

Archibald E. Stevenson of New York, now of the military intelligence service, is a member of a commission which has been investigating this question, and he began, late this afternoon, his narrative of some phases of the situation. The narrative unfolded up to the time the committee adjourned had to deal principally with the activities of the I. W. W., and radical Socialists led by Victor Berger and others of that school.

The data in possession of the Government shows that the agitators were never more busy than they are now. They are supplied with large funds and are backed by several hundred daily and weekly newspapers.

Closely co-operating with the I. W. W., Mr. Stevenson said, was the National Civil Liberties Bureau of New York, which numbers among its members many prominent persons of pacifist views. This organization helped finance the defense of Haywood and the other I. W. W. agitators convicted recently in Chicago and flooded a large part of the country with propaganda in their favor.

Tried to Influence Officials.

Evidence now in the possession of the Government showed, it was testified, that efforts were made before the I. W. W. trial to influence the authorities, but without success. The entire mailing list of the Civil Liberties Bureau was turned over to the I. W. W. The Government has the complete files of the bureau.

These files showed, it was testified, that in December, 1917, Frank P. Walsh, former co-Chairman with ex-President Taft on the Industrial Relations Commission, addressed a letter to the National Civil Liberties Bureau introducing D. A. Law and L. T. Chumley of the I. W. W. Defense Council, and thereafter Chumley established an office at the bureau.

On Jan. 11, of last year, Roger N. Baldwin, then head of the Civil Liberties Bureau and now in prison, sent to Clarence Darrow, a Chicago lawyer, copies of the minutes of a meeting that was held in this city at about that time. The minutes stated that no action was taken in the absence of Messrs. Walsh and Darrow." A letter written by Chumley stated that he was sending matter to be used in compiling a propaganda pamphlet, and he added that "Frank P. Walsh will do the same," and asked for suggestions as how to raise the $30,000 bail for Haywood.

An advertisement which appeared in The New Republic before the I. W. W. trial was also placed in the record. This was an appeal for funds to help finance the trial, and among those whose names appeared as signers of the appeal were Robert W. Bruere, the Rev. Dr. Percy Stickney Grant, Walter E. Wile, George P. West, and John A. Fitch.

Despite the conviction of its leaders, the I. W. W. continues to grow, and its propaganda is carried on through newspapers and pamphlets. The principal ones of these papers are published in New York State, Pennsylvania, Wisconsin, Michigan, California, Washington, Illinois, Ohio, Kansas, and Oregon.

Bolshevism Began in Germany.

Mr. Stevenson said that a close study of the present worldwide radical movements showed that it was of German and not Russian origin. It was all an outgrowth, he said, of the Marxian theories, and the present Bolshevist situation in Russia had spread there from Germany. He cited the fact that at an international conference held by these radicals in Brussels a few years ago the delegates included Lenine of Russia, Victor Berger of this country, and Karl Liebknecht and Rosa Luxemburg, the German Socialists who were lynched by Berlin mobs last week.

"The Radical Socialist party," said Mr. Stevenson, "has become the most active propaganda agency in the United States. It operates or has the support of more than 250 newspapers, probably a majority of them printed in foreign languages. The circulation of these papers is extremely large in some instances in excess of 500,000 daily. There are also a large number of smaller publications.

"The party is today holding meetings in all parts of the country. In New York alone the number held each week probably exceeding one hundred. They are not street corner meetings either, but are held in halls. And I may add that they are organizing schools for the education of the children along radical lines. In other words the Socialist party, as it now exists in America, is a revolutionary organization."

Senator Nelson asked the witness if he had a list of the newspapers. Mr. Stevenson said he had a list of every important one among them, and at the suggestion of Senators Nelson and Overman that the list was put into the record.

Mr. Stevenson also testified regarding certain other phases of the propaganda. He mentioned the American League to Limit Armaments as one of the earliest of the pacifist organizations whose activities did not extend to help the United States in preparing to bear its part in the European struggle. From this grew the Union Against Militarism, which sought to influence Congress against preparedness and which, after this country declared war, opposed the conscription act, and sought among other things, it was testified, to discourage recruiting.

Active in Propaganda.

The witness named as having been active in the union the Rev. Dr. Frederick Lynch of the Church Peace Union, Professor Emily Greene Balch, formerly of Wellesley College; the Rev. John Haynes Holmes, Amos T. Pinchot, Oswald Garrison Villard, Max Eastman, Crystal Eastman, and Scott Nearing.

Mr. Stevenson made a reference to a "Who's Who" of college and university Professors who have been identified with the form of propaganda under discussion.

"Are there many of these Professors?" asked Senator King.

Mr. Stevenson—Quite a large number of them, mostly among Professors of Sociology, economics and history.

Senator Nelson—I should like to get a list of those Professors.

Senator King—We ought to drive out of the universities these pernicious teachers.

In connection with propaganda in universities and colleges the witness cited the Intercollegiate Anti-Militarist League, which got a foothold in some of the principal educational institutions.

"A Church Peace Union, which was founded by Andrew Carnegie, and which was described as a perfectly proper organization, did not escape contamination, according to the testimony.

"The Church Peace Union," said Mr. Stevenson, "was used by its secretary, the Rev. Frederick Lynch, to gather information for the use of the National Civil Liberties Bureau. Dr. Lynch issued letters to preachers and others to express themselves on conscription and the answers were placed at the disposal of the league.

"The Ford Peace Mission was really inspired by the Rosika Schwimmer, now Hungarian Minister to Switzerland, who was a German agent. Mr. Ford's peace secretary at that time was L. P. Lochner, and it is interesting to keep his name in mind, for he shows up prominently in many organizations such as we are describing, which came into existence at subsequent dates, among them the People's Council for Peace and Democracy."

Mr. Stevenson will continue his narrative tomorrow. John M. Nathen of The Providence Journal will be summoned to tell what he knows about enemy propaganda in America.

SOCIALISTS CANNOT SAIL.

State Department, Meyer London Says Refuses to Issue Passports.

It was announced last night at the Rand School, 7 East Fifteenth Street, that the State Department had refused to issue passports to the three Socialists who were to have sailed on the Rochambeau today to attend the International Socialist Conference at Lausanne, Switzerland, on Feb. 23.

Because of the delay the Socialists here telegraphed to Congressman Meyer London, asking him to investigate the reason for the nonarrival of the passports. Congressman London replied that he had made inquiries, and learned that the State Department would not issue the passports. The Socialists are Algernon Lee, Allanson Hamilton of this city; James O'Neal of Brooklyn, and John M. Work of Chicago.

COLLUSION IN BUYING DENIED BY ARMOUR

But He Admits Division of Cattle, Based on Plant Capacity, at Some Markets.

FAVORS AID FOR GROWERS

Thinks Livestock Shipments Should Be Under Control — Senators Hear of "Social Lobby."

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—Two Congressional committees were occupied again today in hearing witnesses, who were questioned concerning evidence brought out at the Federal Trade Commission's meat packing inquiry. The committees have under consideration legislation providing for Government control of the meat packing industry.

J. Ogden Armour, President of Armour & Co., continued his testimony before the House Interstate Commerce Committee. He said his salary was $25,000 a year and had never been any higher. He asserted that Armour & Co. would welcome means to enable livestock producers to market their animals at a price based on the cost of production, suggested a central control of livestock shipments as a possible means of obtaining this, and renewed his opposition to a pending bill to empower the Government to take over control of adjuncts of the packing industry.

Mr. Armour said he thought the control bill probably meant ultimate government ownership of the packing industry, and he agreed with Representative Cooper of Ohio, that if the bill were constitutional, there was no limit to which the Government might not go in controlling private industry.

Representative Dillon, of South Dakota, tried to find out how cattle buyers determine the prices. He drew from Mr. Armour the admission that Armour & Co. insisted on having an equal division of the cattle offered at markets where there were only two packing plants, such as Fort Worth and Denver, but he said there was no collusion; that the purchases were made on a basis of plant capacity.

Mr. Armour defended the practice of "wiring on," whereby a buyer who failed to obtain cattle which the grower insisted on shipping to another market for a better price notifies the company's representative at the new market of the price he offered.

Denies Juggling Figures.

Foreign business of Armour & Co. was said to be divorced from the parent corporation because it was desirable to have the companies operate under the laws of the country where they were located. The South American plants made $10,000,000 last year, Mr. Armour said. Virtually all the South American meat had been shipped to Europe, and Mr. Armour thought there would be little of it sent to this country in the near future, especially if a free market were opened in Germany, which the company hoped would result from the establishment of a new Government there.

Charges of juggling figures were resented by the witness. He said that reports of transferring prices to make one department of the business show better results than another was "child's talk." Mr. Armour criticised the Federal Trade Commission for alleged unfairness in conducting its inquiry. Discussing its detailed recommendations by the commission, he said:

"I think the commission made a lot of foolish suggestions that won't work. Anything that is hardship to the packer is bound sooner or later to manifest itself in hardship to the consumer or producer."

Mr. Armour said the consumer could protect himself against high prices by refraining from purchasing, but that the producer of livestock, like the packer, had to take whatever the market was paying at the time he sold.

Bringing out that the $15,000,000 earnings shown in Armour's annual statement did not include $6,500,00 set aside for income and excess profits, Representative Stephens asked:

"Then you are passing that on to the consumer?"

"That may be so," Mr. Armour replied.

Brings Up Relief Bill.

Representative Hamilton of Michigan attempted to develop the possible effect on the packers of the food relief appropriation of $100,000,000 requested by President Wilson.

"They say that the fund will enable the packers to sell in Europe a great surplus of salt pork, which has been accumulated in England and which the people there won't eat now that the war crisis is past," Mr. Hamilton said.

Mr. Armour replied that the packers perhaps had larger stocks of salt pork than ordinarily, but he thought there was going to be a demand for it.

Representative Winslow of Massachusetts, questioning Mr. Armour regarding his company campaign of publicity, elicited this reply:

"If it is commendable for the Administration of this country to spend untold millions to defend its conduct of its business," Mr. Armour said, "it certainly is not reprehensible for a business corporation to follow its example."

Mr. Armour told Representative Rayburn that what the packers objected to most in the Federal Trade Commission's inquiry was the commission's trial of the packers through the newspapers.

"Did the newspapers ever give you a chance to answer," asked Mr. Rayburn.

"No," Mr. Armour replied.

In the course of the examination of Thomas P. Logan, Washington representative of Swift & Co., and other corporations, before the Senate Agriculture Committee, Senator Kenyon of Iowa asked:

"You were a lavish entertainer of members of Congress?"

The witness objected to this question as unfair.

"I think a social lobby is about as effective as a money lobby on legislation," replied Senator Kenyon, "and your guests were putting their feet under a table furnished by packers' money."

Ex-Senator Bailey of Texas, who appeared today as Mr. Logan's counsel, interrupted to say "most of the lobbying done in Washington is through the social lobby," and to protest that the Senate Committee had no power to investigate Mr. Logan's relations with executive officials or Congressmen. He insisted that only alleged efforts to promote or defeat legislation could be subjected to scrutiny.

"Is it all right to question Mr. Logan about his affairs with Secretary Tumulty?" asked Senator Norris.

"While I take the stand that the inquiry should be limited," Mr. Bailey responded, "Mr. Logan is willing to testify concerning any relations to anybody in the service of the Government."

The witness said he became acquainted with Mr. Tumulty immediately after the latter came to Washington with President Wilson, and that he had luncheon with him frequently. They were sometimes joined by Mr. Hurley, he said. He denied that Henry Veeder, counsel for Swift & Co., had ever been in the party.

"Did you render an expense account to Swift for these luncheons?" asked Senator Kenyon.

"Never," was the reply, "and I never introduced Mr. Tumulty to any of my clients."

Offers Plan for a New County.

ORANGE, N. J., Jan. 22.—The formation of a new county, which would include the Oranges, neighboring towns and Western Essex, in opposition to a plan for consolidation with Newark, has been urged by Judge Daniel A. Dugan. Newark by itself is large enough to be a county, Judge Dugan asserts, and the establishment of a new county, he declares, would mean better representation for the Oranges in the Legislature.

FOR BUSINESS BASIS IN NEW LOAN APPEAL

Gates W. McGarragh Declares Issue Should Be Floated on More Than Patriotism.

FEELING AMONG BANKERS

Country on Crest of Worldwide Wave of Inflation, Says R. F. Maddox at Dinner.

At a dinner given by the Forum of the New York Chapter, American Institute of Bankers, in honor of Robert F. Maddox, President of the American Bankers' Association, at the Hotel Astor last night, Gates W. McGarrah, President of the Mechanics and Metals National Bank, urged that the next Liberty Loan should be on a sound business basis rather than be offered as an appeal to pure patriotism.

Mr. McGarrah, who later was warmly praised for his stand by many of those present, said that while no one could possibly take issue with Secretary of the Treasury Glass on the patriotism of the American people, he felt that it was good business common sense, in view of all the burdens the people already are carrying, that the forthcoming appeal should offer them an investment which would appeal to their judgment.

The speaker, who is Assistant Chairman of the Central Liberty Loan Committee of New York, instanced the falling off of previous issues of the loan and said he felt that a bond which would stay at par, one that would carry a fair rate of intetrest, could be absorbed with far less difficulty. He felt, he said, that a bond with a somewhat higher rate of interest would be widely accepted and the burden of the loan would be shifted on to the shoulders of the many instead of being concentrated on those of the few.

Uncertainty After Glass Speech.

Mr. McGarrah's brief discussion of the loan was interpreted by Wall Street men as affirming an understanding current yesterday afternoon that prominent bankers of this and other cities soon would recommend to Secretary Glass that he modify somewhat the attitude expressed in his recent speech when he said he felt sure patriotism would play an effective part in floating the next loan.

There was much uncertainty in financial circles following the speech, in which Mr. Glass indicated that he did not believe the final loan should be offered as a purely business proposition, particularly as financiers differed as to the exact interpretation to be put upon the Secretary's remarks.

The Loan Committee discussed the situation at its meeting last Monday, it was learned yesterday, and it is understood that some concern was expressed over the general understanding of Mr. Glass's meaning, particularly as reports had poured into New York from many out-of-town banks and investment houses of uneasiness over the possibility that the new issue would be offered at too low a rate, the Treasury Department relying upon the continuance of the same spirit which carried the previous Liberty Loans to success while the country was in the midst of war.

The reports of uneasiness in outlying districts were not surprising to New York bankers and bond men, as they themselves have been anxiously awaiting a definite indication of just how the new bonds will be placed on the market. The Secretary's speech provided food for thought, and the financial community needed only the hour of a country-wide expression of opinion to resolve that the new loan should be made more attractive than any of its predecessors.

It has also been generally agreed upon, according to authoritative information, that the new bonds should be of comparatively short maturity and offer a real business inducement to make their oversubscription a wholesale success.

Suggestions of Some Bankers.

In some quarters it has been suggested, and it is not improbable that the point will be embraced in the recommendations which will be placed before the Secretary of the Treasury, that it would be much wiser to make the issue an attractive one to begin with, which will find a ready market, than to have the offering subscribed to in the first rush of the campaign by individuals, and later have to place large blocks of the residue with the large and small banking and investment institutions of the country, causing a heavy drain on their absorptive power and possibly causing so far-reaching an effect as temporarily to curtail and embarrass their banking activity.

Some of the more conservative bankers are not inclined to commit themselves publicly as to their views on what the terms of the new loan should be, but it is understood that an official announcement from Washington that the bonds would pay 5 per cent., would run for ten years, would carry the rediscount privilege at Federal Reserve Banks, and would amount to $5,000,000,000, would be received with a great deal of relief.

In some quarters a higher interest rate has been suggested as necessary, but there have been an equal number of proposals that a lower rate with shorter maturities would prove more efficient.

Mr. Maddox asserted in his speech at the dinner that we are on the crest of a world-wide wave of inflation, but he said the very fact that it is world-wide is a favorable feature, as it will result in a more gradual reduction of wages and prices. He declared no one expects prices and wages to be maintained at the artificial level to which they were raised by the war's demands, now that the war is over, but that a good deal depends upon the fairness and promptness with which the Government settles the contracts for labor and supplies to which it was committed at the time the war ended.

The Great Question at Present.

"The great question now is," said Mr. Maddox, "how can we continue to maintain or increase our foreign business with a credit balance of approximately $500,000,000 in annual interest due to start with, an amount nearly equal to the balance of our foreign trade four years ago? How can we be paid for the goods we hope to export in the future? It would be unwise to add to our already large stock of gold. There are some articles which we now import which we could use in increasing quantities, but there is little hope that this increase will keep pace with our ability to increase our own export products.

"One of the plans suggested is for this country to continue to buy the obligations of the Governments of our debtor countries until our people are educated to buy direct foreign Governments' securities or the securities of well established industrial enterprises in other parts of the world. If we expect to

FAVOR TREATY FOR HARBOR.

Joint Commission from New York and New Jersey to Control It.

Scant Disapproval of the proposed treaty between New York and New Jersey for joint harbor control found expression yesterday at the public hearing held by the New York-New Jersey Port and Harbor Development Commission in the City Hall. The principal feature of the proposed agreement is the creation of a port authority, a joint commission, made up of three Legislature appointed Commissioners from this State and a like number from New Jersey. The tentative draft of the treaty which was presented for consideration is an amendment of the States' treaty of 1834 fixing and determining the States' rights and obligations in and about the Harbor and Bay of New York. It is specifically stated that at least two of the New York Commissioners shall be residents of New York City.

The treaty provides that no grant of land within the port district shall be made without approval of the port authority, and that any plan for the development of the port shall bear the stamp of its approval. It will also be the duty of the port authority to make plans for port development and from time to time make recommendations for improvement to the Legislatures of the two States. It will also petition the Interstate Commerce Commission, the Public Service Commission or such bodies having jurisdiction, for the execution of physical improvements, changes in methods of transporting or handling freight or to petition on other matters for the public good. Unless the revenues from operations conducted by the port authority are sufficient the Legislatures of the two States will appropriate an equal amount for the sustaining of the port authority. That body will determine salaries to be paid to its staff. It is proposed that for violation of the order of the port authority the offender is guilty of a misdemeanor and subject to a fine of from $10 to $5,000, or imprisonment for not more than a year or by both fine and imprisonment.

SENATE VOTES DOWN FOOD RELIEF CURB

Penrose Amendment, Making the Commission Responsible to Congress, Is Beaten.

HOOVER IS AGAIN ASSAILED

Borah Renews Charge of Favors to Packers—Lenroot Deplores Paris "Pomp."

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—Criticism of President Wilson and Food Administrator Hoover was continued today in the Senate debate on the Administration bill appropriating $100,000,000 for food relief in Europe. The Senate again failed to reach a final vote but the disposition of amendments was begun, and Administration leaders hope to pass the measure tomorrow.

Without a record vote, the Senate rejected the amendment offered by Senator Penrose of Pennsylvania, providing for distribution of the fund by a commission to be named by the President subject to confirmation by the Senate and to be responsible to Congress.

The amendment by Senator Ashurst of Arizona, authorizing a bonus of sixty days' pay to privates and non-commissioned officers discharged from the army, met a similar fate. Senator Ashurst vainly sought a record vote and said that he would call up the amendment again for final disposition. The Senate this week passed a bill to give one month's pay to enlisted men on demobilization.

Borah Renews Hoover Attack.

Senator Borah of Idaho accused the Administration of "stupendous extravagance" in war expenditures. He urged Congress not to vote appropriations without fully acquainting itself with the necessities, and that mere suggestion by the President was not enough to go upon.

"Let me tell the Republican Party in this Senate," said the Idaho Senator, "that the voters who put the party in power again last November will regret that they did it if the party here surrenders to the same power that once dictated the course of the party."

Mr. Borah referred to the "capitalistic element," represented by a group of five packers, as having arranged with Food Administrator Hoover to work off their surplus stocks through the projected $100,000,000 appropriation.

"Mr. Hoover, as evidence before a Senate committee shows, made this agreement before he went to Europe and before he knew that any of the nations there needed food relief," said Mr. Borah.

The Idaho Senator spoke of the war profits of the five great packing firms as "unconscionable." In 1912 their profits, he said, were $18,715,000; in 1913, $20,217,000, and in 1918 they jumped to $95,639,000.

"How did they get it?" asked Borah. "They got it under the administration of Mr. Hoover, and he is still helping them. And he has transferred the same representatives of the packers to Europe that he had with him in his Food Administration. They are in Europe now, dickering to unload the packers' surplus on Europe.

"The scheme to relieve starving Europe did not originate in Europe. It originated in Chicago."

Senator Knox of Pennsylvania remarked that he would vote for an appropriation of $100,000,000 to feed starving Europe if convinced that it was actually for that purpose, but not to help stabilize the American market for the Chicago packers.

Lenroot Criticises "Pomp."

Senator Lenroot of Wisconsin criticised the President's course in traveling in Europe, but said he would vote for the bill.

"If I may be permitted to say it," he said, "the pomp and ceremony that is daily attending the Peace Conference in Paris, in my judgment, is doing almost as much to speed Bolshevism as food can do to prevent it.

"The occurrences at Buckingham Palace, a short time ago, where dinner plate costing $15,000,000 was used, the ostentatious display and bowing and scraping, the emphasizing of class distinctions over there, I say were most unfortunate at this particular stage of the history of the world. I am sorry that President Wilson when he went to Paris did not stay there and attend to the stupendous work in hand."

Senator McLean of Connecticut urged the passage of the bill approving its humanitarian purpose, and also pronouncing it a good investment to bring peace in Europe. Declaring that some Republican opponents had brought in subjects having no bearing on the issue, Senator McLean said that incompetency by the Administration was no reason for refusing to meet the obligations of America abroad.

Townsend Deplores Peace Delay.

Senator Townsend of Michigan criticised President Wilson, declaring that he was virtually the only American Peace Commissioner, and that he was not informing the country regarding his plans. He said that the President's absence was causing neglect of interests at home and delaying emergency legislation. Deprecating delay at the Peace Conference, he said:

"Nothing has been done except private and secret conferences by separate little groups in Europe. I believe the President ought to finish his business of settling the war with Germany and leave all these other questions to be settled later."

The proposed appropriation, the Senator said, "was a bribe to buy the good behavior of Bolshevism," designed to influence the peoples of small nations represented at the Peace Conference.

Senator Myers of Montana said that Germany eventually would be able to obtain peace terms which she did not deserve, and that "then we will be called upon to vote $100,000,000 or more to feed the starving people of Germany."

"The United States is about to assume the rôle of a great rich uncle to all the world," he continued. "I am opposed to encouraging revolutionists who think they can destroy government and then appeal to Uncle Sam to feed them."

ASSURES FOOD FOR SWISS.

War Trade Board Completes Agreement for Exports.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—Arrangements for provisioning the people of the Swiss Confederation, who are said to be on exceedingly short rations, were completed today in an agreement signed by representatives of the War Trade Board, the Swiss Confedration, the Government of France, and the Government of Great Britain.

The board stated that in connection with existing arrangements it is expected that the Swiss will be enabled to obtain a total supply of approximately 500,000 tons of foodstuffs and essential commodities during the ensuing year.

Purchase of the supplies will be under the direction of the Supreme Council of Supply and Relief, the Allied Relief Organization, of which Herbert Hoover is President, although the agreement is declared not to be an integral part of the Supreme Council's relief program.

Specifically the agreement provides that the board will grant licenses for export from the United States to the Swiss of the following commodities up to the amounts indicated:

1. Breadstuff cereals, amounting to 300,000 metric tons, in the following proportions: Wheat, 220,853 tons Rye, 34,338; barley, 44,814.

Other food and feeding stuffs: Oats, 112,000 tons; corn, 137,000; sugar, 96,000; edible fats, 8,000.

This allotment is for the year ending Sept. 30, 1919. Protection against reexportation to the Central Powers is vested in the control of the Société Suisse de Surveillance économique.

DIED IN FAREWELL FLIGHT.

"Hobey" Baker Was on the Eve of Leaving for America.

PRINCETON, N. J., Jan 22.—Captain "Hobey" Baker, noted athlete, had been relieved from active service and was about to start on his journey to the United States when he met death in an airplane accident on Dec. 21, according to Lieutenant Edward C. Olds, another Princetonian, who, under date of Dec 22, wrote friends here from the headquarters of the Second Army as follows:

"I have just returned from Hobey Baker's funeral. It has cast a cloud over the Second Army air service, where he was very well known and liked by officers and men. Knowing how much he has meant in recent years to all Princetonians, I hasten to give you the facts about his death.

"He was to have left last night, Dec. 21, on the 8 o'clock train for Paris on his way home. Forty-five minutes later he was dead. In that time he had motored back to the Toul airdrome, about two miles, and decided to take a final trip in his old spad. However, as luck or fate would have it, there was a ship in the hangar belonging to one of the officers, the engine of which had gone had a few days ago. It had been repaired, and Captain Baker decided to make his last trip to test out the repaired machine, instead of using his own. He was up only 150 meters when the engine failed."

The writer added that the aviator dropped rapidly, but might have saved his life if he had not tried to go back into the field. There he was crushed to death.

DR. BUTLER LOOKING TO 1920

Most Serious Time in History of the Republic, He Says.

President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia University spoke last night at the regular Wednesday meeting of the Manhattan Republican Club, 474 West 141st Street. His topic was to be "The Next Duty of the Republican Party," but owing to the death of Moses M. McKee, leader of the Twenty-first Assembly District and former President of the Club, on Tuesday night, the meeting became a memorial service, and Dr. Butler, with several other members of the club, spoke of Mr. McKee's service to the party and country.

In speaking of the healthy influence of the local politician upon the affairs of the country, Dr. Butler said that all those who banded themselves together to make plans for carrying on the Government were politicians, and he was proud to be called one in that sense. "We are coming to a time," he continued, "that is more serious than any time in the history of the Republic. In the Presidential election of 1920 we shall be called upon to decide the most momentous issue that has come before us since 1860.

"At that time our fathers had to determine whether the Union should remain intact or should dissolve. In 1896 we faced an issue of the greatest importance. It was a matter of sound currency or unsound currency. But a government can get along for a while at least with unsound currency. However, in 1920 we shall have to make a decision as to whether we are to maintain our American form of government, whether we are to develop and progress along the lines laid down by our fathers, or whether we shall overturn the present form of government and try a new and experimental type of State socialism. We know that the Republicans will be on the side of Americanism, and will be the voice of the forward-looking, forward-stepping democracy, for it stands for advance by evolution and not by revolution."

MEXICO WANTS MONEY.

Secretary of Finance Nieto Coming Here to Obtain Loan.

Rafael Nieto, Under Secretary of Finance of the Mexican Government, it was learned yesterday, is on his way to this country for the purpose of negotiating a loan here. There have been reports for some time that Mexican finances were in an unsatisfactory condition and that some new means of financing would doubtless have to be undertaken. It is known that bankers here have been rather unfavorably inclined toward making any advances to Mexico because of the unsettled conditions in that country.

How large a loan the Carranza Government will endeavor to get in this country can only be approximately estimated. The figures talked of in banking circles yesterday were $400,000,000.

FEDERAL WELCOME FOR TROOPS URGED

Independent Citizens' Committee Asks Baker to Name National Greeters.

WANT UNITY OF ACTION

National Body Would Supersede Mayor's Welcome Committee of Which Hearst Is a Member.

An appropriation of $250,000 by the city to aid the Mayor's Committee of Welcome to the Homecoming Troops in carrying out its plans will not cause suspension of the work of the Independent Citizens' Committee, organized as a protest against the membership of William Randolph Hearst on the official Committee, and it was announced yesterday that the independent committee would soon make known its plans for greeting the returning troops as they land here.

Through its Chairman, Charles Stewart Davison, the independent committee yesterday suggested to the Secretary of War that a national committee be formed so that the Mayor's committee here would be superseded. A similar request for the formation of a State committee, made two weeks ago, was ignored. The letter to the Secretary of War was in part as follows:

"I am instructed by the Independent Citizens' Committee of Welcome of the City of New York, which is composed of over 100 patriotic and civic organizations and of 2,000 individual citizens of New York, to respectfully call to your attention the general subject of the appropriate welcoming of the troops—soldiers, sailors, and marines—returning from foreign service. It has seemed to the committee that the subject was a broader one than would appear to have been recognized, though I doubt not but that you as the head of the War Department have had it in mind, and it may be that the suggestions of this letter have already been under consideration.

"The troops and wounded naturally arrive in a number of ports and in varying numbers, and not in the same groups in which they sailed. The leaving of the general subject to local committees, either official or otherwise, does not produce a consistent result—necessarily cannot do so. Without undertaking to deluge you with a recital of details, it appears that the subject would be better handled officially by the Federal Government under the auspices of the War Department than in any other manner.

"The suggestion therefore which it is desired to make is that appropriate steps be taken by Congress under your suggestion, through the adoption of a joint resolution, for the appointment of a Federal committee to have charge of and superintend the matter at large with subordinate Federal committees at appropriate localities so that there may be uniformity of action, and that the numberless petty questions which arise and militate against the subject being dealt with with dignity and propriety may be avoided.

"We feel sure that in the future you will look back with the greater satisfaction to the arduous duties of your important office if you can feel that the nation as a whole welcomed its returning troops—as a preliminary step toward providing for their future welfare—which latter matter is now justly regarded as of great importance, and is occupying the attention of many able minds. The troops themselves will be the better satisfied that their future needs are to be carefully, thoroughly, and intelligently cared for and protected if the matter of their welcoming be under the general national auspices and be but the first step in their reincorporation under proper auspices into the general body of citizens."

Announcement of plans of the Independent committee for welcoming the 27th Division and other New York troops, as well as the troops of other States, probably will be made later this week after a meeting of the Executive Committee. Minor committees are being formed now to carry out the details of a program of welcome.

Chicago Welcoming Committee Resents Appointment by Mayor.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 22.—Because of Mayor Thompson's appointment of his brother-in-law, William Nelson Pelouze, as head of the committee to entertain returning soldiers a committee appointed by the Association of Commerce for a similar purpose has retired in high dudgeon, leaving the Mayor and his brother-in-law a free field. Tag day funds for the entertainment of homecoming soldiers, $120,000, has been turned in to the City Treasurer, a Democrat, for disbursement.

Mr. Pelouze informed members of his Executive Committee today that he thought the entertainment of soldiers last week by the old committee had been too expensive.

DEPLORES CABLE CENSORING

Dr. E. E. Pratt Charges That It Is Interfering with Trade.

POUGHKEEPSIE, Jan. 22.—Continued censorship of the cables "is working incalculable harm to American commerce," Dr. E. E. Pratt of the Committee of Communications of the Council on Foreign Relations of New York said today in an address before the Chamber of Commerce. Dr. Pratt, who was formerly Chief of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce of the Department of Commerce, said it was a fair question to put to the highest Government officials "as to exactly why the commerce of the United States should be burdened and restricted by an indiscriminating censorship that assists our competitors and handicaps our own trade."

The whole matter, he said, was shrouded in impenetrable mystery, and that no explanation could be obtained of delays and failures to deliver cables.

"We are told," he said, "that the cable censorship must be continued because the United States has entered into an agreement with the allied nations to keep it in operation until after the signing of the treaty of peace. This agreement, however, does not apply to the use of private codes."

Dr. Pratt said that Secretaries Daniels and Redfield, Postmaster General Burleson, War Trade Board representatives, and other Government officials had recently assured Mark O. Prentiss, manager of the Council of Foreign Relations, that they would do everything in their power to lift the censorship, but that nothing had been done.

THINK THEY HAVE RYAN.

But Federal Authorities Here Doubt Ohio Prisoner Is O'Leary's Counsel.

GALLIPOLIS, Ohio, Jan. 22.—A man believed by the police to be Captain John T. Ryan, former officer in the Spanish-American War, of Buffalo, N. Y., who was counsel for Jeremiah A. O'Leary, now awaiting trial for treason, was arrested here today.

Ryan was indicted in New York City by a Federal Grand Jury as an offender against the espionage and neutrality laws of the United States and for aiding German spies.

The prisoner gave his name as Gerard Crowin Leahy. He denied he was Ryan, or that he was the man wanted by the New York authorities. Leahy, the police say, answers all descriptions sent out for the arrest of Ryan. He is being held in the County Jail awaiting word from New York.

According to the police, Leahy was at one time an attorney in Buffalo, N. Y. He said he was formerly a resident of Brazil, and that he had been working recently in the Government hospital at Nitro, W. Va.

The Federal District Attorney here had received no word yesterday that John T. Ryan, long wanted for alleged treasonable activities and indicted on the charge of treason yesterday, had been arrested at Gallipolis, Ohio. It was stated that all information in possession of the Federal authorities here indicated that Ryan was not in the United States, and doubt was expressed as to whether the Ohio authorities had arrested the right man. He was believed to have fled to Mexico.

Ryan is accused of having aided a German propaganda plot among Irish-Americans in this country.

CONFEREES RESTORE THEATRE TAX OF 10%

Reject Doubling of Rate Lest It Reduce Attendance and Resultant Yield.

15% IMPOSED ON CLUB DUES

Cabarets and Roof Gardens Also to Pay That Levy—Excess Profit Problem Being Solved.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—As a result of thousands of protests, the conferees on the War Revenue bill voted today to restore the 10 per cent. rate of taxation on admission to theatres, moving picture houses, and similar places of amusement. The action was taken in face of opposition by Representative Kitchin of North Carolina and Representative Fordney of Michigan, who wished to retain the 20 per cent. tax which had been tentatively agreed upon. While the theatre managers thus won a victory, cabarets, roof gardens, and clubs will have to be content with a compromise. The conferees had agreed on a tentative program which called for a 20 per cent. tax in each instance as compared with the present rateof 10 per cent. It was agreed today to fix the rates at 15 per cent.

Several factors were considered today in coming to a readjustmentof the theatre tax. To begin with, the conferees were faced with petitions bearing more than 350,000 names which had been obtained at theatres throughout the country. There also were thousands of telegrams and letters from theatrical organizations, theatre managers, and the atregoers.

There was also submitted the plea that many theatres would be threatened with ruin, and the attendance at theatrical performances so reduced by the additional taxation that it was a serious question whether the revenue to the Government would actually be increased.

The House conferees had estimated that the taxes would be increased from $54,000,000 to about $81,000,000 by the proposed 20 per cent. tax. This was predicated on the theory that attendance at theatres would not be greatly reduced by the increase. The Senate conferees were not ready to admit that was the case.

The decision reached today strikes out also the House proposal to increase the tax on boxes held at the opera or theatre to 25 per cent. and restores the rate of 10 per cent. Where tickets are sold at an advanced price, a tax of 10 per cent. is to be paid on any excess not above 50 cents and where the advance is more than 50 cents, a tax of 50 per cent.

In cabarets, roof gardens, and similar places of amusement where a regular admission is not charged the admission fee will be figured as 20 per cent. of the amount paid for refreshment, service, and merchandise.

While the conferees failed to reach a final agreement today on the schedule of war excess profits taxes payable in 1919, it was reported that financial experts were rewriting parts of the title, and that a decision might be arrived at within the next forty-eight hours. It is predicted that the rewritten title will supply a compromise beween the so-called 80 per cent. on corporations suggested in the House bill and the lower schedule proposed as a substitute by the Senate conferees.

The only official announcement made today was that the conferees had agreed upon certain changes which had to do wholly with "technical and clerical" features of the title, and that definite action on the other parts of the tax schedule as related to war and excess profits taxes had been deferred.

STATE WILL PRESS PHONE RATE FIGHT

New Rates Will Continue in Effect Pending Action by the Courts.

HILL ANALYZES CHARGES

Service Board Chairman Insists That Law Is Violated—Indiana's Governor Assails Burleson.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 22.—Until its attorneys prepare the necessary papers in its action requesting a mandamus or injunction restraining the New York Telephone Company from carrying out the orders of Postmaster General Burleson regarding the new schedule of telephone rates, the up-State Public Service Commission will take no further action in the matter. In the meantime the new rates will continue in effect.

Chairman Hill said today that neither the Government nor the telephone company had filed any schedule with the commission showing the new tariff, but the commission firmly believed that the company was violating the present law and would fight the matter to the highest court.

In explaining the increase in rates, which he said varied all the way from 20 to 100 per cent. in the various States, Chairman Hill said that the main features of the old and new rates, in comparison, showed station-to-station messages, person-to-person calls, proposed appointment and messenger rate calls, and night rates. The station-to-station rate, he explained, was the basic rate which had heretofore been called the two-number rate. It meant, he said, that a subscriber was supposed to call by number, but a charge was made if he talked with any one, whether the person wanted or not. Chairman Hill continued:

"The person-to-person call is what we have heretofore described as the 'particular person' call, which means that you talk with the particular person called for and no one else. The minimum rate now proposed for this service is 20 cents for an eighteen-mile service, and if the person desired is not found you are charged a minimum of 10 cents up to a maximum of $2.

"Proposed appointment and messenger rate calls begin at 25 cents for an eighteen-mile service and increase according to distance. The charge is made in addition to the actual charge for a messenger. Under the old rate there was no extra charge for appointments and a uniform charge of 15 cents was made for messenger service.

"The night rates give a 50 per cent. cut between 8:30 P. M. and midnight and a 75 per cent. cut between midnight and 4:30 A. M. A good deal has been made of this in the newspaper reports, but the public will be disappointed when it finds that it must use the 'two number' basis to get the benefit of this reduction, and if a particular person is sought must pay full day rate. We cannot expect that the night rates will be used for business purposes, and only to a limited extent for social purposes. Night rates at half the day rate were tried out by the corporations many years ago and abandoned as unprofitable.

Government Control Attacked.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Jan. 22.—Governor James P. Goodrich of Indiana today placed the resources of his office back of the fight of the Indiana Public Service Commission against the new long-distance telephone rates ordered by Postmaster General Burleson. After a conference with the Commissioners and representatives of the department of the Attorney General of Indiana, Governor Goodrich issued a statement in which he criticised Government control of wire communication systems and Postmaster General Burleson's action. The statement concluded:

"The country, at least the great central part of it, as evidenced by the interest neighboring States are taking in the matter, demands there be an end to advancing either personal or political plans for nationalization of utilities under the guise of war measures, and also an end to deception of various kinds of which Mr. Burleson's is a fine example."

The new rates are not being collected in Indiana because of a temporary restraining order issued by Judge A. B. Anderson of the United States District Court.

Vermont Opposes Federal Control.

MONTPELIER, Vt., Jan. 22.—The Public Service Commission today went on record as opposed to continuance of charges was tried out many years ago and abandoned by the corporations because it caused so much irritation. People do not like to pay something for what they consider nothing.

"Under the old rates an appointment might be made without extra charge for two reasons to talk at a certain time. Under the new scheme an extra charge is made for this kind of service which is considerably above the new 'particular person' rate. This extra charge is also applied where it is necessary to call a non-subscriber by messenger, plus the actual messenger fee. The old rates made no extra charge for calling non-subscribers to the telephone, but made a uniform charge of 15 cents for the messenger service.

"The night rates give a 50 per cent. cut between 8:30 P. M. and midnight and a 75 per cent. cut between midnight and 4:30 A. M. A good deal has been made of this in the newspaper reports, but the public will be disappointed when it finds that it must use the 'two number' basis to get the benefit of this reduction, and if a particular person is sought must pay full day rate. Vermont Opposes Federal Control.

MONTPELIER, Vt., Jan. 22.—The Public Service Commission today went on record as opposed to continuance of Federal operation of railroad, telephone and telegraph systems and to Federal regulations fixing intrastate rates for service on such systems.

Opposition by Pennsylvania.

HARRISBURG, Penn., Jan. 22.—The Pennsylvania Public Service Commission last night ordered counsel to proceed against telephone companies which have advanced rates by order of the Postmaster General. The action will be either in the courts or before the commission. The proceedings will be started within a few days and will be of a sweeping character.

MANY ADVANCES IN RATES.

High Percentage of Increases in "Person-to-Person" Charges.

The contention of the Public Service Commission for the Second District of New York that Postmaster General Burleson's so-called reduction in telephone rates really constitutes a steep increase in the cost of communication for the business man was further supported yesterday by an analysis of long-distance tolls. Twenty-three long-distance toll rates from all points of the country, figured on a table of computation furnished by the telephone company, disclosed nineteen points where the rates have been advanced, one where no change one way or the other was made, and three where decreases, small in comparison to the increases, were effected.

Although on the face of the figures supplied from the office of Mr. Burleson the cuts in station-to-station rates would on cursory examination give the impression of great economies, the high percentages of the increases in the person-to-person rate, "particular person" calls as they are termed, will strike directly and hard at business.

"On the station-to-station rate, if you call a firm in Chicago, get it, and then ask for a particular person, but find he is out, you have to pay for the call," said a telephone official yesterday. "On the other hand, if you put in a call for Mr. So and So of the Chicago firm, and inquiry establishes that he is not at the office, no charge is made. For this reason, practically all firms use the person-to-person call, and under the new rates unless one wishes to take the chance of paying for a call that doesn't accomplish its purpose, firms will have to pay the increased person-to-person rate.

The following table indicates just what the new system of Postmaster General will mean to large users of the telephone:

*This is the increase in cost of person-to-person rates over the old rate for full service. Decreases also are on that basis. Suburban rates, figured on the method used in the foregoing, all showed decreases.

"To take a particular instance and assuming that distances will be computed between the same starting points, the following shows a comparison of old and new toll rates between Albany and New York City:

	Old Rate.	New Rate.
Station to station	Not quoted	$0.90
Person to person	$0.90	1.10
Appointment	.00	1.35
Report charge	No charge	.30
8:30 to midnight	Not quoted	.45
Midnight to 4:30 A. M.	Not quoted	.25

"The two last items apply to station to station calls only. If a particular person is called the full day rate for person to person is charged. The public generally has become accustomed to two kinds of toll service, the 'two number' for 'short haul' and the 'particular person' for 'long haul.' In the 'short haul' we have a rate of 5 cents for the first eight miles and 5 cents for each additional eight miles. This two number short haul service has generally been applied only to the 5, 10, and 15 cent rates; that is, points where the traffic is heavy, especially between the larger towns within short distances where the service is speeded up by using the call by number only, and if in any instance the person really wanted is not found, the loss is only 5, 10, or 15 cents, and in most cases some one is found to do business with.

"In the case of 'long haul' traffic, where the charge is greater, running from 25 cents to several dollars, people want to make sure that they are going to talk with the person they want; so it has become the practice to make all this longer haul traffic on the 'particular person' basis, and if the person is not found no charge is made.

"In the new order of things the Postmaster General puts in a 'two number' rate extending to all distances. This is exactly the same as the old 'particular person' rates, except for the first four steps, where the charge is 5 cents for the first six miles, 10 cents for the second six miles, 15 cents for the third six miles, 20 cents for the fourth six miles, and then follows the old step of 5 cents for each eight miles additional. This has the effect of making a slightly higher rate for a less satisfactory service in the short haul.

"A considerable increased rate is charged for all of the 'long haul' business under the 'particular person' basis, and on top of this a charge is made for using the wires, even though the person called for is not found and no conversation is held. This 'report

6,392 TROOPS BACK, SAW MUCH SERVICE

Transports Manchuria and Cretic Arrive Here from France.

MANY HAVE SEVERE WOUNDS

Friends of 55th U. S. Coast Artillery Come from Boston to Welcome Unit Home.

Two transports arrived yesterday from France, the American steamship Manchuria and the British steamship Cretic, and brought a total of 6,392 troops, which included a good percentage of sick and wounded.

The Cretic brought back the 55th United States Coast Artillery, who were mostly from Boston, and many of their friends were at the White Star pier and others went down the Bay on the police boat Patrol to welcome their boys home. The regiment was commanded by Colonel John I. Roberts, formerly an officer in the old 7th of New York. In addition to the artillerymen, the Cretic had 210 wounded on board, of whom 52 were stretcher cases, and had to be carried to the transfer steamboat Shinnecock, which conveyed them to the General Debarkation Hospital at Ellis Island.

Many of the wounded belonged to the 7th, 12th, 23d, 47th, 71st, and some from Squadron A, all of the 27th Division, and the majority of them have their homes in New York or Brooklyn. Some of the men who lined the rail of the Cretic as she was hauled into Pier 54 were without a leg, an arm, or an eye, but they were all happy and glad to get back home.

A good example of the gallant National Guardsmen of New York was Corporal John McClave Granger of the 107th Regiment, who lived at 535 West 185th Street before the war. He is a grandson of the late John McClave, at one time Police Commissioner of New York City. The Corporal lost one of his limbs at St. Quentin in the attack on the Hindenburg line on Sept. 26, but did not seem to worry about it yesterday when he was chatting on deck with the reporters.

"I was busy cutting the German barbed wires," he said, "when a shell dropped and took off my left leg and broke the other one. Private Chauncey Emrett of Ogdensburg rushed up to me with a stretcher, but just then a second shell came and smashed his left leg, so that he was nearly as helpless as I was myself. Four German prisoners were ordered to carry us to the nearest field hospital, and by that time I was nearly exhausted from the loss of blood. The surgeon asked if any one would volunteer to let me have a little blood to save my life, and Private P. J. Chinock of the 11th Australian Ambulance Corps, a bronzed and brawny six-footer, rolled back his khaki sleeves and told the surgeon to go to it. Nearly a quart of blood from the boy's arm was transfused into me, and it saved my life. I have written to him several times and thanked him, but that does not mean so very much."

Secretary Baker's Brother Belongs.

Another passenger on board the Celtic was Major Frank A. Baker, a brother of the Secretary of War, who had been stationed with the Headquarters of the Quartermaster's Department at Tours. He admitted that the camp at Brest was bad, but said that the army was doing its best in the haste to rush the troops back home.

The transport Manchuria had 4,557 troops on board, which included the 115th and 117th Field Artillery, Headquarters of the 55th Artillery Brigade, the 106th Ammunition Train, Headquarters of the 82d Infantry Brigade, training camp from the 41st Division, and 934 sick and wounded. All the artillery are of the 41st Division, and the men hail chiefly from Florida, Alabama, and Georgia. Many of the wounded wear the French War Cross and Distinguished Conduct medals for bravery on the battle field.

There were two deaths from pneumonia on the voyage home—Sergeant William J. Phillips of the Headquarters Company of the 55th, whose home was at Tamaqua, Penn., and Private Frederick G. Gurette of the 55th, from Wisconsin.

Despite the fact that the 55th Artillery Regiment saw heavy fighting and fired 12,670 rounds of ammunition, its losses were surprisingly small. Only 12 men were killed, 10 died of disease, and there were 61 wounded who did not die during its campaign. It was assigned to the First Army, and was part of the 41st Heavy Artillery Brigade, of which the 26th, 27th, 28th Companies and the 57th from New York. The regiment, then in command of Colonel James F. Howell, sailed from New York on the Mauretania in March of last year, trained at Clermont-Ferrand Training Camp in France, and came to the battle front at the "crucial hour of the Allies' cause," according to the regiment's historian, who was among the returned soldiers. They were cited by both the French and the American commanding officers.

Lieutenant Paul E. Boomer of Heaven Dam, Wis., of the 12th Machine Gun Battery, was gassed on Oct. 9 and hit with seven shrapnel bullets in the St. Mihiel front when he rescued a wounded officer lying helpless about 150 yards out in No Man's Land under a heavy machine gun fire. In spite of his wounds, Boomer managed to get the French officer back into the American lines, for which he was cited twice and given the Croix de Guerre.

Another wounded officer was Lieutenant Earl P. Sherry of St. Louis, attached to the 77th Field Artillery and later to the 33d Mortar Battery, who has fought on all fronts in France and Flanders and was wounded in the cheek by a high-explosive bullet, which tore out the roof of his mouth. He was eleven hours in the ambulance before the stretcher bearers, because of the continuous heavy firing from the enemy's big guns, could get him to the field hospital.

Second Lieut. F. V. Collins of Company 1, 7th Infantry, said that in four weeks of fighting in the Argonne his regiment lost 33 officers and 35 per cent. of its men in casualties. "We are coming back 35 men to the company," he added.

SOLDIERS HELD IN COURT.

Accused by Tailor of Robbing Him, Assisted by Civilian.

John Rhotstein, 50 years old, a tailor, says he was returning to his home at 615 Third Avenue Tuesday night and was about to open the front door when two men said to be soldiers entered the vestibule, followed by a third man, who appeared to be a civilian. He said he called for help twice, and was about to call a third time when he was struck on the head and lost consciousness. Patrolman George Gill of the East Thirty-fifth Street Station corroborated the story of the tailor, and said he saw three men run out of the vestibule. When he drew his revolver they stopped and were locked up, charged with robbery.

When arraigned in the Yorkville Court yesterday they gave their names as George Williams, 20 years old, of 2,489 Carlton Avenue, Brooklyn; John Murray, 22 years old, of 90 Gouverneur Street, and John Lee, 21 years old, of the same address. Both Lee and Murray were in uniform, and both had overseas stripes on their arms. They were held in $1,500 bail each for the Grand Jury. Magistrate Douras said to the men in uniform:

"Almost every one looks with leniency on a uniform, and there are a lot of soldiers who have been mustered out going around in their military clothes as camouflage and committing crimes of various kinds. This should be stopped."

Creel

From the instant George Creel was appointed by President Wilson as "Censor" and chief of American propaganda he has been the subject of bitter and constant attack. Whatever you think of Creel, the storm of disapproval he has aroused is proof of activity on his part. However he may have done it the task he was given to do is one of the biggest and most important ever asked of an American citizen.

Everybody's Magazine has lifted the curtain and makes public the story of what Creel's department did in the war—told by George Creel himself.

"America's Fight for World Opinion," by Mr. Creel in the February Everybody's, is an amazing disclosure of the scope and intensity of America's propaganda in every country in the world.

Creel tells how the truth was at last made to penetrate into Germany; how countless thousands of circulars were dropped on German territory from the sky; how the German grip on the moving picture industry of neutral countries was broken; how Italians in America choked the cables in a successful attempt to bring back the Italian morale after the Caporetta disaster; how Mrs. Norman de R. Whitehouse, despite raids on her headquarters and every other kind of attack, by indomitable courage and great ability changed the public opinion of an entire nation.

Creel tells the whole story of America's world-wide propaganda; how it was done and what was accomplished. It is the first of a series of three articles written by Mr. Creel for Everybody's, and it is a narrative to be read with unabated interest by every American. Do not miss it in the February Everybody's now on sale.

DECLARES BURLESON UNDERMINED POSTAL

Reynolds Says Employes Were Allowed to Enroll in Organization of Rival.

CONTRADICTED BY LAMAR

Solicitor Accuses Dismissed Official of Duplicity—Angry Altercations at Hearing.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—The accusation that Postmaster General Burleson authorized the enrollment of Postal Telegraph and Cable Company employes in an organization of Western Union employes, thereby destroying the morale of the Postal forces, was made today to the House Committee on Postoffices by Edward Reynolds, who was dismissed by Mr. Burleson from the post of Vice President and General Manager of the Postal system.

Solicitor William H. Lamar of the Postoffice Department, denied the charge, saying that Mr. Burleson was not concerned about the organizations the employes belonged to, but was determined to retain to himself the right of settling wage disputes without being coerced by the labor bodies.

The acrimony between the Postoffice Department and the Postal Company and between certain of the committee members themselves was again apparent today in the hearing. Judge Moon, Chairman of the committee and author of the bill to extend the period of Federal control over the wires, withdrew the charge of "treason" he yesterday laid against Mr. Reynolds on the ground that the telegraph company official had not supported Mr. Burleson's steps in taking over the wires.

Representative McKinley of Illinois launched an independent move against the Postmaster General by introducing a resolution demanding that as Mr. Burleson is holding the wires "only to his own will and pleasure," and has raised rates until they are "burdensome, onerous and unjust," both matters should be investigated by a Congressional special committee.

Reynolds Accuses Burleson.

The accusation that Mr. Burleson allowed the Western Union employes to enroll Postal men was made when Mr. Reynolds stated:

"About Aug. 1 the Postmaster General issued an order authorizing the enrollment of Postal employes in the Western Union employes' organization. That could result in nothing but the breaking down of the morale of our men."

"There was no such order," interrupted Judge Lamar.

"The officers of that association," continued Mr. Reynolds, "came here and were authorized to enroll our men. They went to New York and did not see me, but went to one of our subordinate heads with their proposal and took him out to lunch."

By this time Judge Lamar and Mr. Reynolds were constantly interrupting each other. The Post Office Department Solicitor was insisting that the only interest the Postmaster General had in labor matters was that he should handle the wage settlements and not be dictated to by labor organizations.

Mr. Reynolds recited an instance in which he said there was an endeavor by Western Union employes in New Orleans to enroll Postal men.

"I wrote to the Postmaster General," he said, "that this was an impossible situation. But he never acknowledged the letter. Later I heard from one of our men that a Western Union employe told him there would soon be no Postal employes and he had better 'get on the band-wagon' and join the organization. I wrote that, too, to the Postmaster General, but got no answer."

The witness charged that a "horde of Western Union secret service men" had been going through Postal offices, "sowing the seeds of fear among our men to break down their morale."

"The labor men tried to do the same thing when the wires were taken over. I mention here the Kenenkamp letters, recently offered in evidence," said Judge Lamar, who asked Mr. Reynolds if he had any proof that the Post Office Department was trying to "undermine" the Mackay companies.

"It's very hard to define, but I know what's in the men's minds, and my dismissal emphasized their fear," was the answer.

Duplicity, Lamar Asserts.

"Did you think," asked Judge Lamar, "you could continue your duplicity and continue in the service of the Government?"

Mr. Reynolds spoke of "underground" methods, and Judge Lamar hurried to characterize this allegation as "unjustified, unwarranted, and untrue." He said he knew what the Wire Committee had been doing, and that nothing such as Mr. Reynolds alleged had been done.

"Your conduct in regard to the letter you wrote, first suggesting changes and later protesting against aiding the Government, shows that the Post Office Department made no mistake in not consulting you," Solicitor Lamar declared.

Mr. Reynolds contended that to the Mackay companies was due pay, not alone for the physical value of the property, but for the good will. He reiterated the Postal's contention that the Western Union has received more in compensation from the Government than it earned last year.

On motion of Judge Moon, Judge Lamar, who was present all day, took up the questions, asking:

"You say you were dismissed Dec. 1 by the Postmaster General. Did you not talk with him before that and make recommendations?"

"I think I did the listening; he made a stump speech," answered Mr. Reynolds.

There was an altercation between witness and examiner in which some members took the side of Mr. Reynolds and some that of Judge Lamar, who later took the stand and who was asked by Representative Ayers of Massachusetts if the telegraph operators' strike impending last Summer had anything to do with the seizure of the wires. Judge Lamar said no.

"There is no basis for any charge that the Postmaster General had not kept faith with labor; he made no promises," said Judge Lamar later on in the day.

The Solicitor introduced a witness from the statistical department of the Interstate Commerce Commission to prove that the subsidiaries of the Mackay companies had sworn to their actual value, and not their "nominal" as Mr. Reynolds said yesterday. Mr. Reynolds stuck to his contention.

Would Drop Girl Bellhops Now.

CHICAGO, Jan. 22.—A movement to displace girl "bellhops" in hotels which employed them because of the war labor shortage was begun today by A. B. T. Moore, National Secretary of the Gideons. Acting on a resolution adopted at a recent meeting of the Executive Committee of the organization, Mr. Moore today addressed a letter to the American Hotel Men's Protective Association, pointing out that the necessity for intensive use of female help has passed and urging that the girl "buttons" be released from these positions, which, he said, subjects them to improper moral influences.

New Telephone Toll Rates

Effective January 21, 1919

In accordance with the order of the Postmaster General, dated December 13, 1918, new schedules of rates for telephone toll calls (to points outside the local service area) under which all toll calls throughout the United States are placed on a uniform basis, become effective 12:01 a. m., January 21, 1919.

Under these new schedules the "station to station" rate is the base rate upon which all rates for the various classes of service offered, are computed. This rate is determined by the air line distance between toll points and is computed, for the initial period, on the basis of 5c. for each 6 miles up to 24 miles and 5c. for each 8 miles beyond that distance.

For toll calls where the calling party does not specify a particular person to be reached at the called telephone, the "station to station" rate is charged. This method provides the cheapest and quickest form of telephone toll service.

"Station to station" calls must be made as far as possible by giving the telephone number of the called telephone. Where the number is not known and telephone directory information is not available, the number should be obtained from "Information," or if the called telephone is at a distant point, the name and address of the called subscriber should be given to the toll operator.

For toll calls where the calling party specifies a particular person to be reached at the called telephone and the connection is established and conversation held with that person, the "person to person" rate is charged. As this service requires a greater amount of operating effort, the rate for such calls is about one-fourth greater than the "station to station" rate. (Minimum "person to person" rate 20c.)

For toll calls on a "person to person" basis, where the calling party, in placing the call, designates a definite time at which he will talk and the conversation is held, the "appointment" rate is charged. As this service involves the making of the appointment in addition to the operating effort necessary for a "person to person" call, the "appointment" rate is about one-half greater than the "station to station" rate. (Minimum "appointment" rate 25c.)

For toll calls made on a "person to person" basis where messenger service is required to secure attendance of the designated person at the called telephone, the "messenger call" rate applies. This rate is the same as the "appointment" rate, plus any necessary charge for messenger service. (Minimum "messenger call" rate 25c.)

In connection with all toll calls other than those made on a "station to station" basis where the connection is established but the conversation is not held, because of any reason beyond the control of the telephone company a "report charge" is made equivalent to about one-fourth of the "station to station" rate. (Minimum "report charge" 10c., maximum $2.00.)

Reduced rates, applying only to calls made on a "station to station" basis are quoted for toll service between the hours of 8:30 p. m. and 4:30 a. m. The rate between 8:30 p. m. and 12 midnight is about one-half the "station to station" day rate, and between 12 midnight and 4:30 a. m. about one-fourth the "station to station" day rate. The minimum night rate is 25c. Where the "station to station" day rate is 25c. or less no reduction is made for night service.

For the purpose of applying reduced rates, for evening and night "station to station" service, the time of day at the calling point is used.

Day rates apply on all calls other than those made on a "station to station" basis, whether they are made during the day, evening, or night.

This does not change the rates for, or the handling of, calls within the local service area, or within the City of New York.

RUSSIAN ECONOMIC LEAGUE

The Russian Economic League, founded by Russian business men at present living in New York, learns from newspaper reports with deep feeling of anguish and regret of the proposal to admit to the Peace Conference as representatives of Russia the agents of the so-called Bolshevist "Government."

Such an act of unfriendliness towards all loyal and true to the Allies elements of the Russian people, can be explained in two ways only: either by a monstrous misunderstanding, or by an intentional unwillingness on the part of the authors of this proposal even in some future time to see Russia great again, united and free, instead of divided, weakened and deprived of significance and a worthy voice among the nations of the world.

The League indignantly rejects the thought even of the possibility of this last explanation being the true one and can only adhere to the first one, namely an astounding ignorance of the world's public opinion as to the real nature of Russian Bolshevism.

The League finds it necessary first of all to point out the significant fact that all such persons as come forward with praise to Bolshevist ideas, invariably start with the emphatic assurance that they themselves are not Bolsheviks.

This phenomena of course has its roots either in the desire to emphasize their supposed disinterestedness or in the tacit avowal of exceptional baseness combined with that Bolshevism which for other reasons the advocates of Bolshevism are eager to exculpate and to exalt.

In Bolshevism it is necessary to distinguish two different sides; firstly, phraseology and secondly, an indescribably abominable practice.

There is no denying the exceptional talents of the leaders of Bolshevism in phraseology. Having been for scores of years put aside from practical work by the Russian Imperial Government, the Russian revolutionary workers have to an extraordinary degree developed their faculties in the use of speech.

The building up of theoretical schemes of universal happiness on earth, although these schemes absolutely disagree with the real conditions of life and actually contradict them, being at the same time, however, of extraordinary beauty and enticement, is no doubt one of the foremost qualities of the Russian Bolshevik theorists.

It cannot be denied that some of them believe in the utopia they themselves have created. Even more, their almost religious belief in their own doctrines has led them into the abyss of moral degradation, in which they have fallen, dragging down with them our entire great country.

The trouble was, when they reached a position making it practically possible for them to realize their ideals, they encountered the fact that actually all the educated classes in Russia were in the camp of their adversaries.

They, however, did not for a moment doubt the righteousness of their theoretical inventions and did not hesitate to quiet their conscience with the accusation of the Russian intelligent classes, in what they said was egotism of class and to begin to make Russia happy on the Bolshevist plan, against the will of the majority.

This first deal with conscience was the beginning of the moral downfall of Bolshevism.

Encountering the firm refusal of the educated class of Russia to abet communistic experimentalizing, they could do nothing else, but begin speculating on the very lowest instincts of the population, and to seek the support of the scum of the people, of everything morally weak, or even openly criminal.

In fact the ranks of Bolshevism and its camouflage, the Soviets, did not only include in corpore the whole of the so-called "black hundred" and the hideous agents of political research, but all such people as had an irresistible desire for a fat living without the corresponding work and talents, all who had long ago lost their conscience.

Among this gang, composed of the scum of human society, the Bolshevist theorists entirely disappear. It is left to them to write fly leafs, which are styled decrees of the Russian Government, but which are put into practice only inasmuch as they serve to sanctify the beastly appetites of the Bolshevist masses.

This literature of decrees, as well as the diplomatic overtures of the Bolsheviks serve only for catching the simple minded foreigners who cannot grasp the idea that anybody could go so far in prostituting human thoughts and words as is done by the Bolshevik leaders.

The practical work of the Bolsheviks, as it appears in Russia, is done not by them but by more "businesslike" elements of the Bolshevist party.

The theorists bluff the world with the highness of their ideals and the practitioners in the meantime organize the All-Russian gangs of thieves and robbers.

The theorists in their irresistible thirst for power try to build the ideological fundament under the destructive work they do in order to satisfy their political ambitions and the practitioners under the banging of highly socialistic and "democratic" watch words build up from their lines a new class of bourgeoisie only one having for basis of its riches not labor and talent, but the most openfaced robbery.

There is some reason for the singular new "sport on sables," which has spread in places where the Bolshevist Government has been liquidated. The population of these places makes a regular occupation of systematic shooting of the fleeing Bolsheviks, explaining this sport by the words that it is more profitable to kill a Bolshevik than a sable, as unfailingly he has on his person not less than 10,000 to 20,000 roubles and sometimes much more.

The public opinion of the world, fascinated as it is by the revolutionary phraseology of the Bolshevist theorists, is not inclined to heed the lessons of history. The phenomenon of Bolshevism, such as it really is and not such as it is depicted by the theorists, is not new to the world. Towards the end of the French revolution and before the coming of Napoleon, France was likewise infected by gangs of robbers and these gangs also hid themselves behind the banners of beautified politics. The only difference is that the French Bolsheviks did not have talented organizers uniting their forces and justifying in theory robbery and violence. France brought forth not a Trotsky but a Napoleon.

In spite of all the high flowing revolutionary phrases or rather under their roar, the Russian people have been so much "liberated" from all rights, not only political ones, but the very elementary human rights, that with good reason they begin to recall to memory even the Czar's regime as something that is worthy of envy and regret, as a lost paradise.

It needs only a slight impulse to see Russia drop back into the most violent reaction.

The Russian Economic League cannot of course make so light of historical events as to satisfy itself with an explanation that a licentious mob composed of the scum of the town populations has found leaders and ideologists full of temper and talent.

There can be no denial that the causes of sympathies for Bolshevism root much deeper than this in the great mistakes and even crimes of the bourgeois order of things, (not being, however, connected with the nature of it) in its lack of care for the lower classes, and finally in the cruel sufferings brought on by the war in the perversion of human psychology, in the taste for atrocities raised by the war in the masses and, in their belief, in the efficacy of violent methods.

The masses have been attracted to Bolshevism as the representative of the most radical turn of human thought, hoping to escape from the distressing reality into the realm of ultra-revolutionary dreams.

There is no doubt, however, that the happiness of humanity cannot be attained by idling and destroying, but only by constructive activity, by incentives to and development of labor, talents, creative genius and initiative.

The Russian Economic League steadfastly keeps in remembrance the promise of President Wilson to stand by Russia.

Awaiting when and how this help will take form, the Russian Economic League cannot but loudly give expression to its sentiment that it could not even imagine that help to Russia could take the form of admitting the theorists of Bolshevism to the world's tribune, from which to preach their corrupting lies, and of allowing the practitioners of Bolshevism "a breathing space" for the further strengthening of their "organization."

The Russian Economic League cannot forget that as attested by the most authoritative observers of Russian life, who personally took part in the heroic struggle with the Bolsheviks and the Germans, a military force of ten to twenty thousand disciplined and suitably provided men would have sufficed to take Moscow last summer, and that the same object now requires over 150,000 men.

The Russian Economic League considers it its civic duty to the Allies once more to remind them of the handwriting on the wall: Russian Bolshevism is a danger to the civilization of the world.

The experience of the Russian political parties who tried to treat Bolshevism as a certain kind of honest political creed, which can be made compromises with and can be opposed by parliamentary means, has, in the opinion of the Russian Economic League, shown only too clearly by the tragic end of the Russian Empire that Bolshevism cannot exist at the same time as civilization and democratic ideals.

For Russia the last days are nearing when the help of the world's democracies may still be able to save for her the idea of democracy.

Russia, by the efforts of the Bolsheviks, is already brought to the threshold of the most sweeping reaction, and, following upon this, of such international combinations, which will essentially oppose and menace the interests of really democratic nations.

Brig. Gen. Benjamin A. Poore, 7th Infantry Brigade for repeated acts of extraordinary heroism at Bois de Septsarges, on Sept. 27, and at Bois de Fays, on Oct. 11. At Bois de Septsarges on Sept. 27 he personally re-formed his disorganized troops, who were falling back through lack of command and because of severe casualties. Under heavy fire he led them to the lines and presented an unbroken front to the enemy. Again, on Oct. 11, in the region of Bois de Fays, he gathered together troops who were taking refuge from hostile fire and turned them over to the support commander. Home address, Mrs. B. A. Poore, 128 East Moorehead Street, Charlotte, N. C.

Capt. Bradford Ellsworth, 306th Infantry; for extraordinary heroism in action near La Besace, on Nov. 5. He displayed great courage by leading a mounted reconnaissance patrol a kilometer in advance of our lines, developed the enemy's line by drawing fire from his machine guns, and remained under this heavy machine-gun fire until the emplacements had been located. Home address, Mrs. Juliet Innes Ellsworth, wife, 145 East Fifty-second Street, New York, N. Y.

Sergt. William Mohrman, Headquarters Company, 307th Infantry; for extraordinary heroism in action near St. Pierremont, on Nov. 4. After passing through a heavily bombarded area Sergeant Mohrman learned that a soldier of his platoon had been wounded and had fallen in the shelled area. He at once volunteered, and went back for him, assisted in bringing him to a place of safety, and later helped to carry him through another shelled area to the first-aid station. Home address, John Mohrman, 170 Chauncey Street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Sergt. Abraham Belefant, Headquarters Company, 307th Infantry; for extraordinary heroism in action near St. Pierremont, Nov. 4. Home address, Mrs. Mary Belefant, mother, 511 Willoughby Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.

FRANK BAKER NOT UNTRUE TO YANKS

New York Third Baseman Has Not Signed with Upland in Outlaw League.

PLANS FOR TRAINING TRIP

Manager Huggins Hopes to Arrange Exhibition Games with Brooklyn—Deals Pending.

Manager Miller Huggins of the Yankees received good news yesterday when he learned that Home Run Baker had not signed a contract to play with the Delaware outlaw league. Huggins's informant talked with Baker yesterday, and said the player denied the yarn that he had signed to play with the Upland Club. In the talk which Huggins had with Baker a few weeks ago the third baseman told him that he would take no definite action without first consulting the New York Club.

While Baker's big contract with the Yankees expired last season, it is believed that the player and club will get together on a new contract which will be satisfactory to both parties. Baker led the Yankees at the bat last season, and his hitting strength would be a big loss to the team. Huggins expects to hear from the player in a few days, and he feels certain that the home run slugger will be with the club when it goes South in March.

Manager Huggins talked over the plans for the training trip yesterday, and he will gather his players at Jacksonville, Fla., about March 24. His large staff of twenty-six pitchers will not report before the other players, for Huggins has decided that there is little to be gained by getting the hurlers at work before the other members of the squad.

The deal between the Yanks and Cleveland is still pending and something may develop to swing the trade whereby outfielder Bobby Roth will come to New York. Huggins has offered either pitcher Allan Russell or Ray Fisher and an outfielder, but Manager Fohl seems to want nothing less than one of the pitchers that Huggins is anxious to keep.

Huggins expects to do some wholesale weeding out of players at the Jacksonville camp, for he has more players than he can ever hope to use. He is in a position to furnish other clubs with promising young players, and before the club comes North he expects to be able to trade some of them for more seasoned material.

Manager Huggins said yesterday that he was not in favor of making any long jumps on the trip home. As Brooklyn has practically decided to train in Florida, the Yankees will play some exhibition games with the Dodgers in Southern cities. It is not certain whether the usual series between the Yanks and Dodgers will be played next Spring as Brooklyn will have to open the preliminary National League season in Boston on Patriots' Day, April 19. The Yanks will book games in several of the Southern cities and take the trip homeward by easy stages.

Dean Academy, at Franklin, Mass., is going to hold memorial exercises on Feb. 21 for former students who made the supreme sacrifice in the war. One of these is Captain Eddie Grant, formerly third baseman of the Giants. The Academy authorities have asked the New York Club to send representatives to take part in the exercises.

Secretary John B. Foster announced yesterday that Captain William Harrigan, who was with Captain Grant in the Argonne Forest when he was killed, would make one of the addresses, while the club will also send one of its players to talk on Grant's baseball career. Manager McGraw is also going to send a representative to the National League that some sort of a memorial be erected at the Polo Grounds for Captain Grant.

Ban Johnson, President of the American League, was in Washington yesterday in connection with his efforts to get baseball players out of the army in time for the Spring training and preparation for the coming season. He took with him a list of players, and War Department officials undertook to locate the men for him in order that the clubs might arrange to have them file applications for discharge.

Mr. Johnson conferred with General March, Chief of Staff. So far as known, there will be no change in the policy of the department not to issue any special order in favor of baseball players, but to treat them as all other soldiers are treated and leave it to their immediate commanders to pass upon their applications for discharge. Since the league players have their places awaiting them, however, they fall within the class of soldiers commanding officers have been authorized to discharge without delay where military efficiency would not be injured by that action.

The Cleveland Club will train in New Orleans again this Spring. Members of the Indians will probably go South in two squads, Manager Fohl leaving with his pitchers before the other players. No exhibition games will be played on the way North, it was announced. After a month's training the team will leave New Orleans about April 20, going direct to Detroit for the opening game April 28.

Tim Hendryx, outfielder, and Ray Friday, pitcher, were released yesterday by the St. Louis Browns to the Louisville American Association Club. Hendryx went to the Browns last season from the Yankees. Friday was with the Mobile Club last year.

NAVY PASSERS WIN AGAIN.

Annapolis Takes Eleventh Straight Game in Beating Georgetown.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 22.—Georgetown surprised the midshipmen this afternoon with their aggressiveness and good passing and the Navy lads had the greatest difficulty in winning 22 to 13. It was the eleventh straight victory for the local five. The midshipmen entered the game with Lewis and Deringer, two of their best, on the bench.

After Georgetown got the jump and scored five points, the full strength was marshaled and the midshipmen gradually caught up, the half ending 11 to 8 in their favor. The game was a rough one and two midshipmen and two Georgetown players were banished.

Cochran, with a brilliant display of form, completed his string in fourteen innings, making an average of 33 2-14, with high runs of 103 and 95. HELLUM GOES TO NORWAY.

Pentathlon Winner Came Here to Learn Our Athletic Methods.

John Hellum, former Pastime A. C. all-around athlete, has left this country for his home in Norway. Hellum sailed Tuesday on the Scandinavian-American Line steamship Oscar II. The departure of the former Pastime A. C. athlete means his retirement from amateur track and field competition. Hellum, upon arrival in Norway, will take up a position of Government instructor in athletics.

Hellum was sent here by the Norwegian Government and the Pastime A. C. expressly for the purpose of studying American methods of athletic training. Part of this training course included Hellum's active participation in American competition to familiarize himself with conditions. It was originally planned to have Hellum attend Columbia University and Yale. The Norwegian star did put in a period of studying at Columbia, but was compelled to forego his intended visit to Yale.

Hellum arrived in this country Dec. 27, 1917. He won the pentathlon championship, the metropolitan senior discus throwing title, and finished fourth in the senior national javelin throwing competition. These performances were the outstanding lights in the Norwegian star's local athletic career. The pentathlon title was gained by Hellum Aug. 18 at Celtic Park. Against a field of ten rivals Hellum returned the low-winning score of 13 points for the five events which made up the test.

HOLLYWOOD FIVE UNDER BAN

Registration Brings Charges of Professionalism Against Them.

E. Wetmore Kingsley of the Hollywood Inn A. A. was cited yesterday to appear before the Metropolitan A. A. U. Registration Committee at its next meeting to answer charges of sponsoring a professional basket ball team in the Hollywood Inn A. A. The Registration Committee at a special meeting yesterday took this action on evidence in its possession alleging that the Hollywood Inn quintet played games with unsanctioned teams under the name of the Yonkers Stars on Sundays, and on week days the team competed under the club name.

MANHATTAN TEAM VICTOR.

Brooklyn Collegians Defeated in One-Sided Game, 43 to 13.

Manhattan College's basket ball team scored an easy victory over the St. John's College of Brooklyn five last night in a one-sided game on the De La Salle Institute Court. The score was 43 to 13.

The Manhattan five held the lead almost from the start and with accurate shooting and clever passing easily outclassed the Brooklyn collegians. At the end of the first half the Manhattan lads were leading by 22 to 4.

Van Tassel Wins Billiard Game.

H. Van Tassel scored a close victory over William Blumenthal last night in the A. A. B. A. three-cushioned carrom billiard tournament at Thum's Academy, Thirty-first Street and Broadway. The score was 35 to 33. Van Tassel finished his string in sixty-four innings and had a high run of five. Blumenthal made a cluster of eight markers in his fifty-third inning.

WHITE OWLS CLINCH CUP IN POLO CLASH

Defeat Royal Air Force Team in Well-Fought Battle at Durland's Academy.

STANDING OF THE TEAMS.	Won.	Lost.	P.C.
White Owls	4	0	1.000
Royal A. F.	4	1	.800
Squadron A	1	2	.333
Meadowsirks	1	2	.333
Rovers	0	2	.000
Foxhunters	0	3	.000

The White Owls polo trio clinched the Victory Cup last night in the tournament which has been progressing at Durland's Riding Academy, when they defeated the Royal Air Force team by a score of 13½ goals to 8. The contest was one of the most spectacular of the tournament, and was keenly contested. This victory gives the White Owls a slate of four victories in as many games played. The Royal Air Force team has won four games and lost one.

The Canadian players conceded a handicap of five goals to their rivals, and it was this, with penalties for fouls in the first period, which caused the R. A. F. downfall. The White Owls, led by M. Wilder at No. 2, played a dashing game and combined good use of the stick with an unusually clever display of horsemanship.

The form displayed by the Royal Air Force was not up to the standard of their previous matches, and this also played a part in the defeat. M. Baker, at back, was off form, so that Archie Kinney, the sterling Canadian player, had to divide his attention between covering Baker's position and scoring goals for his team. At that he was successful, for he accounted for six of his team's nine goals. His pony also got a marker when he kicked the ball into the goal in the second period.

Wilder accounted for five goals, and led most of his team's charges against the opposition.

The lineups:

WHITE OWLS. (13½.)	R. A. F. (8.)
No. 1—H. Wynn.	No. 1—J. Hanley.
No. 2—M. Wilder.	No. 2—A. Kinney.
Back—O. Coleman.	Back—M. Baker.

Handicaps—R. A. F., 14; White Owls, 9. Goals—Hanley, (2.) Kinney, (6.) Kinney's pony, Winn, Wilder, (5.) Coleman, (3.) Foul penalties—Baker one-half point; Henley, one-half point; Coleman, one-half point. Field referee—C. Sherman. Sidelines referee—Dr. Blackwell and Earl Hopping. Timekeeper—P. Chadwick. Time of periods—Ten minutes.

COLUMBIA 'VARSITY DINED.

Coach Dawson and Football Players Guests of Columbia Club.

Fred Dawson and the Columbia S. A. T. C. 'Varsity football team which won six of seven games played last Fall, were guests at a dinner held in their honor at the Columbia University Club last night. There were present at the dinner, in addition to members of the team, Levering Tyson, Graduate Manager of Athletics; Charles Halsted Mapes, Chairman of the Columbia Committee on Athletics, and a number of other prominent graduates.

Plans for next season were discussed, and it was made known that the schedule would be much the same as the one which had been prepared for the 1918 'Varsity eleven, but which had to be canceled when the S. A. T. C. took charge of sports. It was also announced that the 1919 season would be brought to an end by a game with Brown of some other eleven of equal rank.

SWIMMING DATES NAMED.

Pennsylvania Clubs Get Four Competitions.

The distribution of ten additional national swimming championship races was announced yesterday by Frederick W. Rubien, Secretary-Treasurer of the A. A. U. Four of the competitions go to clubs in Pennsylvania. The Pittsburgh A. C. will hold the 100-yard free style swim Feb. 21; the Philadelphia Turngemeinde will promote the 100-yard free style swim for women March 8; the Pittsburgh Aquatic Club will conduct the plunge for distance March 26, and the United Labor League, Pittsburgh, will hold the half-mile swim Sept. 1.

Two races, the 50-yard free style swim and the 200-yard breast stroke swim, will be held under the auspices of the Chicago A. A. Feb. 19. The Detroit A. C. on March 29 will promote the 220-yard free style swim, and the 100-yard back stroke swim and the long-distance championship race will be held under the auspices of the Riverton Yacht Club, Riverton, N. J., in the Delaware River, Aug. 16.

Patrolman Volberg Is Winner.

Patrolman H. Volberg scored his second victory over his brother-officer, J. Fogler, yesterday in the 200 points pocket billiards match being decided at Lawler Brothers' Academy in Brooklyn. The score was 50 to 27. This success gives Patrolman Volberg an advantage of 100 to 73 in the total score. The match is to decide the championship of the One Hundred and Fifty-fourth Precinct, Brooklyn.

Rutgers Place Five Wins.

Rutgers Place Gymnasium's basket ball team defeated the St. Anselm's A. C. last night in the Metropolitan A. A. 145-pound championship basket ball tournament by the score of 52 to 15. The contest was played at St. Anselm's A. C.

BIRDS FOR FRENCH FARMS.

Campaign at Poultry Show to Send Stock to Devastated Land.

A campaign to supply poultry to the farmers in devastated France was launched at the Poultry Show at Madison Square Garden yesterday. The committee in charge hopes to enlist the interest of fanciers to such an extent that the American Committee on Devastated France will be able to furnish a sufficient number of young poultry until the French farmer can again become self-sustaining.

The war has completely eliminated the French cottage breeds, Houdans, Creve Cocurs, La Fleche, and Faverolles. These are the varieties most favored, and the committee will make a special endeavor to put forward the nearest breeding stock to France. There is an exhibit of the best and purest varieties of the French breeds at the show, and, while all standard-bred poultry will be welcome in the campaign, the committee will try first of all to send breeding pens of the distinctively French varieties.

A victory for amateur fanciers was scored at the show last night, when J. Robinson Beard of this city won the blue ribbon for the best display pen of Buff Orpingtons, consisting of a cock and four hens. They were raised at his Lucknow Farm, at Stamford.

The Plymouth Rocks and Rhode Island Reds, the two prominent American breeds, are attracting considerable attention. The largest exhibitor of barred Plymouth Rocks are E. B. Thompson of Amenia, N. Y., and Bradley Bros., of Lee, Mass. Mr. Thompson has been an exhibitor at every show since the last thirty years and has won the highest honors in the breed for twenty-seven years.

The largest sale recorded yesterday was made by M. F. Delano of Vineyard Haven, Mass., who sold a single-comb White Leghorn to F. L. Sewell for $500.

August de Corte, who has charge of the portable war pigeon coop, released several of the homers yesterday, and, despite all the distracting noises in the Garden, they all returned to the wagon left. The wagon is similar to those used in France during the war.

LANGDON IS WINNER IN BILLIARD MATCH

Player Defeats Foss in Class C Tournament at Lawlor's Academy.

J. R. Langdon and Humboldt Foss played one of the longest games of the tournament last night in the continuation of play in the N. A. A. B. P. National Class C 18.2 balkline billiard championship tournament at Lawler Brothers' Academy in Brooklyn. After seventy-three innings, Langdon won by a score of 150 to 129.

Langdon held the lead practically all the way and Foss seldom came within dangerous reach of his rival. The latter seemed content to play safely at all stages of the contest. This condition accounted for the length of the match. Langdon found it difficult to score consistently with the unfavorable spread which Foss invariably left him. Foss, however, failed to take advantage of many seemingly favorable layouts which were presented frequently when Langdon missed.

Two games were scheduled for the closing play in the preliminary round. J. Neustadt and Ardie Wickers were to have been opponents in the other contest. This match was abandoned because of the illness of Wickers. It is planned to play the game tomorrow night. Unless the unusual occurs, Langdon and Neustadt will be among those to oppose Ferdinand A. Unger, champion, in the final round for the title.

The score by innings:

J. R. Langdon—	0	6	0	0	0	1	2	5	8	2	3	0	4	0	4	0
	1	1	0	7	0	1	3	0	0	0	4	0	1	2	1	2	1	3	0	0	8	0

Dalton was playing for 100 points. Blaisdell finished his string in forty-two innings, for an average of 3 4-42, and had a high run of 12. Dalton's average was 2 18-41, and he had a high run of 12.

The lineup:

Franklin. (31.)	Position.	Cutler. (21.)

CUT YOUR SHOE BILLS WITH NEOLIN SOLES

"The answer to the problem of shoe wear lies in the use of Neolin Soles" so says H. L. Evans of Steubenville, Ohio.

"For five months," says Mr. Evans, "I have been wearing the same pair of Neolin-soled shoes at my work at the La Belle Iron Works and they are good for two months more wear. As my work takes me to all parts of the mill daily where I have to walk over cinders, slag, etc., it is simply out of the question to buy anything else to take the place of Neolin Soles."

You too—and your whole family—will find Neolin-soled shoes wear long and so save money. You can get them in the styles you like at almost any good shoe store. And any repairman will re-sole your worn shoes with Neolin Soles—scientifically made to be durable, comfortable and waterproof. RAID SPECULATORS UNDER NEW LAW

Thirty-two Arrests Made, and Eleven Men Held in Court for Examination.

TYSONS HAD NO LICENSE

Most of Prisoners Clerks in Their Offices — Profiteering to be Taken Up Next.

The first attempt by the District Attorney's office to enforce the new city ordinance intended to regulate theatre ticket speculation was made yesterday afternoon by Assistant District Attorney Kilroe. With the aid of three Police Inspectors and sixty detectives thirty-two sellers in Broadway offices and at other points in the theatre districts were arrested. Eleven of the prisoners were held in $300 bail each in the West Side, Yorkville, and Jefferson Market Courts for examination on Tuesday.

All the others released were clerks or sellers in the twenty-one hotel offices of the Tyson Company, Mr. Kilroe said, and they were freed after an officer of the Agency office, 1,482 Broadway had announced the immediate application would be made for a license. A single theatre ticket license permits an agency to operate any number of separate selling booths or sales offices.

The arrests were made in three inspection districts, commanded by Police Inspectors Dominick Henry, James S. Bolan, and Frank J. Morris, all of whom accompanied Mr. Kilroe in his search for licensed and unlicensed agencies along Broadway and at all the principal hotels. According to Mr. Kilroe the only resistance met with occurred at the agency of Joseph Le Blang at Broadway and Forty-third Streets.

"A detective seized a clerk there for the alleged sale of tickets without a license, and another clerk sought to take the prisoner from the officer, who hit the meddler and tumbled him beneath a counter. He was one of the eleven arrested," said Mr. Kilroe.

The question of profiteering, of which the District Attorney has received several complaints, was not considered in the raids yesterday, but this feature of the ordinance will be taken up later. The maximum penalties provided in the ordinance are $500 fine and six months' imprisonment or both. The ordinance has been in effect since Dec 28. District Attorney Swann said:

"We believe public opinion approves and appreciates the ordinance designed for the protection of amusement seekers, and we shall enforce it by continual arrests, if necessary. We have no doubt of the authority of the Aldermen to enact the measure, and believe the city authorities have power not only to demand the license fee of $250, but to impose a prohibitive license fee if it were desired—say $2,000 or more."

Louis Marshall, who was retained as attorney for the ticket agencies, will defend the accused men and he intimated that a writ of habeas corpus may be applied for to test the validity of the ordinance in the Court of Appeals. Mr. Marshall holds the measure is unconstitutional and advised that the license requirement be ignored. However, some seven or more of the large agencies have obtained licenses.

"Manon Lescaut" Sung Again.

Puccini's "Manon Lescaut" was repeated at the Metropolitan last evening, with Mme. Alda in the name part, Mr. Martinelli as Hero, Messrs. De Luca, De Segurola, and others. Mr. Papi conducting. A dress rehearsal was held earlier in the day for tomorrow's production of "La Reine Fiammette," the first opera by Xavier Leroux to reach New York, soon to be followed by the Chicago production here of another of his works, "Le Chemineau."

Mr. Monteux was indisposed yesterday, and Mr. Bamboschak directed the rehearsal, with Mr. Lazzari and others. Mme. Farrar singing the title rôle of Fiammetta, which was acted in Catulle Mendes's play some years ago by Miss Julia Marlowe.

Alfred Cortot Gives Last Recital.

Alfred Cortot, the French pianist, gave his last recital here for the Society of Friends of Music yesterday afternoon in Aeolian Hall, having remained some days after the departing Paris Orchestra, with which he came to America last Fall. M. Cortot was heard in Schumann's posthumous "Etudes Symphoniques," a theme and five variations, not the longer and familiar series. He played Liszt's sonata dedicated to Schumann, besides pieces by Schubert, Weber, Mendelssohn, and four of the pianist's countrymen—Ravel, Faure, Debussy, and Chabrier.

Ned Wayburn, the stage director, will leave for Paris in about two weeks to produce an entertainment along the lines of the Ziegfeld Midnight Frolic.

ROME HAILS OUR SAILORS.

200 of Them Entertained and Cheered in the Streets.

ROME, Jan. 21.—A contingent of 200 American sailors arrived here today and was most enthusiastically received at the station.

The Italian Government has undertaken to put a special train at the Americans' disposal during their stay here for the purpose of taking them to and fro between this city and Civita Vecchia, the seaport of Rome. Rome is so crowded that it is impossible to find accommodations for the men here at night.

The Minister of the Navy gave a luncheon for the American officers today, while American and Italian sailors lunched together at another restaurant. Wherever the American bluejackets appeared during the day they were heartily cheered by the population.

Either of These Two
will be delivered to you for a moderate down payment, the balance $15 Monthly

THE instrument shown at the left is the famous Style 700 Aeolian-Vocalion, price $285. Many people consider this the most beautiful of any of the regular Upright Vocalion line. It has a pure, full tone, of great power and richness. Its volume may be beautifully modified in two ways; by the wonderful Graduola with which you may graduate the flow of melody as you will, or by the Volunome—an ingenious device for setting the Vocalion to play at "Piano," "Forte," etc., until a change in volume is desired.

The superior Vocalion Automatic Stop, the famous Vocalion Universal Tone Arm for playing all records, and eight finest quality record albums are included in the splendid equipment of this Vocalion.

Period Vocalions are all equipped with the Graduola, with the Universal Tone Arm, the Vocalion Automatic Stop, and in addition they contain a new and most convenient record filing device. In choosing any one of these Vocalions, you may feel confident that you are securing a phonograph of highest quality—superior in t

JUDGE MOON'S VIEWS ON TREASON.

Representative MOON of Tennessee plants his feet upon the solid rock of consistency and defies a sneering world. Granting the soundness of his views as to the Postmaster General's powers and his exercise of them, Judge MOON'S position is unassailable. He is Chairman of the House Committee on Post Office and Post Roads, he is unflinching in his championship of Mr. BURLESON, he believes that the control of telegraphs, telephones, and cables is rightly lodged with Mr. BURLESON, he is loyal to Mr. BURLESON. He stands by his guns and for his courage, at least, he is to be commended.

If it be once granted that a department officer, without limit and without restraint, may exercise war powers after the fighting has stopped, then resistance to that officer's authority becomes a serious matter. Mr. REYNOLDS, Vice President of the Postal Telegraph Cable Company, not standing in fear of Mr. BURLESON, had urged upon employes of the Postal system something perilously like obstruction to the plan of Federal control. In testifying at the hearing given upon Judge MOON'S bill to extend the period of control over telegraphs and telephones, Mr. REYNOLDS admitted that he was dismissed because of this act of insubordination. "Because you were treasonable?" asked Judge MOON. To that remark Mr. REYNOLDS objected. "You were disloyal to Mr. BURLESON," insisted Judge MOON. How can that be denied? Mr. BURLESON is sovereign of the wires. Mr. REYNOLDS impudently defied him. Obviously, this was lese-majesté, a grievous lesion was inflicted in and upon the august person of the sovereign by the insurrectionary REYNOLDS.

In taking the view that this was "treasonable," Judge MOON appears to have the distinguished support of CHARLES E. HUGHES, late Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States. In his address to the New York State Bar Association the other day, Mr. HUGHES said that "in in- "creasing measure we are ruled not "by Congress, nor by the Executive, "nor by State Legislatures, nor by "Governors, but by department offi- "cials, whose personal will, whose "favor or disfavor measures for prac- "tical purposes the rights of Amer- "ican citizens." But here is the point:

Disobedience to the bureaucrat is a crime, and a citizen prefers to obey rather than chance the disgrace of an indictment. For him due process of law is largely an unreality, for reputation is too dear to enable him to risk the displeasure of the bureau chief or even of a subordinate who can enforce his will by the fact of a criminal charge.

It is unfortunate for Mr. REYNOLDS that these considerations did not occur to his mind in time to save him. He sinned against authority, the axe fell, and now Judge MOON intimates that he is guilty of treason and disloyalty.

It is a solemn thought that a railroad passenger who thoughtlessly opens or closes a car window may bring down upon himself an accusation of giving aid and comfort to the enemy, because of some regulation issued by authority of the Director General, of which he was ignorant. A like disgrace may be incurred by the heedless infraction of some telephone or telegraph regulation issued from sovereign authority. It is because of these risks, and of a thousand inconveniences, that the people of the United States are fervently praying that the war and the legal fiction of its continuance may be brought to an end promptly by the signing of the Treaty of Peace.

Department officers continue to exercise war powers, to ask for an extension of the period of their exercise, long after the fighting has ceased. Persons of a suspicious temper even intimate that these powers are exercised, not because of any war emergency, but because of the deliberate purpose of certain department officials permanently to extend Federal control over railroads and the wires. That suspicion may be treason. It has been popularly supposed that there are limits to the executive power. It has been assumed, even, that the courts would define those limits, that they would protect citizens and their property against acts beyond the authority of department officials under war or other legislation. The cables were seized after the war had ended, in fact but not in law, on the plea that it was necessary that the Government should have quick and unimpeded communication with Paris during the sessions of the Peace Conference. Objection was made that the seizure of the Pacific cables could hardly be justified by that plea. Suits were brought to determine the issues involved in the exercise of Federal authority in that manner, but as Congress had granted very broad powers to the Executive, and as the war in the legal sense had not yet ended, the decision of the Federal Court in this city that the case could not be considered justiciable was not unexpected. The courts, as everybody knows, do not concern themselves with the exercise of the executive power unless it plainly transcends statutory or Constitutional authority. But somewhere there are limits, and as Mr. HUGHES remarked in his address before the Bar Association, the courts of justice "should be keen to detect the step- "ping over the line of official au- "thority." The abuse of power is "the most vicious wrong in democ- racy," and the only protection "is to be found in courts of justice." States as well as individuals have begun to take notice of the somewhat startling theories of the scope of their powers entertained by department officials.

THE IRISH PARLIAMENT.

It is one of BERNARD SHAW'S theories, or statements of fact, as disputable and certain, no doubt, as most other facts, that the Englishman is a dreamer, the Irishman severely logical and practical. An Irishman like Mr. GEORGE RUSSELL, a noble poet and prose writer, an effective dreamer, a mystic, and a master of agriculture, co-operation and one knows not what else, might represent both nationalities. Something of artistry, of humor and the want of it, of simplicity in the best sense, of earnestness, and of ardor is to be expected of all successors of the Tuatha de Danaan.

These characteristics were not missing from the meeting of the twenty-five Sinn Fein members of the British House of Commons, who have organized the Irish Parliament at Dublin. They call it "Dail Eireann," in that Irish language which was the medium of so ancient and memorable a literature, which is venerated even by revivers of it who, like WILLIAM BUTLER YEATS, can't read it, and of which, in translation, the reader who has no Irish can only complain that, in the case of proper names at least, its pronunciation is mighty hard.

Mr. CHARLES BURGESS, Gaelicized as CATHAL BRUGHA, was Speaker of this Irish Parliament. Nothing is wholesomer than laughter, and the audience, mostly women and children, can't have been too much refreshed by the real Irish speeches, the Irish declaration of independence, and address to free nations. The greatest reverence is due to antiquity, yet language revivals demand patience, even of the patriot. An All-Indian Parliament listening to addresses in Sanscrit, a German Parliament whose proceedings were in Old Gothic, a New England Parliament in Algonquin or Hassanamisittese, would be improving and impressive, but not too blithe. Some of the members of the Irish Parliament had trouble in reading their Irish manuscript speeches. All the more credit to them and to their hearers.

Descent was made to En_h, however, and the two main documents were translated into English and French. It seems a little strange that these friends of the Irish Renaissance forgot their Armorican cousins. Copies might well have been made in Breton.

Of three delegates to present the Irish cause to the Peace Conference two are in jail for the moment. The third will have to apply in English to the British Government for a passport. "The nation of Ireland," begins the address to the free nations, "having her national independence." Right before the eyes and ears of the Government these declarations of independence are made. These twenty-five men, almost all young and hopeful, chosen to a Parliament in which they won't sit, start on paper a new "nation," though they and their imprisoned colleagues represent not more than a half of it, and for a different purpose. In Dublin Lord FRENCH and the Secretary for Ireland are not in the slightest degree disturbed. LLOYD GEORGE in Paris has several other things to look after. Both on the part of the Sinn Feiners and of the British Government, no more amiable and peaceful conduct could be wished.

BOLSHEVIST PROPAGANDA.

If one believes MAXIM LITVINOFF, late Bolshevist Ambassador in London, his Government has engaged in no propaganda in any foreign country but Germany. But there are excellent reasons for not believing Mr. LITVINOFF. He was expelled from London for engaging in propaganda against the existing British system. He says the charge was false, but several thousand people heard him address the labor conference at Nottingham with a plain exhortation to revolution; and there is good evidence that propaganda literature was sent out from his Embassy.

Detailed evidence is at hand as to Bolshevist propaganda in Switzerland, which was a year or two ago, and perhaps is still, to serve as a centre for agitation in Germany, Austria, France, and Italy. Just before he went back to Russia LENINE himself left a memorandum for his associates at Zimmerwald which, as summarized by the Journal de Genève, laid out a program for the Swiss Socialist and labor elements which was frankly revolutionary. It contained four main proposals: Struggle against the Swiss Federal Constitution with the object of centralising the State; denationalization, by close co-operation between Swiss and foreign proletarian groups and by facilitating rapid naturalization—a measure which at that time would have immensely forwarded the German plans for gaining economic control of Switzerland; unceasing struggle against the moderate and patriotic parties in Swiss socialism; and opposition to all measures for national defense.

This, to be sure, was LENINE as a private individual. But last Spring LENINE'S Government sent a legation to Switzerland, and, according to Swiss newspapers quoted by The New Europe, its head expressly promised the President not to engage in any revolutionary propaganda. Yet very soon the mission was doing propaganda work, both by interviews given by the Minister to the Socialist press and by literature and "news" emitted by his subordinates. There is evidence that this centre carried on the work of LENINE himself, which had included incitement to a proletarian revolution in France as well as agitation in Switzerland, and it also carried out his advice to the Zimmerwaldians and tried to make out of every manifestation of economic discontent an expression of proletarian revolutionary sentiment. So, early in November, the Swiss Government expelled the whole mission.

That some persons, either Russian Bolsheviki or sympathizers with the Bolsheviki, have carried on a strong pro-Bolshevist propaganda at the Peace Conference is evident from the accounts of what is going on there; correspondents and peace delegates appear to be favored with innumerable arguments and apologies for the Bolsheviki. The conference has finally been persuaded that it will be best to give a hearing to the Russian factions, Bolsheviki and all. The best informed friends of the Russian people will feel that this is a deplorable mistake. The Bolsheviki are not only irreconcilable enemies of human society, their leaders have been the paid spies and agents of Germany. It is a fresh betrayal of the Russian people to treat with them. But the Allies, chiefly, it appears, because of opposition at Washington, refused aid to the Russians ten months ago, when they might have put down the Bolsheviki and set Russia free. This is a late and weak attempt to correct that blunder.

DOCKS AND TUNNELS.

It does not fully express the significance of the New York-New Jersey tunnel to say that it is a proposal to unify the Port of New York. That is enough to justify it, or rather to make it imperative to build it. Beyond that joint interest of the two States most immediately concerned, and also beyond the interest of the nation in the port which it neglects scandalously, lies the specific interest of this city. The existing situation is that unless funds are found for harbor facilities the city will lose commerce for the lack of waterside accommodation. The nation ought to help, for it is a reproach that of the billion dollars of Federal appropriations for development of rivers and harbors less than 8 per cent. has come to the port which does 50 per cent. of the nation's foreign trade and supplies three-quarters of the customs collections.

The annexation of Manhattan to the continent is not a local improvement in any sense, but there would be local consequences of specific importance to it. If the vehicular tunnel were built, there would be less need for the forty-six piers now in use by the railways on this little island, and there would be an immediate sufficiency of accommodation for foreign commerce now diverted elsewhere because the city is unable to furnish the piers for which offers have been made. If there were a vehicular tunnel the New Jersey waterfront also would be released from the railway monopoly which prejudices New Jersey. There is not space enough to accommodate the railways between the Palisades and the river, and the railway terminals need many acres further inland. The preferable tunnel would be a railway tunnel, on the broad view of the question. The vehicular tunnel would be a great relief to the New York interest. It would be a substitute for drayage, at the expense of shippers instead of railways. The traffic would be greatly facilitated, but it would remain true that the cost of delivery across the river would equal or exceed the cost of carriage from midcontinent or overseas. The need is so great that consignees as well as shippers would be willing to assume it in despair of other relief, and the time is ripe for availing of their readiness, which may disappear when trade becomes quieter. It should be remembered that the through East and West business needs accommodation as much as the local traffic, and can only get it by great inland railway classification yards, which should separate the two classes of business and deliver the goods where they ought to go on the wheels which bring them to tidewater. The mere cost of breaking bulk for wagon delivery creates a problem as great as the lighterage problem, which has muddled the rate situation for years.

There is no prospect that the railways in their present anaemic condition can build freight tunnels as one road built passenger tunnels. Nor is there any prospect that the Federal Administration will help the railways in the matter. Therefore, there is no escape from welcoming the co-operation of New York and New Jersey in the building of the wagon tunnels. Twelve of the most representative and influential civic organizations have approved, and the only dissent has come from New Jersey. That State does not appreciate what it will receive, and overvalues what it will give. It even ungraciously suspects the motives of its partner State and wants a sectional referendum upon the question of unifying the port. There is danger that the New York vote, either by population or investment, would promote the unification of the port, but it is not a danger which New Jersey needs dread. There is equal representation upon the commission which has the matter in charge, and there is no reason to suppose that anything injurious to New Jersey can even be proposed, and still less be feared, from the malice or covetousness of New York. Tunnels run in both directions, and New Jersey travelers or freight will benefit more by access to Manhattan than Manhattan users of the tunnel will benefit by access to New Jersey.

PORTUGAL.

Of what is to come from the confused, explosive politics and parties of Portugal in the last nine years the seventh son of a seventh son born under Libra, and therefore of balanced judgment, shall make but vain guesses. The Monarchists, who are rising, or said to be, in the north, were mostly pro-German in the war, with the exception of the associates of Dom MANOEL in England. Portugal's ancient friendship and alliance with England forbid any long German success there, and if Dom MANOEL is really bent on a Lusitanian emprise he at least is a good friend of the Entente.

A certain vigor and violence, a remarkable power of intrigue, the spirit of dictatorship, however hidden by republican and democratic names, are characteristic of modern Portugal. If, with the fate of his father and elder brother in his mind, and Europe full of monarchs out of business like himself, Dom MANOEL really goes back to Portugal, he is a brave man who loves adventure, loves Portugal so well that he wants to be buried there as soon as possible.

SAILORS FOR GERMAN SHIPS.

According to the agreement reached at Treves last week, the German ships which are to carry troops to this country and Australia will take back food to Germany. All must be manned by British or American seamen. Germany's delegates in the brief conference asked that sailors of their own country be used. Their plea was rejected. The seamen's boycott appears to have been overlooked.

Nearly all the British seamen have signed a pledge which excludes them for seven years to come from any service in the interest of Germans, and this boycott movement has the support of the French sailors' organization. The leader of it, J. HAVELOCK WILSON, President of the International Seamen's Union, and his Executive Committee have called an international conference, to be held on Feb. 24, for the consideration of a resolution saying that seamen "will "not man any ship going to or coming "from an enemy country" until provision has been made for due compensation to the dependent relatives of those whose lives were taken by submarines. There were more than fifteen thousand British victims of the U-boats. He predicts that the resolution will be adopted "provid- "ing that no food shall go to Ger- "many" until the compensation is assured.

If the seamen stand by their pledges the movement of troops as well as the carrying of food may be delayed, for in many cases the same ship will be used for both kinds of service. The German ships in home ports are ready for sea work. An early announcement by the Peace Conference of its purpose to care for the dead sailors' dependents would promote effective and immediate use of them, if German seamen must be excluded.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A Promise Must Be Kept.

People in and out of Congress who are making such bitter moan over the prospect that the Government must pay $2.26 a bushel for wheat when the market price is likely to be about $1.85, feel a perfectly comprehensible grief, and one that is shared, probably, by everybody except the farmers who are going to get an extra billion or more for their crop. They, of course, view the situation with pleased equanimity.

Hard, however, as the bargain does seem, now, and hard as it undoubtedly is, the thought of not standing by its terms has not received expression from any quarter, and it should not. National faith is involved in keeping the contract, and even a suggestion to evade the Government's agreement would have deplorable consequences—possibly fatal consequences, perhaps, if ever there should arise in the future another emergency like the one that existed when the agreement was made. It was vital, then, to the world's safety and welfare, to be assured that the next wheat crop in this country would be large enough to make up for the difficulty or impossibility of getting adequate supplies for the Allies, their associates, and their friends in other lands. There was no failure here or anywhere else to recognise that fact, and the only question raised was, not as to fixing a minimum price for all American wheat, but as to the size of the price that should be fixed.

Criticism Queerly Reversed.

Even the fiercest of the orators now discussing the price of wheat have the grace to admit that the agreed price must be paid. Somehow or other, however, they must utilize for political purposes the general and natural reluctance to pay more than the market price for anything, and they have found what they think is a way to do it. Their naïve device is to attack the man whom, with some plausibility, they can attack as having had much to do with determining the amount every American farmer should get for every bushel of wheat he could and would raise.

They forget that, only a few months ago, every politician who had any regard at all for the farmer vote was denouncing that same man for insisting that $2.26 was a price quite enough to make wheat raising attractive, because profitable. They vehemently declared that amount insufficient to make the farmer confident of making both ends meet or to inspire him with either eagerness or willingness to risk planting a large acreage to a somewhat uncertain crop. The clamor, then, was for $2.50 a bushel, and when that was refused prophecies rang through both halls of Congress that our sturdy yeomanry were about to be ruined because of that same man's ignorance or malice.

At present the contention is that the country is to be robbed of a billion because he set the price too high! If Mr. HOOVER is well supplied with appreciation of the humorous, he may be only amused by this oscillation of opinion as to his judgment; if he isn't, his temper must be much tried.

A Warning Familiar in Sound.

As it will make no practical difference whether or not New York State ratifies the prohibition amendment—as the amendment, that is, will become a part of the Constitution, regardless of what New York does—there is some difficulty in understanding how the "wet" spokesmen at Albany managed to put so much fire into their orations. It was easy to see, however, that they used more fire than wisdom, especially in the case of those who substituted for argument based on facts an appeal to fear.

Prohibition, they declared with an almost convincing semblance of sincerity, would be followed by a Bolshevist revolution here, and then, they said, we'd be sorry for shutting up the distilleries and breweries that hitherto have guarded us from that awful fate!

Now, if these seemingly apprehensive persons really are afraid of such a result of prohibition, they are quite the most timid people in the United States, and they shouldn't be allowed as far away from home as Albany unless attended by nurse girls at least as competent as Orphant Annie to guard them from Black Things.

Their warnings recall what we used to hear would happen to us if, ignoring the opinions and will of our pro-German residents, the United States dared to join the Allies in fighting the Central Empires. As a matter of fact, just nothing happened—nothing, that is, except that many Americans of German birth or descent promptly volunteered to fight under their adopted country's flag, and a considerably greater number submitted to conscription with no less docility than their neighbors.

Prohibition will doubtless have its troublesome consequences, but neither a Bolshevist revolution nor a Bolshevist uprising will be one of them.

Another British Blunderer.

Prince FEISAL, son of King HUSSEIN, is a most disappointing person. His remarks, as reported by the ever-accurate Associated Press, contain not one trace of Oriental imagery—not one reminder of the Arabian Nights—not one indication that he is even trying to add something of picturesqueness and of the unfamiliar to the day's discussion.

He seems to be an entirely practical young man, with aspirations differing in no respect from his many fellow-fishers in the troubled waters the war has left, and for anything that appears in his talk he might have been born and raised, not in Medina, but in Paris, London, or even Trenton, N. J.

It's not that what the Prince says isn't sensible, intelligent, and commendable. It's that it isn't touched with the glamour of the East. Perhaps this is the fault, not of Prince FEISAL, but that of the British Colonel who has him in tow and presumably edits and possibly writes his speeches. If that is so, the British Colonel is either not wise enough to hold the place he does or else he is too wise. Somebody ought to give him some good advice as to what is expected of an Arabian Prince who really is a desert warrior and could talk like one if he were allowed to be himself.

"AND THERE IS NO PEACE!"

The god of love, the god of strife—
Twin brethren, they, and lords of all;
And, at the trumpet call of life,
They answer to one battle call.

The bowman, Cupid, armored Mars—
Eros and Ares—one in name,
They lead, as one, through life and wars,
For life and warfare are the same.

In bleeding heart and crimson hand
That show the quick blood of the race,
Their banners float in every land,
Whereof the oceans still hold trace.

The fertile seed of life they sow,
And water it with blood and tears;
By blood and tears the nations grow
Through all the unremembered years!

The hand shall not put up the sword
Until the beating pulses cease,
And, all its crimson banners lowered,
Life yields the victory to Peace!

M. B. BUHLER.

THE BOLSHEVIKI AND THEIR APOLOGISTS.

The Kind of "Order" We Have in Russia—The Force Necessary to Save the Country—Lloyd George's Suggestion.

BY GEORGE KENNAN.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A general and apparently concerted attempt is being made by radical Socialists in the United States to excite sympathy for the Russian Bolsheviki, on the ground that their Government is a new, untried, and peculiarly Russian form of democracy; that it has maintained order in Russia for a period of fourteen months; that it has the support of a majority of the people, and that the Russian masses ought not to be prevented, by foreign intervention, from trying out the theories in which they firmly believe. No one knows, it is said, what the real situation in Russia is; the alleged cruelties and atrocities of the Red Guard and the Extraordinary Commissions are probably exaggerations, if not inventions, and there is really no good reason why delegates from the Government of the Bolsheviki should not be admitted to the Peace Conference on a perfect equality with delegates from the anti-Bolshevist Governments in Omsk, Ekaterinodar, and Archangel.

In a speech made in Cooper Union last night and reported in the THE TIMES this morning, Mr. M. J. Olgin, one of the many apologists for the Bolsheviki, said:

"Though I am not a member of the Bolsheviki and do not approve of the course of the Russian revolution, I must say that the Bolsheviki were the only ones who introduced order out of chaos. They have maintained order for fourteen months and they show no signs of weakening."—(NEW YORK TIMES, Jan. 20, 1919.)

It would be interesting to know just what Mr. Olgin's conception of "order" is. It must be something like the unrestrained activity of lunatics from a public asylum, a cohort of Black Hundred pogrom rioters from the Jewish Pale of Settlement, and a gang of "Forty Thieves" from the Arabian Nights. According to Maxim Gorky (as quoted by William E. Walling) there have been in Russia, since the revolution began, more than ten thousand cases of lynching, "with theft and robbery increasing every day." And for most of these crimes of violence, committed in what Mr. Olgin calls a state of "order," the Bolsheviki and their adherents are directly responsible. Mr. Walling also quotes Oskar Tokoi, formerly Socialist Prime Minister of Finland, as saying:

"Only a small minority supports the [Bolshevist] Government; and, what is worse, to the supporters of this Government are rallying all the hooligans, robbers and others, to whom this period of confusion promises a good chance of individual action."—(NEW YORK TIMES, Dec. 30, 1918.)

Mr. Olgin says that "it would take a scholar many years to analyze the vast system of laws which they [the Bolsheviki] have introduced." But in all this "vast system of laws" the commandments "Thou shalt not kill" and "Thou shalt not steal," which were handed down from Sinai for the protection of life and property, do not seem to have found a place. Perhaps Mr. Olgin thinks that the "vast system of laws" devised by the Bolsheviki has superseded the Ten Commandments, and that killing and stealing are not incompatible with a state of "order."

In arguing against foreign intervention in Russia Mr. Olgin says:

"Are the Allies going to fight Russia because they do not believe in its political principles? The Russian masses have done things they ought not to have done; but are we to invade Russia and kill them off because we disagree with them? To send an army to Russia would require 2,000,000 to 3,000,000 men, and the war might last from five to fifteen years."

This is more extraordinary, if possible, than the assertion that the Bolsheviki have maintained order. If the Allies invade Russia in force, it will not be to "kill off" the masses, but to prevent the Bolsheviki from killing them off. The Bolshevist Red Guard and Extraordinary Commissions are the killers; the allied armies would be the life-savers. Mr. Olgin's estimate that it would require a force of two million to three million men and a war of from five to fifteen years to overthrow the Bolsheviki is almost too irrational for serious consideration. A few divisions of Czechoslovaks, insufficiently armed and with very little ammunition, took away from the Bolsheviki last summer the whole line of the Trans-Siberian Railway from the Urals to the Pacific. A much smaller force of Russians and Czechoslovaks—only a few regiments in fact—boldly attacked the Bolsheviki, within a few hundred miles of the latter's headquarters, captured from them the important cities of Samara, Ufa, Syzran, Stavropol, Simbirsk and Kazan; forced the evacuation of Nizhni-Novgorod, and threatened even Moscow itself. If they had had the support of a single division of allied troops, with artillery and machine guns, they would probably have taken Moscow by assault and put an end to the Bolshevik forever. The forces of Lenine and Trotsky, composed mainly of Russian mercenaries and marauders with a stiffening of Germans, Hungarians, Letts and Chinese, could not stand against the Czechoslovaks and the "People's Army," even when they outnumbered the latter seven to one. The city of Kazan, which had a garrison of 8,000 Bolsheviki of the Red Guard, was taken by three hundred Serbians, three companies of the People's Army, and four companies of Czechoslovaks, with only a single 57-millimetre field gun. (For details of all these operations see "The Russian Democracy in its Struggle with the Bolshevist Tyranny," by Colonel Vladimir I. Lebedeff; N. Y., 1919, p. 13-31.)

And now we are told by Mr. Olgin that 3,000,000 veteran British, French and American soldiers would have to fight from five to fifteen years in order to conquer a Bolshevist Red Guard that was defeated a dozen times last summer by a mere handful of patriotic Russians and Czechoslovaks. The only word that seems fitly to characterize such an estimate is preposterous! But Mr. Olgin does not stand alone when he declares that it would take 3,000,000 allied soldiers fifteen years to overthrow the Bolsheviki. Other admirers of the Red Guard say that it would take 5,000,000. In an address on "Lloyd George's Policy toward the Soviet Government of Russia," which was delivered last night in the Church of the Ascension of this city, Mr. Jerome Davis, who is described as the "Senior Secretary in charge of all the war work of the Y. M. C. A. in Russia," said:

"To crush out the Bolsheviki would be impossible, were it desirable. Those who have made a study of the question, Professor Harper of Chicago University among them, assure us that it would take 5,000,000 men."—(NEW YORK TIMES, Jan. 20, 1919.)

This estimate is even more extraordinary than that of Mr. Olgin. It would require us to believe that the Red Guard of mercenaries—the Bolshevist army of Russians, Germans, Hungarians, Letts, and Chinese—which could not hold its own last Summer against a few thousand half-armed Czechoslovaks, has since become so formidable that to crush it would require a force comparable to that which Marshal Foch used in smashing the veteran and victory-flushed armies of Germany. If Trotsky ever reads THE NEW YORK TIMES he will feel a thrill of pride when he sees that, in the opinion of Professor Harper and the Senior Secretary of the Y. M. C. A., his Red Guard would be almost if not quite, a match for five million such men as fought at Chateau-Thierry and in the forest of the Argonne.

Mr. Davis is also reported as saying that even if the Allies do not intervene for the protection of the harried and terrorized people of Russia—if they merely send "ammunition, clothing, food, and supplies of all kinds to the opponents of the Bolsheviki"—they will so incense and exasperate Lenine, Trotsky & Co. that the latter will attack their enemies more fiercely than ever, and bring about a state of "chaos which will make the so-called Red Terror look mild in comparison." This policy, moreover, on the part of the Allies, will bring about in some unexplained way "the starvation of hundreds of thousands of women and babies." And for all this, including wholesale Bolshevist massacres and starving women and babies, we, the Allies, are to be held directly responsible. It will be, as Mr. Davis says, "on our heads."

What, then, is to be done? Shall we, in the words of President Wilson, "stand by Russia," or shall we stand by the Bolsheviki and let Russia perish? Mr. Davis seems to favor the latter course, inconsistent as it may be with Y. M. C. A. principles. The only policy left, he says, "is the one sponsored by Lloyd George. We must be proud of England for taking this stand, and it must be that it is the result of superior information which Lloyd George has, and which most of you have not. I am inclined to think that it is based on the reports of the British High Commission, reports which have not been published, but which I understand convey the offer of the Bolsheviki to cooperate with the Allies."

This policy, which Mr. Davis says is recommended by Lloyd George and the British High Commission, would be a disgraceful compromise with what Ambassador Noulens has called a system of "tyranny and terror which should place the bloody chiefs at Moscow and Petrograd outside the pale of humanity." It would admit as delegates to the Peace Conference unrepentant Bolshevist murderers who ought long ago to have been tried for their innumerable crimes and hanged by the neck until they were dead. It would condone assassination and mass terrorism; it would put the stamp of toleration on such acts of violence and outrage as those committed by the Germans in Belgium; and, worst of all, it would invite red-handed criminals from Moscow to come to Paris, mingle with honorable men, and take part—as witnesses at least—in the proceedings that are to determine the future fate of Russia.

France, certainly, will never consent to the adoption of any such policy, and it is to be hoped that the delegates from the United States will unhesitatingly take their stand beside Ambassador Noulens and Foreign Minister Pichon. If Lloyd George believes that delegates from the Bolsheviki are worthy of admittance to the Peace Conference, he is in violent disagreement with his own Ambassador to Russia, Sir George Buchanan, who witnessed the rise of the Bolsheviki to power, and who now joins Ambassador Noulens and Foreign Minister Pichon in denouncing them as cold-blooded murderers and traitors to the Allies, whose atrocious crimes "should place them outside the pale of humanity." In a recent article in The Fortnightly Review, Sir George said:

"Russian workmen and peasants alike have realized too late by bitter experience what Bolshevist rule means, and how it has spelled ruin both for themselves and their country. Liberty, the watchword of the revolution, has long been a dead letter—it is the monopoly of a single class, of a minority which through its Red army terrorizes the majority of the nation. All who do not subscribe to the articles of the Bolshevist creed are disfranchised, all papers which do not support the Government are suppressed. Justice is unobtainable, or only to be bought, and corruption is rampant. Never since the days of Ivan the Terrible has Russia suffered from such tyranny; and when, some weeks ago, the Bolsheviki feared that their power was on the wane, they indulged in an orgy of massacre and pillage, in the hope of overawing a helpless people with the Red Terror. Nobody's life is safe—all their political opponents, whether belonging to the Socialist or non-Socialist parties, to the working classes or to the aristocracy, are styled counter-revolutionaries, and as such are judged guilty and sentenced to death. The process of passing sentence on individuals is even found too slow, and they are massacred in batches, the Red Guard or the Chinese mercenaries employed as executioners being free to choose their victims from the list of the proscribed. Such are the methods by which those pseudo-democrats, Lenine and Trotsky, have attempted to found their Socialist State, and such are the precepts of the Bolshevist gospel which they would fain see preached in this and other countries."

"I believe in Russia's eventual resurrection, provided that the Allies will help her to cast off the Bolshevist tyrants, which is sapping her vital force, and that they will further, with all the means at their disposal, her political and economic reconstruction."

Will Mr. Davis and the Y. M. C. A. please take notice?

General Bell.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

During General MacArthur's campaign to the north from Manila in the Spring of 1899 I served on his staff as a civilian aid, on the recommendation of Major J. Franklin Bell. One evening after a day of very lively skirmishing, Bell and I were busy making our own little camp with a few armfuls of rice hay and one blanket when the General approached. He took Bell aside, but only a few feet, and complimented him on what he had accomplished, concluding with these words: Major Bell, you have been worth your weight in gold to me this day." There was no other auditor besides myself.

Sir Henry Babington Smith Warns Against Efforts to Create Discord.

BECK URGES FRATERNITY

Says Sentiment of Unity Between Liberal Forces is Needed for League of Nations.

Sir Henry Babington Smith, Acting High Commissioner of Great Britain to the United States, speaking yesterday at the sixteenth annual meeting of the Pilgrims at the Waldorf-Astoria, said that there are influences and activities, some subtle and some gross, some open and some secret, whose object it is to create discord and destroy the confidence created in the last 100 years between Great Britain and the United States.

Referring to the villain in "Hamlet," who murdered Hamlet's father by pouring poison into his ear while he was asleep, Sir Henry declared earnestly: "Poison is being poured into the ears of the American people, and if they be not awake to the danger it will have its murderous effect. I believe, however, that whatever attempts will be made they will be powerless for evil, provided that we are on our guard against them."

A similar sentiment was spoken by James M. Beck, former United States Attorney General, who declared that there are two great currents running through this country; one the sentiment of accord with Great Britain and the other a current of deep-seated prejudice and passion against everything British. "And these two currents will come into active collision before many a day," he added. The chairman of the meeting was Chauncey M. Depew.

"The war is over, but we have not yet made peace," said Sir Henry in his address. "We are all rather inclined to believe that we are at the end of our troubles, to grumble at the slowness of demobilization and at everything that interferes with our return to business as usual."

After adding that the process of readjustment is going on with surprising rapidity Sir Henry remarked that a period of convalescence is necessary, for the patient cannot go about his business as usual the moment the fever has subsided. The world, he said, is going through this period of convalescence, and the doctors are in consultation in Paris.

Sees Difficulties Clearing Up.

"There is indeed just as much need of co-operation and unity now as there was during the war, and it is more difficult to maintain it," he continued. "In the war the one paramount object was to defeat the enemy. In this we were all agreed. But now that the fighting is over and the compelling force of military necessity ceases to operate, divergent interests and desires begin to reappear, not only between nation and nation, but it may be between different political parties, different social groups, or diverging national aspirations in the same country. On the broad principles which should guide the settlement there is substantial agreement, but in the detailed application of these principles there is room for difference, if only because of the complexity of the problems to be solved and of the variety of the forces which come into play."

The governing idea underlying the League of Nations, Sir Henry urged, was that the reign of law which in civilized life governs the relations between individuals should be extended to govern the relations between nations.

"The League of Nations, if it is to be an effective instrument and a living reality, must be the expression and the embodiment of the fixed will and determination of the world. Two things are necessary: the creation of the law-abiding habit of mind in international affairs, and the creation of machinery for giving effect to law, whether it be for the guardianship of young nations, for the settlement of disputes, or for the coercion of the law-breaker, but the former is as necessary as the latter. In the last resort the effectiveness of the league's action would depend on the wills of the nations composing it, and not upon the ingenuity or aptness of the provisions devised for its constitution. It is only by the force of the nations composing the league whether that force be exercised as moral suasion, or in case of necessity, by economic pressure, or by armed compulsion, that the league can give effect to its obligations or to its decisions. They must guard against the danger of providing machinery from which the motive power will be lacking, and which will therefore remain ineffective.

"For this reason doubts have been expressed whether the present is the right time for forming the league, and it has been suggested that it would be better to wait till passions were cold, and till the normal economic life of the world has been resumed. I venture to dissent from that view. Steel has to be cast when it is hot, not when it is cold. It is true that the strength of the cast-ing depends upon the strength of the metal when it is cold, but if you wait till it is cold the casting cannot be done."

Summing up the union of Great Britain and America during the war, Sir Henry declared that there were not wanting those who will try to efface that impression. "They do not hesitate to distort facts, to suggest vile or selfish motives and to appeal to every evil-born prejudice and animosity of the past." He concluded by declaring that the surest guarantee for the peace of the world, the firmest foundation for a League of Nations, lies in the understanding and friendship, the unshakable confidence between Great Britain and the United States.

Beck Refers to Prohibition.

Mr. Beck, after referring to the prohibition amendment as a new child, but not a true child of our constitutional system of Government, declared that the victory of the allied nations was one of sentiment; for it was the sentiment of the free peoples that enabled them to conquer the nations which had prepared for war.

"So far as Great Britain and America are concerned," he added, "it is easier now than ever before to develop this sentiment of fraternity, and I say this notwithstanding the efforts that are now being made in many ways to divide these two countries. A peace conference can meet, solemnly deliberate, engross elaborate treaties of peace, form leagues of nations, bind them together by years of red tape, and stack signatures with many seals; but, when all is done, these will prove little more than scraps of paper unless behind them is the sentiment of unity and fraternity between the liberal forces of the world that have won the victory. We have fought together. We must

WANT WOMEN JURORS TO SERVE AT WILL

Club Presidents Favor Bill Providing for an Elective System.

DOUBTFUL ABOUT FARMERS

Miss Wren Says They Will Not Pass a Bill That Would Take Their Wives from Farm Duty.

Presidents of Women's Clubs at a meeting called by the Brooklyn Women's Bar Association at the rooms of the Professional Women's League, 44 West Forty-eighth Street, yesterday afternoon voted unanimously to favor a bill making women of the State subject to jury duty. The proposed bill does not make jury duty mandatory as it is for men, but elective, the women to have the right to refuse to serve if they wish to do so.

This was not the desire of the gathering or of the Brooklyn women lawyers, who consider that the exemptions which free men from duty under many circumstances would be equally satisfactory for women, but they voted for elective jury duty because they said the up-State farmers would never pass a bill which might call their wives and daughters away from home in the middle of Winter to spend a week in a town hotel.

"There are two Winter sessions of the court," said Miss Amy Wren, President of the Brooklyn Lawyers' Association, who presided, "and the men go to court as they would to the theatre, but you couldn't get the farmers to pass a bill that would make it mandatory for their wives and daughters to go. If the men enjoy it I don't know why the women should not have a little of the fun."

"The women would love it," said Miss Mary Wood. "I'm an up-State woman and I know. The men have all that fun and are paid for it, too."

"Unmarried women are not as well fitted for jury duty as the married," said Mrs. Ellen Kirk Downs. "They cannot understand children and family conditions."

"I consider the unmarried women are much better fitted," said Miss Wood, "because they are unprejudiced."

"No one can understand a boy like a mother," persisted Mrs. Downs.

"Cases of children under 16 are tried in the lower courts where they have no jury," said Miss Wren, "and the age is going to be raised to 18."

"I have heard Judge after Judge say that they have had cases where they would have been thankful if they could have had even one woman on the jury," said Mrs. James Lees Laidlaw.

"Most men and women believe that jury duty goes automatically with the privilege of voting," said Mrs. Olive Stott Gabriel. "Women always rise to their responsibilities and they will make good jurors."

LENBACH PAINTING, $1,750.

"Portrait Study of a Man" Leads Moderns in Halsey Collection.

At the sale of paintings and miniatures of the collection of the late Frederic R. Halsey at the Anderson Galleries last evening an unusual "Portrait Study of a Man," the half length figure of a Bavarian peasant in relief against a background of rough gray boards, by the German artist Lenbach, brought the highest price for a modern picture, going to L. M. Robbins for $1,750. Another Lenbach, "Portrait of a Peasant Girl," a life-size study, an early work of the artist, went to the same buyer for $925. The returns for the evening were $13,429.

F. A. Lawlor was one of the biggest buyers at the afternoon sale of art and household furnishings, paying $631 for a bronze group, lots "Four Seasons," in four pieces; $200 for a pair of modern bronze amphoras, French; $145 for an Empire candelabraum, and $100 for two figures, Anthony Van Dyke and Rubens. The returns for the afternoon were $7,816. The sale will be continued this afternoon.

SOLDIERS TO SEE PARIS.

Pershing Issues New Order Providing Leaves of Absence.

PARIS, Jan. 22.—All American officers and soldiers will get a chance to see Paris in a leave of absence of three days before sailing homeward, according to General Order No. 14 issued from American General Headquarters on Jan. 18. American soldiers of Italian, French, Belgian, and British extraction will have an opportunity to visit their former homes or relatives before returning to the United States.

The general order, however, carries one condition to the clause concerning visits to Paris, as follows:

"Permission may be granted without special reason to men of exceptional good character, who may be expected to conduct themselves properly at all times and who have sufficient funds."

Black marks against privates will not prevent them, however, from obtaining leaves of absence to visit relatives in France, Belgium, Great Britain, and Italy.

Leaves are hereafter to be granted on a more liberal basis.

1,000 ATTEND PEACE BALL.

Southern Society Dances at Waldorf in Aid of War Wounded.

The Peace Ball, given last night at the Waldorf-Astoria, by the Southern Society, was largely attended, the guests numbering more than 1,000. The grand ballroom and Astor Gallery were used for the affair, with decorations symbolic of peace and victory. The affair began at 9:30 o'clock with a reception, followed by general dancing, two orchestras playing continuously.

The Southern colony of New York was well represented, and many offerings of the army and navy, as well as soldiers and sailors, enjoyed real Southern hospitality. Special dances enlivened the evening's program.

The proceeds of the ball will be used by the society's war fund, of which Walter L. McCorkle is Chairman, to promote the comfort of the wounded boys from overseas. Robert Adamson was head of the Entertainment Committee.

Thirty representative Southern women of prominence acted as patronesses, among whom were Mrs. A. M. Anderson, Mrs. Adamson, Mrs. Chester Alexander, Mrs. George Gordon Battle, Mrs. Barron G. Collier, Mrs. James H. Dinwiddie, Mrs. H. Snowden Marshall, Mrs. Lewis Nixon, Mrs. Bedell Parker, Mrs. Almuth C. Vandiver, Mrs. Julian B. Beatty, Mrs. Walter L. McCorkle, Mrs. E. B. Wilson, Mrs. George B. Covington, Mrs. Junius Parker, Mrs. Mart Gress, Mrs. Robert H. Wiley, Mrs. S. R. Bertrand, Mrs. Simon Baruch, Mrs. Charles Guggenheimer, Mrs. Hugh Gordon Miller, Mrs. James W. ZIONIST FUND NOW $700,000.

Day's Subscriptions Reach $284,000 —Canada Pledges $250,000.

Subscriptions to the Palestine Restoration Fund on the fourth day of the $3,000,000 drive by the Zionist Organization amounted to $284,000, bringing the total up to $700,000. The Zionists of Canada have pledged $250,000 and it was announced yesterday that at a dinner the Canadian Zionists had raised $50,000.

Among the contributions received yesterday was an anonymous one of $24,000. Emil Berliner subscribed $10,000 and $1,000 each was received from Mrs. Max R. Guggenheimer, Rudolph Levy of Lynchburg, Va., and Mr. and Mrs. M. R. Lindheim. At a meeting of the team captains yesterday $29,651 was reported in cash and pledges. At a benefit performance in Kessler's Theatre $1,700 was raised.

The Zionist Organization of America announced the departure for Palestine of Dr. Harry Friedenwald of Baltimore, Vice President of the Zionist Organization of America; Dr. I. M. Rubinow of New York, and Robert Szold of the Department of Justice of Washington. Dr. Friedenwald will be accompanied by Rudolph Sonneborn, who will serve as his private secretary.

Y. M. C. A. MAKES DENIAL.

Asserts Cigarettes for Free Distribution Were Not Sold.

Charges that the Y. M. C. A. sold in France packages of cigarettes intended for free distribution, made by an Army Chaplain, were denied last night by the National War Work Council of the Y. M. C. A.

In the statement given out by the Y. M. C. A. refuting these charges, it is said that Beveridge C. Dunlap of New York, was one of the Y. M. C. A. workers with the regiment to which the Chaplain was attached and that he has received from the men in the regiment a loving cup, costing $100 in appreciation of the services he performed. Mr. Dunlap has received a letter from Colonel William Screws, commander of the regiment, in appreciation of his work.

The statement says that this is the first specific charge against the Y. M. C. A. that has been fully investigated, and that it has been found to be entirely without foundation.

SAVED 47 FROM CASTALIA.

Americans Picked Up by Norwegian Ship—Five Died After Rescue.

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 22.—The Norwegian-American liner Bergensfjord, which has arrived here, reports saving forty-seven men from the American steamer Castalia, which was wrecked off Sable Island on Jan. 11, while the Bergensfjord was on her way across the Atlantic.

Five of these saved died from exposure after being taken aboard the Norwegian vessel.

Better Ocean Mails Wanted.

Major Philip Curry, a Director of Traffic in the British Ministry of Shipping, will sail today for England on the Leviathan to discuss the shipping situation with the chief officials in London. EX-SENATOR OLIVER DIES IN PITTSBURGH

Publisher of Two Republican Newspapers Was Former Steel Manufacturer.

BEGAN CAREER AS LAWYER

Elected to United States Senate for Unexpired Term of Knox. He Served Continuously Until 1917.

PITTSBURGH, Penn., Jan. 22.—Former United States Senator George T. Oliver died at his home here this morning after a lingering illness. The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon, and will be private.

George T. Oliver, former United States Senator, lawyer, steel manufacturer, and newspaper publisher, was born in Dungannon, Ireland, Jan. 26, 1848, while his parents were visiting there. His lifelong home was in Allegheny, now a part of Pittsburgh, and he was educated at Bethany College, West Virginia, of which subsequently he was a trustee.

He was admitted to the bar in 1871, practicing with notable success until 1881. His legal business had been largely identified with the steel industry, and eventually he withdrew from professional practice and devoted himself to manufacturing. During twenty years of connection with steel he gave the subject the same careful attention he had previously given the law. Until 1899 he was Vice President and then President of the Oliver Wire Company, and was President of the Hainsworth Steel Company from 1889 to 1897. He remained President of the amalgamated companies until 1901, when he disposed of all his manufacturing interests.

Senator Oliver became the owner of The Pittsburgh Gazette in 1900, and a little later he purchased an afternoon paper, The Chronicle-Telegraph. He completed his newspaper purchases in Pittsburgh six years later when he bought The Times, a morning paper, and merged it with The Gazette under the name of The Gazette-Times. For eighteen years he directed the papers, with his two sons, George S. Oliver and Augustus K. Oliver, associated in the management. In the meantime he became the owner of extensive real estate in Pittsburgh and contributed to the upbuilding of the city.

While a newspaper publisher he became active in local, State, and national politics as a Republican, exerting potent influence in the nomination and selection of State and national officers. He was elected United States Senator in 1909 for the unexpired term of Senator Knox, who had become Secretary of State, and subsequently was elected for a full term of six years ending March, 1917. While in the Senate he gave close attention to tariff matters affecting iron and steel and other products of Western Pennsylvania.

Senator Oliver left in addition to the sons already mentioned, one son, Lieutenant Bennett Oliver, and three daughters, Mrs. John B. Young and Mrs. Alexander C. Blair, Pittsburgh, and Mrs. Edward McCauley of Washington. His wife, who was Miss Mary Kountze of Omaha, died in May, 1917.

PAYS HONOR TO GIBBONS AS A GREAT AMERICAN

Cerretti, Presenting Pope's Jubilee Message, Also Says Red Hat Was Intended for Ireland.

BALTIMORE, Jan. 22.—In an address, not only eulogistic of Cardinal Gibbons but which also paid a tribute to President Wilson, Archbishop Bonaventure Cerretti, Papal Under Secretary of State, today presented to the Cardinal the congratulations of Pope Benedict on the golden jubilee of his episcopate.

Archbishop Cerretti also indicated that had he lived Archbishop Ireland of St. Paul would have been made a Cardinal.

"The Sovereign Pontiff has sent me to express his love and admiration for that great American whose name is written with letters of gold in the hearts of the American people," said the Archbishop to Cardinal Gibbons. "But in honoring you, your Eminence, the Holy Father honors the whole American Church, honors America, for in your Eminence is represented all that is great and noble in American religious and civil life."

In speaking of the close friendship which existed between Cardinal Gibbons and the late Archbishop Ireland, Mgr. Cerretti said:

"If the Archbishop of the West had been spared, he would have rejoiced to be here today, and we also would rejoice were he with us today. Especially would we all have rejoiced in the near future—this I may say without indiscretion—when the great Archbishop Ireland, whom the Holy Father esteemed so highly, would also have received the highest distinction within the power of the Sovereign Pontiff to bestow.

"We are gathered together in a historic moment for America. The eyes of the world are turned with hope and confidence toward this great Republic. Your great President Wilson has enunciated to the world the highest and the noblest principles of humanity. He has proclaimed, in the most eloquent terms, the spirit and nobility of American manhood.

"And we are indeed gratified to know that those great principles which the American people love, those principles which President Wilson has never ceased to expound, to develop and to apply, according as the events of the gigantic world struggle have evolved, we are gratified to know, I say, that they are based upon the general outlines already traced by the Holy Father during the critical period of the war.

"It is well known what the Holy Father proposed for the restoration to the world of a just and lasting peace, that peace for which he together with the whole church has prayed so fervently. It was in particular these four points: That the right of might should give way to the might of right, that the just aspirations of nationalities should be satisfied, that no nation should be subjugated by another, because nations do not die; that there should be a general disarmament of nations and an international court of arbitration established."

The company issuing these bonds operates without competition.

The net earnings are over 2¾ times the amount required to pay bond interest charges.

The power furnished is of hydro-electric generation employing water instead of steam, which not only lessens cost of production, but eliminates to a large extent the labor factor, because of the few men required in the operation.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Recover as Market Sentiment Grows Calmer—Steel Mill Operations.

The atmosphere surrounding stock market transactions was clearer yesterday than for several preceding days, inasmuch as conflicting information about the railroads was absent, and prices recovered part of the distance lost since Monday morning. Probably much of the buying which imparted the firm tone to the list as a whole and gave particular stocks a strong appearance was in the way of realizing of profits on earlier short sales. Such a process was not unnatural in view of the downward tendency of railroad issues before and may have been hastened somewhat by the fact that only a moderate degree of liquidation occurred when prices looked weakest on Monday and Tuesday. Trading was quiet, and the upturn was as free of untoward movements as had been the progress toward lower levels. Any survey of the course of dealings for some time past would be incomplete without reference to the relative indifference which the public has displayed toward the market. Inquiry in bank and brokerage circles indicate that many of the sellers of railroad stocks from long accounts were much closer to the ticker than the average owner of railroad securities, and therefore was more easily disturbed by reports and conjectures which gained a hearing in market circles. Baltimore & Ohio recovered 2 points, St. Paul preferred 1¼ points, New York Central 1 point, and many of the other prominent stocks moved forward good-size fractional distances. Reading, which had been under considerable pressure the day before, rose 1½ points under persistent buying, which was also the case with Southern Pacific.

Market comment turned from the rails to industrial stocks again. Naturally, the steel issues came in for close study, and here decidedly mixed opinions were voiced. Information coming from manufacturing centres goes to show that mill operations are decidedly "spotty." The largest single unit is extensively engaged in working up commercial orders which have accumulated in the last year or more, and its plants are reported to be still operating in excess of 90 per cent. of normal, taking the varied forms of output as a whole. The Iron Age said that the larger Chicago mills were operating from 70 to 90 per cent. of capacity, while in the East less than 50 per cent. has been the rule this week. The companies with diversified products and substantial bookings to be specified against seem to be doing pretty well, but new orders are said to be coming in at a rate equal to no more than half of current operations, which indicates that the period of deflation is not yet over. Every day of partial activity means progress toward the time when buyers and sellers will get together and the steel stocks have not yet reflected any undue apprehension among the holders that the period will be so long as to deplete their patience.

The foreign exchange market contained movements against the Swiss and Belgium francs. The Belgium check rate now stands at 5.67, as compared with 5.62 when business was begun a few days ago. This movement may have reflected some transfers of funds to this centre from Antwerp, but the decline has not been greater than would be expected to follow the renewal of financial transactions after the long interval in which the market was disrupted. Call money was slightly firmer than on Tuesday.

TO OPPOSE ALIEN RIGHTS IN MEXICO

HITS AMERICAN INVESTORS

American Oil Interests Send E. L. Doheny to Combat Proposals at Peace Table.

The Mexican Government is planning retaliatory measures against the action of the National Association for the Protection of American Rights in Mexico in consolidating all the interests having conflict with the Carranza Government. An American delegation will make representations at the Peace Conference at Versailles, asking for the abatement of the present unsettled conditions in Mexico and the firm establishment of the property rights of foreigners, and it was learned yesterday that Alberto Pani, who recently sailed for France as the representative of the Mexican Government, will have entire charge of presenting the case of his country, which is expected to stand in opposition to the contention of American business men.

With him when he sailed was a large delegation of Mexicans, many of whom it is understood will be directly associated with him in his endeavor to have the ideas of the new Mexican Constitution incorporated as a principle of international law. Large as this delegation is, however, it is believed here that additional lawyers will be dispatched from Mexico in the near future to give their support to Pani's proposals.

It is said that the plans which the Mexican representatives hope to offer before the Peace Conference will be revolutionary as regards the custom of nations. The chief point which Pani has been instructed to present is the so-called Carranza doctrine which was enunciated by President Carranza in a message to the Mexican Congress on Sept. 1 last. This is to the effect that no nation shall have the right to interfere in the affairs of another country even where the property rights of citizens in a foreign country are in question, that being the province only of the country in which the rights are held.

Another Carranza Contention.

Pani will also support another Carranza contention that a Government by alteration of its constitution can legally take such properties within its borders as the demands of the Government may indicate. It is the belief of the Mexican President that in such cases there can be no appeal to an outside nation which may feel that its citizens are being discriminated against, this being a question which only the courts of the country can determine.

This doctrine was submitted at the International Labor Conference at Laredo, Texas, recently for ratification, but after consideration it was turned down by the delegates, mainly because of the opposition of the American representatives.

The proposals of Carranza are in keeping with the new Mexican Constitution which was adopted more than a year ago, and in which was set forth the principal that all the subsoil rights in Mexico were inherently the property of the Mexican Government and that they never could have been sold to foreign interests. Where such sales were made it is maintained that they were in contravention to the rights of the Mexican Government and therefore could not be legal. This applies not only to the purchase of subsoil rights by foreigners after the passage of the Mexican Constitution, but is retroactive to the extent of application in all cases where foreigners hold such rights.

It was to support this idea that the Carranza doctrine was promulgated. It is hoped that Pani can now have the Peace Convention ratify the proposals Peace Conference ratify the proposals the Carranza Government filed with foreigners will be at once settled by international decree. The Mexican Government does not consider that its proposals are confiscatory, but a contrary view is held by the Governments whose citizens have made investments in Mexico. Several sharp notes have been dispatched to Mexico on this subject by both the American and British Governments.

Sees Advantage for Mexico.

Pani, it is believed, hopes to have an advantage over the delegates from this country in that he may be able to obtain a seat at the peace table as the representative of one of the neutral nations. Steps have already been taken looking toward this end. The American representatives, on the other hand, will have no official standing, their hope being that they will be called before the Peace Conference to describe conditions as they have been found in Mexico. It was said yesterday by an authority on Mexican affairs that there might be a stumbling block to Pani's aspirations in that Great Britain will not recognize the Carranza Government until certain confiscated British properties have been restored.

The National Association for the Protection of American Rights in Mexico is steadily advancing its cause. Yesterday afternoon the oil interests identified with the association appointed as their delegate to Paris E. L. Doheny, President of the Mexican Petroleum Company. Together with several other oil men he went to Washington last night to arrange for passports. Mr. Doheny expects to sail on Feb. 1. Whether the other representatives of the association will sail at the same time is not certain. Some of them have not yet been appointed. Cornelius F. Kelley, who is expected to represent the mining interests, may leave for France a little earlier.

The State Department, it is said, is thoroughly conversant with the plans of the American Association, and is understood to have said that the last note of President Wilson to the Carranza Government, in which he described the proposed enforcement of the subsoil provisions of the Mexican Constitution as confiscatory, was a document on which it was prepared to stand.

COTTON MARKET IRREGULAR.

Shows Strength in Forenoon, but Drops Sharply in Afternoon.

Yesterday's cotton market was highly irregular. Starting firm, it rose 30 to 40 points in the forepart of the session, mainly on cheerful reports from Liverpool, where both futures and spots were strong, and on a fairly considerable amount of short covering by local traders, who seemed entirely satisfied to accept the more optimistic foreign attitude. The South again sold, but its selling was neither large in volume nor aggressive in character, and was quite overshadowed by the buying, which dominated the market and controlled the price movement.

The improvement abroad was undoubtedly in response to the announcement that the British Cotton Control Board has removed some of the restrictions on manufacturers. Local interests took this to mean that the export movement here will quicken, and as the slowness of exports has been one of the chief retarding factors for some time, this was considered bullish.

But the strength was short lived. In the early afternoon buying began to fall off and in the last hour selling became general and fairly heavy. With demand satisfied, the bears found but little opposition, and hedge selling from the South and a resumed output of short contracts by many of the ring traders, who had covered early in the day, sent quotations down sharply. At the low point January was off 100 points from the previous closing, March was down 45 points and July was off 54 points. Just before the end a slight rally occurred, but even with this quotations finished 25 to 55 points under Tuesday's ending.

Yesterday's quotations follow:

BANKS ELECT NEW OFFICERS

Richard Morris Named Vice President of Bankers Trust Company.

The election of several new officers for banking institutions took place yesterday. Richard L. Morris became a Vice President of the Bankers Trust Company and will be connected with the bond department. He was formerly with the banking firms of Potter, Choate & Prentice and Kean, Taylor & Co., and the commercial paper house of Blake Brothers & Co. Mr. Morris lately served as Chairman of the Committee on Legislation of the Investment Bankers Association.

Alfred G. Fletcher was elected Vice President of the American Foreign Banking Corporation. He was with the Canadian Bank of Commerce for seven years and took part in the organization of the Metropolitan Bank at the time of its merger with the Bank of Nova Scotia in 1914. The American Foreign Banking Corporation was formed last year by several of the local banks to extend banking facilities abroad. Amos F. Hill of Boston was elected by the Executive Committee of the Clearing House section of the American Bankers Association as Secretary, succeeding Jerome Thralls. Mr. Thralls resigned recently to become Secretary and Treasurer of the Discount Corporation of New York. Mr. Hill was formerly connected with the Traders National Bank of Lowell, Mass.

TO MOVE CLEARING HOUSE.

New Quarters to be Provided in Stock Exchange Building.

At the weekly meeting of the Governors of the Stock Exchange yesterday it was decided that the Clearing House of the Exchange, now more than a block from the big board, should be housed in the basement of the Exchange building, which runs through the block between Broad and New Streets, and which houses not only the trading floor but executive offices, quarantes, and a luncheon club.

After yesterday's meeting a Governor of the Exchange said that the decision had been reached after considerable discussion, and that the change meant that the necessity of transporting large quantities of valuable negotiable securities through busy thoroughfares would be abolished. The new plan will be carried out as soon as possible.

SAYS CHINA WANTS AMERICAN EXPORTS

Consul General Appeals to Business Men to Enter Far East Market.

ENCOURAGES FOREIGN TRADE

Assistant Secretary Long Says State Department Wishes to Stimulate Expansion.

Chao Hsin Chu, Chinese Consul General at San Francisco, in an address made yesterday at a luncheon of the American Manufacturers' Export Association, held at the Hotel McAlpin, said that the Chinese market offered big opportunities to enterprising exporters. Breckenridge Long, Third Assistant Secretary of State, who was the other speaker, pledged the full support of the State Department to the campaign for overseas trade. More than 300 representatives of the country's large manufacturing export concerns were present.

"Commercial opportunities everywhere in China are awaiting you American business men, Consul General Hsin Chu said. "You have been building up your foreign trade in Latin-American countries, but you have not paid proper attention to your foreign trade in the Far East. Prior to the war Germany had developed a large trade in the Orient. The German interests have now been driven out of business and it is a good opportunity for America to enlarge her foreign trade there, and such replacement, I can assure you, will become permanent and most acceptable."

Discussing China's tariff the Consul General said that even if American manufacturers chose to "dump" their products into the Chinese market no protective tariff law would be invoked. "On the contrary," Hsin Chu said, "I am inclined to believe that we should enjoy the dumping, for we are always anxious to obtain large quantities of foreign manufactured articles to satisfy the universal needs and wants."

The Consul General recommended that agencies should be given to Chinese firms, as local conditions and different dialects would discourage foreign salesmen in the interior of China; that direct trade should be facilitated between the two countries and the so-called compradore system dropped owing to its indirectness, and that to remedy this Chinese merchants should be allowed to become "partners" instead of compradores through some sort of American-Chinese mercantile company, to be formed for the purpose of securing better means of co-operation on the part of Chinese merchants. Mr. Chu's recommendations also included a comprehensive and sustained advertising campaign in Chinese newspapers and periodicals to push the sale of American goods, and exhibit rooms in Chinese commercial centres.

Assistant Secretary of State Long said that the Department of State desired to encourage and stimulate American foreign trade, and in pursuance of its policy applied every legitimate means to accomplish its object. "Industry in the United States," Mr. Long said, "cannot stand still. It must either expand or contract, and its influence upon the life of the entire country is so powerful that we must secure for it a normal rate of development, and, to that end, provide it with the room for expension which only foreign trade can furnish. Our international interests today are greater than they ever have been before. We have been living in stirring times, we have been in an international atmosphere, and I wonder whether, when it is over, if there will not remain to us, individually and nationally, something of those emotions which we had."

Mr. Long added that during the last Summer there was established in the Foreign Trade Adviser's office of the State Department a new economic intelligence section, which is equipped to deal with the economic and commercial questions which are more and more frequently arising.

FEW NEW STEEL ORDERS.

Buyers Show Disposition to Wait for Lower Prices.

New orders in the steel trade are coming in slowly, according to this week's reports from trade centres, and buyers continue to show a disposition to wait for lower prices. Mill operations in different quarters of the industry show wide variations in comparison with normal times, ranging from 50 per cent. to 90 per cent. of capacity. The Iron Age says:

With new bookings less than half of current production, the industry is measurably nearer the moment of total deflation from the war basis. In many lines of finished steel there is not much over a month's work ahead. The encouraging feature from the buyer's standpoint is that labor, now idle shows a disposition to resume at reduced wage rates, and firm offers for steel at below present levels are now the more likely to lead to successful negotiation.

Threats of strikes in the Pittsburgh district seem unwise. Pig iron makers have been piling iron; melters are for the greater part in possession of three months' supplies; high cost plants are contemplating shutdowns, and there is no hesitation to blow out furnaces for relining and repairs. January pig iron production will be considerably below that of December.

While in the heavier tonnage items of finished steel, production last a low ebb, in sheets, tin plate, and wire products, there is comparative activity, mills averaging 70 per cent. of capacity. Nor is the country as a whole on a uniform manufacturing basis, the larger Chicago mills operating at 70 to even 90 per cent. of capacity, while in the East less than 50 per cent. is the rule.

The Iron Trade Review says:

In Pittsburgh, steel works are operating at an average of 70 per cent. capacity. About thirty blast furnaces have been blown out in the East, and South Buffalo furnaces are again becoming a powerful factor in the New York pig iron market, owing to the fact that the freight rate from Buffalo to the metropolitan territory is lower than the rate from Pittsburgh. Inquiries for 5,000 tons of foundry iron for delivery during the first half are now pending in New York. Moderate export activity continues. Japan, which is actively pushing its shipbuilding program, has placed 35,000 tons of plates in the Chicago district and ordered 10,000 tons of pig iron.

OPPOSED TO LUXURY TAX UPON CLOTHING

Manufacturers in Convention Declare Against Proposed Measure.

DON'T WANT WAGES LOWER

Wholesale and Retail Clothiers Deny That 1919 Fall Prices Will Be Lower Than Those Last Year.

Following a conference between manufacturers and retailers, a report was made yesterday to the annual convention of the National Association of Clothiers, held at the Hotel Astor, covering uniform credit terms, in which it was recommended that a study of the subject be made with a view to deciding whether it was possible to establish a basis for uniform terms, either net or regular, or both. The report emphasizes that there should be uniformity in either one or both of these methods.

The convention approved, lifting the ban now prescribed by the style regulations for the Spring of 1919 on double-breasted suits, and on golf suits, where the latter were made with knickerbockers, but not including golf suits made with vests and long trousers. The association also went on record as opposing the so-called luxury tax on furnishings, and also a similar tax on clothing, if the latter should finally be incorporated in the Internal Revenue bill now in conference.

The manufacturers passed a resolution suggesting that the Chamber of Commerce of the United States send a commission to Europe, composed of men of high standing, to study and report upon industrial conditions. David Kirschbaum of Philadelphia stated that a fund of $150,000 had been set aside by the manufacturers to investigate fraudulent advertising and seek its correction, even to the extent of legal prosecution of offenders who misstate the quality and values of their goods through public advertisements.

It was the sense of the convention that neither an increase in the hours of labor nor a reduction of wages was desirable, but attention was called to the fact that the minimum wage in Great Britain for clothing workers was for women $3.50 per week and for men not more than double that sum. Under this wage scale, it was said, American manufacturers could not successfully compete with the English, despite the fact that American clothing is the best made in the world.

Samples to be Larger.

Following a brief discussion, it was decided to return to the old sample sizes of 6¼ by 9 inches double, or 13 by 18 single, which is just double the size which has been in operation during the war. This course was taken because there is no longer vital necessity for the conservation of material. A unanimous vote of thanks was tendered by the convention to the War Service Committee for the excellent work it did during its life.

Mr. Kirschbaum told the members of the association that the American clothing industry alone now disposes of $800,000,000 of manufactures annually, and that if domestic manufacturers could successfully export clothing, the business would be doubled. The next convention will be held in Chicago, Dec. 16 and 17 of this year. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Ludwig Stein, Chicago; Vice Presidents, Jacob J. Abt, Max H. Friedman, David Kirschbaum, Max L. Holtz, E. R. Smith, and Eli Strauss; Treasurer, Max L. Wile, and Secretary, William R. Corwine.

In connection with views attributed to some who attended the convention of the National Association of Clothiers on Tuesday that the price of men's clothing would probably be lower next Fall, Lafayette Dunn, President of the National Association of Wholesale Clothiers, and Andreas E. Burkhardt, Vice President of the National Association of Retail Clothiers, made the following statement yesterday:

"In our judgment prices of men's and young men's clothing for the Fall of 1919 will be the same as the opening prices of the Fall of 1918, or will possibly be slightly higher on trustworthy merchandise. While prices of the raw material, that is, the cloth for the Fall season, will be offered at slight concessions over prices which prevailed for the Fall season of 1918, conversion cost has advanced materially.

Stocks Nearly Exhausted.

"The statement made in this morning's TIMES that the stocks of the retail clothiers were 25 per cent. higher than normal is erroneous. The business since the signing of the armistice has been exceptionally good, and stocks of the better kinds of merchandise are pretty well exhausted, particularly in suits, as has been evidenced by the fact that larger operators have been obliged to replenish their stocks of heavyweight suits to considerable extent during the last sixty days. A conference of the National Association of Retailers and the National Association of Manufacturers was not held yesterday, as reported, but was held today, and many matters of interest were discussed. Among these was the question of price reduction, which was covered by the following resolution:

It is the sense of this convention that an article published in THE NEW YORK TIMES this morning to the effect that prices for men's clothing will be cheaper for Fall and Winter was not reflected in the deliberations of the convention, and does not represent the views of the delegates. The fact that the manufacturing costs are highest at this time than ever before does not give encouragement to the theory of lower prices.

Samuel Weill, retiring President of the National Association of Clothiers, added the following statement:

"The conference takes this recommendation as the apparently certain outlook and on facts so far as they can at this time be determined, that the elements that go into cost of production do not warrant even the hope that prices for next Fall can be any lower than for the season just closing. In fact, there is a possibility, and it cannot be determined at this time, that prices generally speaking, at least for worthy merchandise, will be higher rather than lower."

Samuel Weill and Ludwig Stein presided at the annual dinner held last night in the grand ballroom of the Astor. More than 3,000 clothing and fabric manufacturers, jobbers, and retailers were present. Felix Frankfurter, Chairman of the War Labor Policies Board, who had as his subject, "The Constitutionalizing of Industries," discussed the future relations of capital and labor. Referring to the clothing manufacturing industry, he said that the subject of seasonable occupation warranted close study, since it was bad for the morale of workers to be idle periodically. Mr. Frankfurter congratulated the association upon having formed a labor bureau.

Edmund James Cattell of Philadelphia said that he saw a big future for American trade. Ludwig Stein, President-elect of the association, expressed the belief that a wonderful prosperity would exist in this country during the next few years. D. Thomas Curtin of the Northcliffe Press, London, told of his experiences as a war correspondent in eleven campaigns, covering seven countries.

Oppose Skip-Stop System.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Jan. 22.—Unless the Public Service Railway Company abolishes the skip-stop system within the city limits of New Brunswick, the city's Fire Department will be used to compel compliance with the demands of the City Commission, Commissioners E. F. Houghton and J. J. Feaster declared today. Fire trucks will be run along the trolley tracks in front of each car, stopping at every corner and thus compelling the cars to stop. City Attorney T. F. Hagerty declared the trolley company had been profuse in its promises to abolish the system, but that nothing had been done, so the Commissioners decided on drastic action.

MOVE FOR SHIP CONTRACTS.

Senators Want Administration to Revoke Ban on Foreign Orders.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—A resolution to require the Shipping Board to revoke all orders preventing ship construction in America for foreign account was introduced today by Senator King of Utah, Democrat, and was referred to the Commerce Committee.

President Wilson's failure to remove such restrictions was criticised by Senator Jones of Washington, who declared it unjustifiable and "almost criminal." Such a policy, he said, not only compelled shipyards to suspend operations, throwing thousands of men out of employment, but resulted in these contracts being awarded to firms in other countries.

"Foreign shipbuilding contracts are sought in American shipyards," said Senator Jones. "These shipyards cannot take these contracts because they cannot get a permit to do so from their own Government. American shipyards are closed. American labor is idle. American resources are unused. Hundreds of millions of foreign capital seeking to come here is directed to foreign countries. Why? Because an American President, using the power given to him to carry on the war, refuses for undisclosed reasons to permit our people to take those contracts and build these ships. No reason is given to justify this action. None can be given to justify it."

DISCUSSES GOMPERS' STAND

Henderson Says American Federation First Urged Labor Conference.

BERNE, Jan. 21.—Arthur Henderson, who is representing British labor at the International Socialist and Labor Conference here, issued today a statement relative to the refusal of Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, to attend the meeting. He said that it was the American Federation which first proposed a world labor and Socialist conference, to be held at the same time as the Peace Congress.

The Social Democrats of Russia have indicated their sympathy with the movement in a message to the Organization Committee of the meeting. They are represented by M. Axelrod.

Finland has appointed M. Koto and M. Utoljiek as delegates, and Esthonia is represented by M. Martna and M. Kostner. The Swedish Socialists are expected to send Hjalmar Branting, and four other prominent Socialists, probably Moller and Engberg.

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 22.—The German Social Democrats, according to a dispatch from Berlin, will be represented at the International Socialist and Labor Conference at Berne by Herman Müller, Otto Wels, and Richard Moikenbuhr.

St. Lawrence Still Open to Ships.

QUEBEC, Jan. 22.—Never in the history of navigation on the St. Lawrence has a steamer left Quebec for the open sea so late in the season as the Canadian Voyager, which departed today for Halifax and then oversea. The St. Lawrence is ordinarily ice locked here at this time of year.

To the Holders of Five Per Cent. First Mortgage Gold Bonds OF The Northwestern Terminal Railway Company

Issued under the Mortgage indenture dated July 1st, 1906 (and supplements dated September 27th, 1909, and January 2, 1915), made by said Company to The Mercantile Trust Company (now Bankers Trust Company), as Trustee:

The Northwestern Terminal Railway Company (herein called the Terminal Company) has defaulted in the payment of the semi-annual interest due January 1, 1918, July 1, 1918, and January 1, 1919, upon the above issue of bonds. The 1916 and 1917 State taxes upon its property are unpaid and delinquent. We are advised that its terminal railway properties in and near Denver, Colorado, were taken, and now are, under Federal control. All the property of The Denver and Salt Lake Railroad Company (herein called the Salt Lake Company) was placed in a creditor's bill receivership in the District Court of Adams County, Colorado, in August, 1917, and such receivership is still in effect, except that the railway and transportation system of the Salt Lake Company is in Federal control. Under existing agreement whereby the Salt Lake Company occupied and used (and the Federal Railroad Administration is now occupying and using) properties of the Terminal Company, the Salt Lake Company agreed (in effect) to pay, as rental, among other things, the interest upon the Terminal Company's First Mortgage Bonds and taxes upon its property.

The undersigned, holding and representing large amounts of the First Mortgage Bonds of the Terminal Company, believe it to be essential that the holders of such bonds be in a position to take prompt and concerted action for the protection of their interests, and therefore have agreed to act as a committee for that purpose. This Committee is the result of an agreement whereby former committees organized separately, in New York and Denver, have been dissolved, and succeeded by the undersigned.

It will be to the advantage of the Bondholders promptly to deposit their Bonds with the Committee in order to participate in the benefits to be gained by concerted action on the part of the majority of the Bonds. Bondholders are therefore urgently requested to deposit their Bonds, with the January 1, 1918, and subsequent, coupons, on or before March 1st, 1919, with The International Trust Company, Denver, Colorado, the Depositary under an agreement, dated December 18th, 1918, providing for such deposits; or with Bankers Trust Company, 16 Wall Street, New York, the Agent of the Depositary. Transferable certificates of deposit will be issued therefor.

The Committee will promptly pay any interest which may be received by it on the Deposited Bonds to the holders of the certificates of deposit representing the Bonds in respect whereof such payments of interest shall be made, deducting any income tax required to be withheld.

Copies of the Deposit Agreement may be obtained by application either to the Depositary or to its Agent above mentioned.

PROPOSE NEW LAWS TO AID STATE BANKS

Banking Council Would Admit Savings Institutions to Federal Reserve.

OTHER FEATURES OUTLINED

Also Provide for Departmental Banks to Operate Under National Charter.

The United States Council of State Banking Associations has mailed to all banks operating under State charters a bulletin which sets forth proposed legislation affecting such banks which is now under consideration by the Federal Reserve Board. A résumé of the bulletin says:

"The proposed legislation is divided under three heads. First, to admit to membership in the Federal reserve system mutual savings banks, which have no capital stock, and stock savings banks with insufficient capital stock to entitle them to become members under the existing law, provided the surplus of mutual savings banks and the combined capital and surplus of such stock savings banks are equal to the capital stock required of national banks in the places where such savings banks are located.

"Second. Authorizing the board by regulation to prescribe the conditions under which time deposits may be classed as savings deposits and providing that two-thirds of the 3 per cent. reserve against savings deposits may consist of United States bonds issued since April 24, 1917, or United States certificates of indebtedness deposited with the Federal Reserve Bank.

"Third. Authorizing savings banks which convert into national banks to maintain separate savings departments and authorizing national banks to establish separate savings departments to be operated in substantial conformity with State laws.

"While two of these proposals relate especially to the membership of savings banks in the Federal Reserve system, the outstanding feature is the third proposal, which in effect creates a departmental bank under national charter, national banks being now authorized to conduct both a commercial and a trust business under certain conditions.

"Under the third proposal it would also be possible to organize a national bank solely for the purpose of conducting a savings business against which two-thirds of the required reserve could be carried in Government bonds. In such event it is more than probable that the use of the word 'savings,' both in corporate title and advertising, would be upheld by a Federal court, whether or not in contravention of State law.

"The Federal Reserve Board has taken no action or expressed any opinion in regard to these proposals, but has consented to their circulation in order that the State bankers of the country may have an opportunity to express their views on the subject. In this action the board has evidence a desire to co-operate with the State institutions."

PLAN FOR CHEAPER FOOD.

Produce Exchange Asks President to Remove War Restrictions.

The New York Produce Exchange directed an appeal to President Wilson yesterday asking him to take prompt action to remove the present war restrictions on food products and to discontinue price-fixing as now applied to hogs, grain, and similar commodities. Conditions of supply and demand, it was asserted, should now be allowed to govern prices. If these were to be permitted full sway the Exchange believes that there would be brought about a material reduction in the cost of living. With reference to wheat a special memorandum was added to the resolutions adopted by the Exchange in which it was asked that the present method of handling the 1918 wheat crop and the price for the same remain as at present.

With reference to special agreements the resolutions said:

"In cases where the Government is obligated, either by law or by agreements entered into in good faith, to maintain prices we are in favor of an honorable fulfillment on the part of the Government of such obligations up to the present time, but not beyond. Such obligations should be at once terminated or canceled, and just an equitable adjustment should be made to provide for any actual bona fide loss accruing under such agreements, believing that such a course would be wiser and economically safer, as well as more just and equitable, than to maintain the prices at a high and artificial level to the benefit of about 30 per cent. producers against about 70 per cent. consumers who are now suffering from the high cost of living, which we believe is not justified by the actual conditions of supply and demand now existing."

TELLS OF WAGE INQUIRY.

Consumers' League Reports Findings in the Case of Working Girls.

The Consumers' League made public yesterday a report of a survey of the cost of living of girls employed in Manhattan and Brooklyn. The report says that in proportion to costs the girls in most cases were receiving the same wages that were paid in 1918. According to the report, the cost of living has increase, as follows: Clothing for women, 112 per cent; food, 85 per cent; fuel and light, 25 per cent; incidentals, 62 per cent.

The League found 3,010 girls receiving less than $12 a week. Of these 45 per cent were receiving less than $10 a week; 30 per cent less than $9, and 11 per cent less than $8. The statistics, it says, were gathered at the high water mark of wages in 1918 from employment files where trained workers register. The industrial history of the girls, the report says, showed a lack of standardization and failure to recognize long years of faithful work. Cases are cited of girls who after working 15 and 20 years receive $8 and $11 a week.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

There was a firm tone to values at the close of the market yesterday on the Consolidated Stock Exchange. Final prices were substantially higher in the standard industrials and rails as the result of an active demand which was more than sufficient to absorb what stock was offered. This demand made for a general advance in the final half hour and had a favorable influence on those stocks which had shown a retroactionary tendency previously. Reactions and rallies alternated throughout the session but price improvements, except in a few issues, were maintained.

SPIRITED BIDDING FOR FURS.

European Buyers Make Big Purchases at St. Louis Sale.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Jan. 22.—Eighty thousand civets were offered at the opening of the fur sale this morning, and they attracted many buyers. They sold at an advance of 10 per cent. and for a total of $15,000. The day's sales amounted to $550,000, making the total for the three days $2,300,000.

Twenty thousand house cats sold from 9 to 90 cents each, for a total of $10,000; 5,500 ringtails sold quickly for $5,700; 500 swift fox went for $750; 300 hair seals brought $2,000; 400 mountain lions sold for $1,500; 1,700 leopard and leopard cats brought over $8,000; 1,400 bears sold for over $20,000; 130 polar bears brought $3,000.

At the afternoon session 118,000 ermine attracted strong and steady bidding. American choice lots brought good advance prices. The entire offering brought about $235,000 at prices nearly the same as at the October auction.

There were some extra choice skins in the offering of 1,000 silver fox. Paris and London buyers bid heavily and contention was strong throughout this sale.

European buyers purchased well with considerable confidence in the market, declaring that Paris can absorb large quantities of the finest furs. Because of European shortage, buying was heavy. Buyers stated they expect the prices of high prices to continue abroad, and see no reason why prices here should drop. American buyers expected prices to decline.

CUTS SEA FREIGHT RATES.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—Reduced ocean freight rates over various routes, including some special rates on commodities to Belgium, which are expected to aid in reconstructing the commerce of that country, were announced today by the Shipping Board. The new rates follow:

Cotton from American gulf ports to Ghent, $5.10 a hundred pounds; phosphate rock from Florida to Antwerp and Ghent, $40 a gross ton; cocoanut oil from North Atlantic ports to Antwerp (and Rotterdam), $50 a long ton; rosin from American ports to Liverpool, $2.80 a hundred pounds; pine tar and turpentine from Atlantic ports to Liverpool, $3 per hundred pounds; coal from American gulf ports to Chile, $16.50 a gross ton; coal from Hampton Roads to Hawaiian Islands, $20 a ton; tanning extracts from Curacoa to New York, $30 a long ton; barley from the Pacific Coast to the United Kingdom (for the Food Administration), $52.50 a short ton.

More Buying in the Drug Trade.

General resumption of buying is reported in the drug trade, and inquiries have increased. Drug and Chemical Markets will say today. Many products are lower, including acetanilid, carbolic acid, glycerin, mercury, and cocaine. Camphor has advanced owing to scarcity, and Russian ergot is higher. Prices of dyestuffs remain steady, with few exceptions. Some dealers have been unloading too rapidly and have sold at concessions in fear that still lower prices might cause heavy losses. Benzol has advanced. Toluol is very plentiful and the price is low. The Government still holds large supplies. There is new life in heavy chemicals, and prospects are brighter for larger domestic business and for export trade.

Combinations in Women's Hats.

Besides the combination of chrysanthemum braids with georgette there are also displayed combinations of lisere with georgette and pineapple braid in women's hats that range in price from $24 to $42 a dozen, according to the bulletin of the Retail Millinery Association of America. A few of the medium-sized mushrooms in lisere with georgette crowns have thick layers of ostrich covering the entire upper brim. Moiré ribbon forms a prominent trimming feature on the lisere models. Wide ribbon flares on the crown in a contrasting shade and soft ribbon edges are seen. On the smaller shapes there are entire ribbon crowns.

In the Coat and Suit Trade.

There is very little activity in the women's coat and suit industry at present, and it is said by firms in this trade that the buying will not start until the retailers have purchased their Spring lines of dresses. The sales that are being made are relatively small in comparison with last year's business. This, however, is not causing much concern in the trade, as most of the business is looked for during the middle of next month. Conditions outside of the city are not as good as was anticipated, but it is expected that most of the buyers will come into the local market for their merchandise.

Larger Size Shirts Wanted.

In view of the lull in the shirt trade during the last two months of the past year, many of the manufacturers of men's shirts have been unloading their stocks, and in some cases reducing the price. This, it is said, accounts for the numerous shirt sales is now being held throughout the city. Although the sale of these goods has been exceptionally good in the retail stores during the past month, buyers are still holding off to a certain extent. Where orders were formerly received for shirts ranging from 14 to 14½ in size, retailers are now asking for the 15 and 15½ sizes. Many of these are being sold to men recently discharged from the service.

Wamsutta Sheeting Prices.

Watts, Stebbins & Co. have issued the following price list on Wamsutta wide sheetings, the figures representing a reduction of about 12½ per cent.:

Width.	Wamsutta.	Bedford.	Percale.

11-4	.88½	.91	$1.04

Have Advanced Prices.

In the local trade there has been a decided increase in the sale of leather handbags and suitcases. Orders that are being received from the New England States are very large, but in the West and on the Pacific Coast business is not as good as was expected. Some of the firms in this industry have advanced the prices on these goods that range from 50 cents to $2, depending upon the size and the quality of the material used in the construction of the article.

Fall Lines of Men's Hats.

During the last week many out-of-town buyers have been in the local trade looking over the Fall lines of men's hats. For the most part, the buying has been rather light, as the tendency seems to be to hold off for lower prices. Owing to the prevailing prices of silk, fur, and leather, it is the contention of the makers that there will not be any break in the market until the prices of these materials are much lower than what they are quoted at present.

Orders for Lace Curtains.

Lace curtain buyers who are now in town are devoting much attention to filling in orders for the Spring season. Owing to the depleted stocks in the retail stores, the merchandise that is now being sold embraces a wide range of patterns in various materials. Although there is still a big sale in the West for marquisette curtains and yard goods, more calls are being received of late for voiles. It is expected that after the inventories in the retail stores are completed more buyers will be in the market for these goods.

BUSINESS NOTES.

The Irving National Bank has issued a pocket edition of its commercial map of Latin America for the convenience of commercial travelers in those countries. It contains data of all kinds useful in facilitating and extending trade.

Concerns engaged in making floor coverings have formed the National Wholesale Floor Coverings Association to promote better business conditions for those engaged in the trade. The officers are: President, L. B. Clough; First Vice President, W. C. Hanton; Second Vice President, H. J. Alexander; Secretary, E. W. Goodman, and Treasurer, H. E. Stickel.

Another of the schools of foreign trade, established at various centres, is to be organized by the Central Y. M. C. A., 55 Hanson Place, Brooklyn, under the direction of E. E. Pratt, formerly with the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce. Lectures will be given weekly on eighteen Wednesdays.

Brown & Macrae, resident buyers of 1,270 Broadway, have added the following accounts: Miller, Rhoades & Swartz of Norfolk, Va., and the Block & Kuhl Company of Peoria, Ill.

REAL ESTATE FIELD

Considerable activity characterized the realty market yesterday, the chief feature of which was a report that the National Park Bank had practically closed negotiations for additional property on Fulton and Ann Streets, for the purpose of enlarging its Broadway bank building in the near future. In the Bronx the resale of the Great Northern Apartments closed a $500,000 deal and Manhattan was productive of several good transactions.

The officials of the National Park Bank declined to affirm or deny the reported deal, but it was stated that the property to be acquired includes the well-known Mouquin's restaurant building and the old Brosnan's cafe, one of the oldest establishment of its kind in the city, at 151 Fulton Street, adjoining the bank building. The latter property, fronting 23 feet by 813 feet deep is owned by the Alexander Ventures, estate and the reported deal involves the taking of a long lease by the bank. Adjoining is the Mouquin Restaurant property, at 149 Fulton Street, running through to 20 Ann Street, 25.1 feet on each street and 100 feet in depth. This is owned by the Pauline de Morgan Estate. The old building at 18 Ann Street was purchased by the National Park Bank in 1917.

With the acquirement of this additional property the bank would control a frontage of 137.10 feet on Fulton Street and 114.14 feet on Ann Street. The bank building has a frontage of 56.6 feet on Broadway, flanked by the St. Paul building on the Ann Street corner and the old structure on the immediate Fulton Street corner.

The Great Northern Apartments Held at $500,000 Resold to Syndicate.

The Great Northern Apartments in the Hunts Point section of the Bronx, recently sold by the Johnson Estate to Frederick Brown, operator, have been resold to the syndicate headed by Louis Cohen.

The porperty, which is assessed for taxation purposes by the city at $405,000 and was held at $500,000, consists of two six-story elevator apartments, occupying a plot 126 by 288 by irregular on 161st Street between Westchester and Hewitt Avenues.

There are eighty-two apartments and three stores in the two buildings, which show a gross rental of about $63,000 a year. It was an all-cash transaction, negotiated by Leitner Bruner and Starr.

Quick Resale of $90,000 Apartment in West Bronx.

YOU CAN DUPLICATE
THIS WOMAN'S SUCCESS
IN SELLING.

Up to the middle of last month Mrs. Lucy R—— had never in all her life sold anything. She had a room to let which is how our head designer happened to meet her.

"So you design custom-made corsets?" remarked Mrs. R—— "I wonder if I could sell them?"

"Try it," was the suggestion. Next morning Mrs. R—— called at our office. We showed her how to fit. Next day she called on a woman whose name we gave her. The first week she took nine orders and made $36. Since then she has made steady gains.

Mrs. R—— is busy, happy, and independent. She is putting money in the bank. Wouldn't you like to hear her story from her own lips? We can offer similar opportunities to a few more women under 40. Write A 427 Times Downtown.

FEAR A DEADLOCK IN GARMENT STRIKE

Leaders Declare Unless Employers Change Attitude Strike Will Continue.

CONFERENCE AT CITY HALL

Mayor Hylan Discusses Prospects of Arbitrating Trouble with Union Officers.

The outlook for a settlement of the waist and dress strike was not bright yesterday, according to union officers who declared that before there was a chance of arbitration either one side or the other must shift its position. The strikers say that 35,000 workers are idle.

Mayor Hylan conferred yesterday with Benjamin Schlesinger, of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union and Solomon Seidman, a union officer. The Mayor wanted to know what could be done to bring about a speedy arbitration of their differences. Mr. Schlesinger pointed out that the manufacturers had refused to arbitrate the question of the right to discharge workers and for that reason he did not see how the Union could arbitrate. The trouble began, he said, over the renewal of the protocol under which the question of discharges was referred to a Board of Review. The workers held that with the passing of the protocol there passed also the means by which both sides got together and that there was no longer means to review actions that one side or the other considered detrimental to general welfare.

Mr. Schlesinger went into this phase of the question with the Mayor. He said afterward that the Mayor had been fair, but he did not think the Mayor would be able to do anything in the matter, in view of the stand taken by the Dress and Waist Manufacturers Association, and that the strike would continue. The union will continue its efforts to have the points at issue reviewed by some board that will be acceptable to both sides.

Mr. Schlesinger said that he was seeking to have a group of Columbia University professors review the questions at issue and have them give an impartial view. Their answer to the contentions of both sides, the union leaders believe, will at least set the union right in public opinion.

Unless President Morris Weiss of the Manufacturers Association receded from the position he took several days ago in a letter to Mr. Schlesinger, it was said that the Columbia professors would not arbitrate the strike for the employers. The association then held that the time had passed when outsiders could decide upon questions about which they knew nothing, and which vitally affected its business. Mr. Schlesinger said Mayor Hylan promised that he would make every effort to see that the police did not act arbitrarily with the strikers.

It was reported yesterday that members of the employers association met quietly at the Waldorf-Astoria on Tuesday night and that it was the consensus of opinion that they were willing to arbitrate. This report was received by the workers with skepticism.

Strike meetings were held in several halls yesterday, and the work of picketing the shops was begun. It was reported that 350 independent manufacturers were ready to settle and that they had asked for the demands of the workers. The latter are preparing to distribute thousands of circulars giving their side of the controversy.

Two striking garment workers, Rosa Lesner of 521 Crimmins Avenue and Rose Gold of 430 East 170th Street, were fined $5 each for disorderly conduct by Magistrate Sweetser in the Morrisania Court yesterday. The complainant in the case was Miss Minnie Vareschi, a dressmaker, of 1495 Street, near Third Avenue. She said that when she left her shop on Tuesday evening with two of her workers the strikers jeered at them and called them names.

The factories throughout the city, and especially those in the district between Twenty-third and Thirty-Eighth Streets in Manhattan, are being picketed by strikers chosen in rotation from the ranks. They have been repeatedly warned by the strike leaders that there must be no violence.

It is the contention of the manufacturers that the number out on strike is not as great as the strikers claim, and that only 12,000 workers voted for the strike.

SEEKS RUSSIA'S STATUS.

Railroad's Attorney Interposes Objections in Black Tom Litigation.

Charles A. Boston, counsel for the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company, appeared before Federal Judge Mayer yesterday to challenge the right of Frederic R. Coudert to begin an action on behalf of the Russian Government for damages growing out of the Black Tom explosion. Mr. Boston called the court's attention to an alleged statement by President Wilson that there was no Russian Government, and told of his own efforts to obtain from the State Department information as to whether the United States recognized such a Government. The information sought, Mr. Boston said, was refused on the ground that it was contrary to precedent, but that the court, on application, would receive the information.

Mr. Coudert submitted a copy of a certificate signed by Secretary of State Lansing on Oct. 31, 1918, to the effect that this country, since July 5, 1917, had recognized Boris Bakhmeteff as Ambassador of the Russian-Kerensky Government, and said that when Ambassador Bakhmeteff went abroad on Dec. 3 the embassy was turned over to Sergus Ughet as Chargé d'Affaires, and that he has since been recognized as the representative of the Russian Government by the United States.

Mr. Boston questioned the accuracy of this information and said that Kerensky was deposed on Nov. 7, 1917. He asserted that Bakhmeteff had never been recognized as Russia's spokesman in this country.

Judge Mayer said that he would give the matter consideration, but that he would hesitate before asking the State Department for information concerning the status of Russia, because such an inquiry might embarrass the Government's position at the Peace Conference. The threatened suit involves many millions.

PLAN TO REOPEN FERRY.

Business Men Pledge Fund to Operate Astoria Line.

John H. Delaney, Commissioner of Plants and Structures, at a meeting of business men of the upper west side of Manhattan and Harlem and of Astoria, yesterday at the Queens Chamber in Long Island City, to discuss the probable reopening of the Astoria and Ninety-second Street ferry, informed the men who want the ferry operated that he would oppose municipal ownership and also the granting of a subsidy.

"The New York and East River Ferry Company, which has the franchise for this ferry and has been operating it, wants $50,000 for each of its ferry boats," said Commissioner Delaney. "It would cost $20,000 to put each of them in repair. The Astoria terminal is assessed for only $70,000. I only believe in the city purchasing nonpaying properties in an emergency, and I do not believe such an emergency exists in this case, and I will oppose the purchase by the city."

The Yorkville Taxpayers' Association, the Harlem Market Association, the Twelfth and Nineteenth Ward Property Owners' Association, the Astoria Taxpayers' Association, together with manufacturing concerns along the East River in Astoria, were represented. After the attitude of Commissioner Delaney was learned some of the business men of both Manhattan and Astoria pledged themselves to provide a fund to operate the ferry for the use of teams and working people. This plan is now being worked out.

SAYS LOWER MEAT IS NEAR.

P. Q. Foy Declares Consumers Will Benefit by Drop This Week.

New York City is now receiving virtually a normal supply of milk, estimated by the Health Department to be 1,800,000 quarts daily, from the sources from which milk was obtained before the strike on Jan. 1 of members of the Dairymen's League, when they failed to agree with the distributors on the price for January milk. No milk at all was received by the distributors yesterday from points outside of the regular New York milk territory.

P. Q. Foy, of the Market Reporter, said yesterday that in view of the present wholesale prices consumers generally should reap a benefit of a general drop in retail prices in beef and other meats by the latter part of the week.

"Since the publication of the storage reports," he said, "prime beef has dropped from 5 to 6 cents a pound, while the lower grades are down from 5 to 6 cents a pound. Lamb and mutton are from 8 to 11 cents a pound lower than a week ago. Veal dropped from 8 to 10 cents, pork, heavy, has declined 6 cents and medium light pork has come down 4 cents a pound.

"Butter—creamery extra—which was 67½ cents Jan. 14, was 61½ cents to-day. The price of creamery extras has fallen from 70 cents Jan. 11 to 61½ cents to-day. Eggs, Western firsts, which were 68 cents a dozen Jan. 11, were quoted to-day at from 61 to 62 cents."

SAIL FROM HALIFAX.

Americans Forced to Go to Canadian Port to Get Fast Ships.

On account of many of the fast Atlantic liners turning around at Halifax instead of coming to New York, American travelers who want to get to England in a hurry are being compelled to make the long overland journey through snowclad Maine, New Brunswick, and Nova Scotia to the northern port.

One hundred first-class passengers will leave the Grand Central Terminal at 10 o'clock this morning via Boston to embark on the White Star liner Olympic, which sails from Halifax for Liverpool on Saturday. Among them are E. Nally of the Marconi Company; Mr. and Mrs. W. M. B. Hoffman, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Paton, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Sanderson, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Barber, and Colonel J. M. Lewis, the inventor of the machine gun which has done such good work in the war.

The passengers are due to arrive at Halifax at midnight tomorrow and remain in their sleeping cars until Saturday morning, when they will go on board the Olympic, which is scheduled to reach Liverpool early on the following Friday.

The Cunarder Aquitania will sail from Halifax one week later, on Feb. 1.

Begin Scott Nearing Trial on Feb. 3.

The trial of Professor Francis Scott Nearing and the American Socialist Society on indictments charging violation of the Espionage act will begin on Feb. 3 before Federal Judge Mayer. The charge against Nearing is based on his pacifist writings and that against the society for the publication of a collection of anti-war literature under the title of "The Great Madness." Professor Nearing is under $5,000 bail. Morris Hillquit is counsel for the defendants. Albert Paul Fricke, the agent of a German steamship company under indictment for espionage, will be arraigned for pleading on Tuesday.
